State Funds Bill To Face New Action

House Members Return Monday To Act On Bills

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Gov. Jimmie Davis' $514-million general appropriations bill, barely scratched in House battles, Sunday night lands in the Senate to await committe assignment.

Unless the rules are suspended, the money bill will lie over until Monday to be assigned to Sen. William Cleveland's Senate Finance Committee.

It may be hastened on so the finance committee can begin hearings Monday after a few dozen Senate bills are pushed out of the way.

SOLONS TO RETURN

The Senate returns at 7 p.m., ending a four-day weekend for the senators. The House comes back at 5 p.m. Monday to act on bills which survived disciplined House committees.

The finance committee, apparently the only Senate committee left working in the 30-day fiscal legislature, is expected to be tough with non - administration bills.

Cleveland's committee meets at 9 a.m. Monday. The first controversial bill before it will be Sen. Adrian Duplantier's proposal to authorize investment of idle state funds.

The administration whipped idle funds investment bills in the House, which were designed to produce for the state savings of $2 million to $3 million a year.

The Senate bill is the last hope of those backing the investment proposal. Sen. Cleveland of Crowley, promised Duplantier, of New Orleans, a fair hearing.

Another bill to be aired is Sen. Michael O'Keefe's proposal to remove the dedication of revenues from the sales, income, public utilities and alcoholic beverages taxes. Gov. Davis vetoed such a bill by O'Keefe last year.

These are the only scratches put in the general money bill in the House:

Education—$100,000 was added for adult education.

Drainage—$75,000 was amended in for Avoyelles Parish.

Welfare—No boost in proposed expenditures, but an amendment requires that there must be no changes in old age pension checks without approval first by the legislature.

The governor's plan to cut 50,000 of the 125,000 pensioners'

Space Agency Plans Try To Orbit Station

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Space Agency said Saturday it will try again soon to launch a miniature radio station into orbit to investigate the ionosphere.

The attempt will be made at Cape Canaveral, Fla., with a 600-ton, four-stage Juno II rocket. It could come as early as next Wednesday. In the first try, Feb. 24, the 75-pound payload did not achieve enough speed to go into orbit.

The ionosphere is the radio-reflecting region of the high atmosphere which makes long-range communications possible. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) said "too little is known" about it.

The little radio station, now called the Ionosphere Beacon Satellite S45A, will be christened Explorer XII if it goes into orbit.

It will transmit on six frequencies in the 20, 40, 41, 106, 360p and 960 megacycle range. Ground stations, by analyzing radio signals from the satellite, will be able to learn much not now known about the ionosphere. NASA said nearly 40 universities and government laboratories in many parts of the world will participate.

The satellite looks like two sawed-off cones back to back. A six-foot loop antenna is wrapped around its middle. The plan is to put it in an elongated orbit extending from 240 miles above the earth out to about 1,600 miles. It is expected to make one circuit every 115 minutes.

Wife Gets 4th Set Of Twins

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—The 34-year-old wife of a suburban West Allis bricklayer confounded the law of averages Saturday by giving birth to her fourth set of twins.

The twin boys, each weighing more than six pounds, were born at St. Mary's Hospital to Mrs. Henry Ullrich. They were the 10th and 11th children born to the Ullrichs, who had been told to expect another set of twins.

CASTRO CAPTIVES

Citizens May Ransom 1,200

WASHINGTON (AP) — Private American citizens moved Saturday to buy the liberty of 1,200 captive Cuban rebels with a ransom of 500 bulldozers demanded by Fidel Castro, and 10 of the prisoners came to Miami to speed the strange deal.

The 10 Cuban rebels landed at a Miami Airport only a few hours after the Havana government radio announced they were being paroled to work out the arrangements which could free them and their companions. They did not appear to be under any guard as they landed to the cheers of about 500 exiled countryment.

MAKES OFFER

The radio reported the men were being given seven days in which to conclude arrangements for the machinery—estimated to cost from $6 million to $27 million depending on the models chosen. If unsuccessful at the end of that time, they would have to return to Havana, the broadcast said.

The Communist-leaning Cuban dictator announced Thursday he is holding 1,200 men captured when he shattered an invasion effort last month and would free them in return for bulldozers.

If the exchange is not made, Castro said, the prisoners will be put at hard labor doing work he wants the machines to do.

The offer was made, informally and via television, to the U. S. government.

It was announced in Detroit Saturday that a drive to raise the required funds would be sponsored by Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of President Franklin D.

REBELS REJECT MOVE

French Call Halt To Algiers War

EVIAN-LESBAINS, France (AP) — France ordered cessation of all offensive action in Algeria Saturday but the Algerian rebel leadership rejected the decision, declaring "our fight continues."

A spokesmen for the rebel delegation at French-Algerian peace talks, which opened here Saturday, termed the French decision "blackmail," "propaganda" and a "diversionary maneuver."

"The decision was unilateral," spokesman Abdelmajid Rhida Malek told a news conference in Geneva after the first session of peace talks at Evian. "We reject all unilateral decisions. We are here to negotiate bilateral accords."

EFFECTIVE MONTH

This statement echoed one by the rebel government in Tunis, which said any cease-fire should be negotiated by both parties.

The French order, which leaves the French free to shoot if shot at, was made effective for a month. At the end of that time, the French said, they would reconsider the situation in the light of the peace talks here.

But Malek's statement that the 6½-year rebel fight goes on cast a pall over the infant negotiations. French officials have said serious talks cannot long continue without a cease-fire on both sides.

The order for the half-million man French army to halt offensive operations in Algeria was made effective at 6 p.m.

French Delegate General Jean Morin said in Algiers he hoped the rebels would follow the French lead. But Malek said a proviso in the French order leaving French troops the right to take defensive action could be used as a pretext by the French to continue offensive operations.

As the peace talks got under way in this Lake Geneva resort city, France also announced that rebel Deputy Premier Ahmed Ben

U.S. Deputies To Have Yellow Bands On Arms

WASHINGTON (AP)—The more than 400 deputized federal marshals who will try to stem racial violence in Alabama will carry sidearms and wear yellow arm bands with "deputy marshal" imprinted in dark blue letters.

Many are products of the Justice Department's training course for marshals, which includes instruction in the handling of mobs.

About 300 of the latest special force, which is headed by Byron R. (Whizzer) White, deputy attorney general, are being pressed into service from the Treasury Department's alcohol and tobacco tax division.

About 100 others are presently deputy marshals in 41 districts in southeastern states. Another 20 are deputy marshals in the District of Columbia.

All the members of the special Alabama force will be sworn in as deputized marshals. They will not wear helmets or special uniforms and will be quartered at Maxwell Air Force Base, near Montgomery.

DURING BENEFIT SHOW

Composer Fatally Stricken On Stage

CHICAGO (AP)—Joe E. Howard, veteran vaudeville performer and composer of some of the nation's most enduring popular songs, died during a performance while trying once more to make people happy.

The white-haired showman of the early 1900s who had spent more than 60 years in the business, collapsed and died Friday night on the stage of the Civic Opera House during a benefit performance.

A packed house of more than 3,000 saw Howard falter as he stood before a microphone leading the audience in singing "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

As the song ended, Howard stumbled, grabbed the microphone for support, then collapsed, bringing the microphone down on him. The curtain was drawn.

Several doctors in the audience hurried backstage. But it was too late. They pronounced Howard dead. They said apparently he had suffered a heart attack.

Howard's wife, Miriam, 53, his ninth, was backstage when the showman collapsed. She tried mouth-to-mouth breathing in an effort to keep her husband alive to no avail.

There was some question about Howard's age. The coroner's office listed it as 82 and the undertaker handling funeral arrangements said he had been given Howard's age as 83. But Mrs. Howard insisted he was 79.

His most popular hits included "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," a movie version of which was made in 1947; "Goodbye My Lady Love," "What's the Use of Dreaming," "Hello My Baby," and "Honeymoon."

Mixed Group Touches Off Mob Uprising

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — A large task force of U. S. marshals was ordered to riot-torn Montgomery Saturday after a racially mixed "freedom ride" touched off a bloody uprising.

Rioting continued around the Greyhound bus station for nearly two hours before the whites—numbering close to 1,000 at times—were broken up with tear gas by state and city police.

20 INJURIES

The racial violence, which erupted and subsided three times, left at least 20 persons battered and bloody, including an official of the Justice Department in Washington.

John Seigenthaler, 32, a representative of the attorney general, was slugged from behind as he struggled to help a besieged white girl—one of the "freedom riders"—being chased by angry white men. Seigenthaler was taken to a hospital with a cut behind his ear. He was reported in good condition.

A few hours after the angry whites attacked the bus riders the federal government announced it was sending more than 400 officers to Alabama to prevent further violence.

Within an instant after the Greyhound bus load of white and Negro youths testing bus station color barriers arrived at the downtown terminal from Birmingham, the crowd surged forward and pounced on the group.

Seigenthaler and other bystanders also were pummeled to the ground. Among them were at least four out-of-town reporters and photographers attempting to film the rioting. Some photographers lost their cameras, some of them smashed.

Before the violence subsided, a Negro and eight white persons, including a woman, were taken to jail. Most of them were charged with failing to obey an officer.

The bus riders, who started their segregation-testing trip at Nashville, Tenn., arrived here from Birmingham at 10:23 a.m. The violence exploded less than five minutes later. The crowd was gathering at least 30 minutes be-

Alabama Judge Orders Arrests For Contempt

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Atty. Gen. MacDonald Gallion said Saturday night that a state court judge has ordered the arrest of 21 "freedom riders" for contempt of an injunction he issued Friday.

Gallion said that at his request Circuit Court Judge Walter B. Jones "has issued an order to show cause why 21 'freedom riders' should not be jailed for contempt and the judge has ordered their arrests."

Gallion's statement:

"With supporting affidavits I petitioned Judge Walter B. Jones tonight for issuance of a contempt citation for flagrant disobedience of an injunction he issued yesterday.

"Fortunately, we had information and an affidavit from Birmingham news reporter Tom Lankford which substantiated and was sufficient to satisfy the judge that contempt was in order.

"The affidavit convinced the judge that members of the so-called 'freedom riders' had information in advance to leaving Birmingham and that the injunction was in effect."

Warm Weather To Continue

Well, the temperature forecast for today and Monday is up again. It should be even hotter today than it was Saturday. And it was plenty warm Saturday.

Today's forecasts call for a high reading in the Twin Cities ranging between 85 and 92 degrees.

And this will be accompanied by partly cloudy skies. Showers have been omitted from the outlook.

Yesterday's high reading was 90 at Selman Field with the low recorded at 68 degrees.

JOHN SEIGENTHALER, 32, right, administrative assistant to Atty. Gen. Robert Kennedy, left, was injured Saturday in a race riot in Montgomery, Ala. Seigenthaler was struck on the head while trying to help a girl escape from pursuers. He apparently suffered a mild brain concussion and was taken to a hospital. (AP Wirephoto)

LBJ Closes Asian Tour In Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — At the end of his Asian tour, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson said Saturday he will take back to President Kennedy "a message of confidence that the integrity of freedom in this region can be and will be preserved."

Johnson made this statement after talks with America's staunchest ally in South Asia and the one most concerned with the dangers of neutralism, Pakistan's President Mohammad Ayub Khan.

The talks on economic and military strength came between political campaign-type handshaking on the streets by Johnson after he flew into this Arabian Sea port from New Delhi, India. With political activity banned since Field Marshal Ayub Khan took over the country in 1958, Johnson gave the people a rare taste of politicking.

As he drove away from the airport in a fierce sun, Johnson ripped off his coat and tie and stood in the car waving to a scattering of people. The government made no effort to turn out the crowds in this city which greeted President Eisenhower with more than one million persons in December 1959.

Johnson repeated earlier performances by stopping the car repeatedly to tell people of America's interest in their economic advancement and to shake hands.

People along the streets responded with enthusiasm. But there was an undertone here of dissatisfaction with American policy.

In a civic reception speech, H. M. Habiballah, vice chairmen of the Karachi Municipal Committee politely took America to task on a Pakistani complaint that as a faithful ally, it was often ignored while the United States placates neutral India.

"We believe loyalty and readiness to make sacrifices are the essential attributes of friendship," Habibullah said.

"That is why we have sometimes been somewhat bewildered to find that our friends have failed to make that distinction expected of them between sincere friendship and political opportunism."

Press To Meet Shepard Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr., first American in space, will appear again before the press in Washington, probably on June 6.

James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Saturday that Shepard will recount his personal reactions to the May 5 flight. Also, at the conference, scientific and medical data will be presented for interested scientists and news media.

Shepard's first Washington news conference came three days after his Mercury space capsule was fired 115 miles high and 302 miles down range from Cape Canaveral Fla.

'CIVIL RIGHTS FRONTIER'

Northern School Segregation Hit

NEW YORK (AP) — Berl I. Bernhard, staff director-designate of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, called Saturday night for elimination of racial discrimination in suburbs of major Northern cities.

Bernhard struck out also at segregation in public schools in Northern cities.

"The urban areas of the North are a crucial 'new frontier' of civil rights," Bernhard said in a speech prepared for the banquet session of the American Veterans Committee convention.

POPULATION SHIFTS

"In 1960 for the first time a Northern state — New York — had a larger Negro population than any Southern state. Within the next few years, it is expected that more than half of our non-white population will be in the North.

"The rapid increase in the proportion of non-white population in most of our major Northern cities has been accompanied by the exodus of younger white families from the cities to the suburbs. Significant exclusion of non-whites from the burgeoning suburbs has heightened their disproportionate concentration in the cities.

"The plight of the urban area is not simply a problem of housing. There is little doubt but that civil rights restrictions in employment, education, housing and other areas of urban life produce a powerful interaction upon each other. Piecemeal approaches will not meet with success, particularly in the urban areas.

"Unless non-whites have opportunity for equal educational training and substantial economic advance, they will continue to contribute to city slum development and other social ills."

The acting staff director said progress has been made in school

Flood Fighters Winning Battle To Save Levee

By United Press International

The father of the waters carried a mighty flood crest deep into Dixie Saturday while up to an inch of new rain fell on portions of its sodden watershed.

Flood fighters at Dyersberg, Tenn., appeared to have won their fight to save a levee protecting 40 families and 12,000 acres of land, but they warned towboats to stay away from the Mississippi River's east bank.

There still was danger at Dyersburg from "backwater waves," created when a river begins receding from flood stage, National Guardsmen said. The guardsmen bolstered the privately-owned dike with 30,000 sandbags.

Downriver at Memphis, floodwaters crept up on mud island, partially inundating the city's downtown airport and endangering a hangar.

Farther north, in flood-battered southern Illinois, the waters continued to recede, leaving behind a layer of evil - smelling mud. Some 70 familes began cleaning up their homes at Carmi on the little Wabash River.

Rain was forecast into the weekend for southern Illinois but the Cairo, Ill., U.S. Weather Bureau discounted any new flood threat

AIR TRAGEDY AVERTED

Passenger Is Hero As Pilot Collapses

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The pilot of a twin-engine plane collapsed at the controls above Palm Springs Saturday.

A passenger who wasn't a pilot grabbed the control wheel and flew the plane for nearly two hours while three other passengers worked frantically to revive the pilot.

He recovered in time to land the plane safely.

Lawrence Gerald Slaten, 31, executive of the Los Angeles construction company which owns the Beechcraft C18S, told this story to police after the plane finally landed at Palm Springs Airport:

Slaten, his brother Sheldon, 25, William Weiss, 52, and Mrs. Weiss, 39, all of Los Angeles, left Burbank, Calif., for a Las Cruces, N. M., vacation. The pilot was James Edward Brummitt, 40, of Mission Beach, Calif., who has a background of more than 20 years in commercial aviation.

"I had sat in the co-pilot's seat several times in this particular plane," Slaten said, "but I had never flown a plane. When Brummitt became unconscious he fell over the controls and we had to pull him away.

"From 8,500 feet we dropped to about 7,000 feet," he continued. "I climbed back to 9,000 feet and tried to stay away from the mountains."

Then fuel ran low in the main gas tank.

Action Taken On Orders Of Kennedys

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government Saturday ordered armed marshals and deputized officers into Alabama in an effort to stem mounting racial violence.

At the same time, President Kennedy called upon Alabama officials and the mayors of Birmingham and Montgomery to exercise their authority to prevent further bloodletting.

ASK INJUNCTION

Acting on a third front, the government asked the U. S. District Court in Montgomery to issue injunctions against the Ku Klux Klan, the National States Rights party and other individuals to stop interference with "peaceful interstate travel by bus."

The Justice Department said it had information that Klansmen and other hard-core segregationists were moving in force into the Montgomery area, the scene Saturday of a bloody race riot in which 20 persons were beaten with clubs and fists after a white mob greeted a busload of "freedom riders."

In a rapid-fire series of actions, Kennedy said in a statement issued by the White House that he had instructed the Justice Department "to take all necessary steps based on their information and investigation."

Half an hour later, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said he expected that more than 400 men, described as "nonmilitary officers," would be in Alabama by noon Sunday. They are being sent by chartered flights from other Southern states and the District of Columbia.

The attorney general also said additional FBI agents were being sent to the race-riot torn state to assist in investigations of the bloody fighting between Negroes and whites in Montgomery and Birmingham. John Seigenthaler, of the Justice Department, who was in Montgomery as a personal

Patterson Says Federal Action Is Unnecessary

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. John M. Patterson declared Saturday that the state is enforcing the law at the scene of riots in Montgomery, and that federal intervention is unnecessary.

The statement came after the Justice Department said it was sending several hundred U. S. marshals and deputized officers to Alabama to prevent further violence.

Patterson's statement said:

"No one regrets more than I what happened today in the city of Montgomery. But the fact remains that state highway patrolmen responded in force seconds after they were called. Within five minutes, we had 65 state patrolmen on the scene. Officers restored order quickly, and we have the situation under firm control.

"The state is enforcing the law and will continue to do so. We need no help from the federal government and we have not requested their help. The federal government has no constitutional right to intervene unless we ask their assistance.

"If the federal government really wants to help in this unfortunate situation, they will encourage these outside agitators to go home. We have the means and the ability to keep the peace in Alabama without any outside help."

20 INJURIES

The racial violence, which erupted and subsided three times, left at least 20 persons battered and bloody, including an official of the Justice Department in Washington.

John Seigenthaler, 32, a representative of the attorney general, was slugged from behind as he struggled to help a besieged white girl—one of the "freedom riders"—being chased by angry white men. Seigenthaler was taken to a hospital with a cut behind his ear. He was reported in good condition.

A few hours after the angry whites attacked the bus riders the federal government announced it was sending more than 400 officers to Alabama to prevent further violence.

Within an instant after the Greyhound bus load of white and Negro youths testing bus station color barriers arrived at the downtown terminal from Birmingham, the crowd surged forward and pounced on the group.

Seigenthaler and other bystanders also were pummeled to the ground. Among them were at least four out-of-town reporters and photographers attempting to film the rioting. Some photographers lost their cameras, some of them smashed.

Before the violence subsided, a Negro and eight white persons, including a woman, were taken to jail. Most of them were charged with failing to obey an officer.

The bus riders, who started their segregation-testing trip at Nashville, Tenn., arrived here from Birmingham at 10:23 a.m. The violence exploded less than five minutes later. The crowd was gathering at least 30 minutes be-

Alabama Judge Orders Arrests For Contempt

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Atty. Gen. MacDonald Gallion said Saturday night that a state court judge has ordered the arrest of 21 "freedom riders" for contempt of an injunction he issued Friday.

Gallion said that at his request Circuit Court Judge Walter B. Jones "has issued an order to show cause why 21 'freedom riders' should not be jailed for contempt and the judge has ordered their arrests."

Gallion's statement:

"With supporting affidavits I petitioned Judge Walter B. Jones tonight for issuance of a contempt citation for flagrant disobedience of an injunction he issued yesterday.

"Fortunately, we had information and an affidavit from Birmingham news reporter Tom Lankford which substantiated and was sufficient to satisfy the judge that contempt was in order.

"The affidavit convinced the judge that members of the so-called 'freedom riders' had information in advance to leaving Birmingham and that the injunction was in effect."

Warm Weather To Continue

Well, the temperature forecast for today and Monday is up again. It should be even hotter today than it was Saturday. And it was plenty warm Saturday.

Today's forecasts call for a high reading in the Twin Cities ranging between 85 and 92 degrees.

And this will be accompanied by partly cloudy skies. Showers have been omitted from the outlook.

LBJ Closes Asian Tour In Pakistan

KARACHI, Pakistan (AP) — At the end of his Asian tour, Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson said Saturday he will take back to President Kennedy "a message of confidence that the integrity of freedom in this region can be and will be preserved."

Johnson made this statement after talks with America's staunchest ally in South Asia and the one most concerned with the dangers of neutralism, Pakistan's President Mohammad Ayub Khan.

The talks on economic and military strength came between political campaign-type handshaking on the streets by Johnson after he flew into this Arabian Sea port from New Delhi, India. With political activity banned since Field Marshal Ayub Khan took over the country in 1958, Johnson gave the people a rare taste of politicking.

As he drove away from the airport in a fierce sun, Johnson ripped off his coat and tie and stood in the car waving to a scattering of people. The government made no effort to turn out the crowds in this city which greeted President Eisenhower with more than one million persons in December 1959.

Johnson repeated earlier performances by stopping the car repeatedly to tell people of America's interest in their economic advancement and to shake hands.

People along the streets responded with enthusiasm. But there was an undertone here of dissatisfaction with American policy.

In a civic reception speech, H. M. Habibullah, vice chairman of the Karachi Municipal Committee politely took America to task on a Pakistani complaint that as a faithful ally, it was often ignored while the United States placates neutral India.

"We believe loyalty and readiness to make sacrifices are the essential attributes of friendship," Habibullah said.

"That is why we have sometimes been somewhat bewildered to find that our friends have failed to make that distinction expected of them between sincere friendship and political opportunism."

Press To Meet Shepard Again

WASHINGTON (AP) — Astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr., first American in space, will appear again before the press in Washington, probably on June 6.

James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, said Saturday that Shepard will recount his personal reactions to the May 5 flight. Also, at the conference, scientific and medical data will be presented for interested scientists and news media.

Shepard's first Washington news conference came three days after his Mercury space capsule was fired 115 miles high and 302 miles down range from Cape Canaveral Fla.

'CIVIL RIGHTS FRONTIER'

Northern School Segregation Hit

NEW YORK (AP) — Berl I. Bernhard, staff director-designate of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, called Saturday night for elimination of racial discrimination in suburbs of major Northern cities.

Bernhard struck out also at segregation in public schools in Northern cities.

"The urban areas of the North are a crucial 'new frontier' of civil rights," Bernhard said in a speech prepared for the banquet session of the American Veterans Committee convention.

POPULATION SHIFTS

"In 1960 for the first time a Northern state — New York — had a larger Negro population than any Southern state. Within the next few years, it is expected that more than half of our non-white population will be in the North.

"The rapid increase in the proportion of non-white population in most of our major Northern cities has been accompanied by the exodus of younger white families from the cities to the suburbs. Significant exclusion of non-whites from the burgeoning suburbs has heightened their disproportionate concentration in the cities.

"The plight of the urban area is not simply a problem of housing. There is little doubt but that civil rights restrictions in employment, education, housing and other areas of urban life produce a powerful interaction upon each other. Piecemeal approaches will not meet with success, particularly in the urban areas.

"Unless non-whites have opportunity for equal educational training and substantial economic advance, they will continue to contribute to city slum development and other social ills."

The acting staff director said progress has been made in school

Flood Fighters Winning Battle To Save Levee

By United Press International

The father of the waters carried a mighty flood crest deep into Dixie Saturday while up to an inch of new rain fell on portions of its sodden watershed.

Flood fighters at Dyersberg, Tenn., appeared to have won their fight to save a levee protecting 40 families and 12,000 acres of land, but they warned towboats to stay away from the Mississippi River's east bank.

There still was danger at Dyersburg from "backwater waves," created when a river begins receding from flood stage, National Guardsmen said. The guardsmen bolstered the privately-owned dike with 30,000 sandbags.

Downriver at Memphis, floodwaters crept up on mud island, partially inundating the city's downtown airport and endangering a hangar.

Farther north, in flood-battered southern Illinois, the waters continued to recede, leaving behind a layer of evil - smelling mud. Some 70 familes began cleaning up their homes at Carmi on the little Wabash River.

Rain was forecast into the weekend for southern Illinois but the Cairo, Ill., U.S. Weather Bureau discounted any new flood threat.

AIR TRAGEDY AVERTED

Passenger Is Hero As Pilot Collapses

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—The pilot of a twin-engine plane collapsed at the controls above Palm Springs Saturday.

A passenger who wasn't a pilot grabbed the control wheel and flew the plane for nearly two hours while three other passengers worked frantically to revive the pilot.

He recovered in time to land the plane safely.

Lawrence Gerald Slaten, 31, executive of the Los Angeles construction company which owns the Beechcraft C18S, told this story to police after the plane finally landed at Palm Springs Airport:

Slaten, his brother Sheldon, 25, William Weiss, 52, and Mrs. Weiss, 39, all of Los Angeles, left Burbank, Calif., for a Las Cruces, N. M., vacation. The pilot was James Edward Brummitt, 40, of Mission Beach, Calif., who has a background of more than 20 years in commercial aviation.

"I had sat in the co-pilot's seat several times in this particular plane," Slaten said, "but I had never flown a plane. When Brummitt became unconscious he fell over the controls and we had to pull him away.

"From 8,500 feet we dropped to about 7,000 feet," he continued. "I climbed back to 8,000 feet and tried to stay away from the mountains."

Then fuel ran low in the main gas tank.

Action Taken On Orders Of Kennedys

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government Saturday ordered armed marshals and deputized officers into Alabama in an effort to stem mounting racial violence.

At the same time, President Kennedy called upon Alabama officials and the mayors of Birmingham and Montgomery to exercise their authority to prevent further bloodletting.

ASK INJUNCTION

Acting on a third front, the government asked the U. S. District Court in Montgomery to issue injunctions against the Ku Klux Klan, the National States Rights party and other individuals to stop interference with "peaceful interstate travel by bus."

The Justice Department said it had information that Klansmen and other hard-core segregationists were moving in force into the Montgomery area, the scene Saturday of a bloody race riot in which 20 persons were beaten with clubs and fists after a white mob greeted a busload of "freedom riders."

In a rapid-fire series of actions, Kennedy said in a statement issued by the White House that he had instructed the Justice Department "to take all necessary steps based on their information and investigation."

Half an hour later, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy said he expected that more than 400 men, described as "nonmilitary officers," would be in Alabama by noon Sunday. They are being sent by chartered flights from other Southern states and the District of Columbia.

The attorney general also said additional FBI agents were being sent to the race-riot torn state to assist in investigations of the bloody fighting between Negroes and whites in Montgomery and Birmingham. John Seigenthaler, of the Justice Department, who was in Montgomery as a personal

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Gov. John M. Patterson declared Saturday that the state is enforcing the law at the scene of riots in Montgomery, and that federal intervention is unnecessary.

The statement came after the Justice Department said it was sending several hundred U. S. marshals and deputized officers to Alabama to prevent further violence.

Patterson's statement said:

"No one regrets more than I what happened today in the city of Montgomery. But the fact remains that state highway patrolmen responded in force seconds after they were called. Within five minutes, we had 65 state patrolmen on the scene. Officers restored order quickly, and we have the situation under firm control.

"The state is enforcing the law and will continue to do so. We need no help from the federal government and we have not requested their help. The federal government has no constitutional right to intervene unless we ask their assistance.

"If the federal government really wants to help in this unfortunate situation, they will encourage these outside agitators to go home. We have the means and the ability to keep the peace in Alabama without any outside help."

Roosevelt, Milton S. Eisenhower, brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, and Walter P. Reuther, president of the United Auto Workers. A cable was sent to Castro advising him of the move.

This development brought prompt word from the State Department that it would give "most sympathetic consideration" to granting export licenses if the machines are privately provided. The United States has no diplomatic relations with Cuba and normal commercial exports of machinery to Cuba are not allowed.

The cable sent to Castro from Detroit mentioned 1,000 prisoners and spoke of tractors, rather than the much more expensive bulldozers, but presumably this was a misinterpretation of Castro's demand and would not affect the basic premise.

The cable went on to say:

"If you are prepared to accept our proposal, we shall take immediate steps to raise the necessary funds on a voluntary basis by calling upon the workers who build the tractors, the companies in the tractor industry, and the American people generally, all to make their respective contributions."

While hopes for the freedom of the Cuban captives grew, there remained one unanswered question — whether Castro would accept privately provided machinery or insist that the U.S. government knuckle under.

Castro renewed his barter offer in another televised speech from Havana Saturday but ruled out any transaction carried out through the International Red Cross, which he said had been suggested in the United States.

"We don't need intermediaries," the bearded prime minister said. And he added, perhaps significantly, "Mr. Kennedy now has the floor."

While the Detroit offer was the most concrete gesture yet made, there was growing evidence of widespread sentiment that the captured Cubans' liberty should be purchased, even at the price demanded by the American-hating Castro.

The Miami News offered to collect money from throughout the Americas and said in an editorial "We believe that Americans will agree that a human life is priceless."

At Worcester, Mass., a group of Clark University students announced a drive to raise $7,500 to buy one bulldozer for the cause.

In Washington, Sen. George A. Smathers, Florida Democrat and one of Castro's most persistent critics, said he would support private purchase of the machines although he feels the government should not do it.

In Saturday's telecast, Castro said the requested 500 bulldozers would constitute "compensation for the damage done by the invasion forces." At the time he made his original offer, the Cuban ruled out of the exchange any "war criminals" associated with former President Fulgenico Batista's dictatorship, implying they would be executed.

Castro suggested Saturday that ferries could bring the bulldozers to Havana and return with loads of prisoners, taking the least important men first with the top leaders returning only after the last bulldozer arrived.

Castro claimed Manuel Artime, described as the leader of the luckless invasion forces, is among the prisoners. The dictator offered to make a straight exchange of Artime for Francisco "The Hook" Molina who is awaiting sentence in New York on a second-degree murder conviction.

Molina, a Cuban Castro supporter, was convicted of killing 9-year-old Magdalena Urdaneta in a New York restaurant while Castro was visiting the United Nations last year. The little Venezuelan girl was caught in a crossfire of bullets when Molina and his friends clashed with an anti-Castro group in the restaurant where the child was eating with her parents.

Commenting on the project recommended by Mrs. Roosevelt, Eisenhower and Reuther, Milton Eisenhower said, "The effort is sanctioned by the appropriate federal officials." But he did not elaborate.

Eisenhower went on to say he feels the funds should be supplied privately. "I think nothing should be left undone to save these human lives," he said.

He concluded: "I hope earnestly that Castro will abide by his offer. If he does, I am sure that the American people will gladly provide the funds needed to restore these human beings to freedom."

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Cuban Revolutionary Council has accepted Fidel Castro's offer to trade prisoners for bulldozers.

Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, president of the council in exile, announced from his sick bed Saturday the council would collect contributions from throughout the Americas to buy 500 bulldozers and trade them for prisoners now held in Cuba.

French Call Halt To Algiers War

Bella was being transferred from his fortress prison in the Isle d'Aix to a luxurious chateau in the Loire River Valley. Other rebels officials had their detention eased.

The rebel spokesman "took note" of the decision, but said Ben Bella should be "associated with the peace talks" and that much difficulty had arisen on this point. He did not elaborate.

News of the order was received with hope by Algerian Moslems but with bitter indignation by the French settlers.

"We have been sold out," complained one European in Algiers.

In Algiers, troops in combat dress manned gun emplacements to forestall any violent reaction by European settlers. New tension built in Algeria following a night of bomb and grenade explosions in Algiers, a riot in Oran, and bombs in other major cities.

Announcement of the cease-fire was made here by Louis Joxe, French delegation chief.

The rebel delegation, headed by Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Krim Belkacem, flew in from their Geneva headquarters to a coldly formal greeting by a French official and the long-awaited peace talks began. The first session lasted an hour 40 minutes. Afterward a recess was announced until next Tuesday.

Joxe and Krim in opening statements outlined general views on an Algerian settlement. The statements disclosed areas of disagreement right at the start.

Krim, for example, insisted on Algerian sovereignty over the oil-rich Sahara. The French would like to see some kind of international control over the Sahara by France and the states bordering the vast desert.

At a news conference after the initial session, Joxe said France was prepared to grant Algeria full sovereignty. But, he added, if the Algerians chose to break completely with France, then France would have to take "legitimate precautions" to protect her citizens and her national interests.

Joxe also insisted the Algerian people themselves — through the ballot box — must be the final arbiters. He said one task at Evian was to arrange proper guarantees for such an election. He said the Algerians at the conference table accepted "self-determination" as a valid procedure for settling the long Algerian War.

The transfer of Ben Bella from his fortress prison appeared certain to improve the atmosphere for the talks. Ben Bella and four lieutenants were tricked into capture by the French in 1956 when their plane flying from Rabat to Tunis was forced down in Algiers. The rebel government-in-exile has long demanded to confer by telephone with rebel delegates to Evian.

The Evian talks opened with heavy security forces guarding the conference site and all approaches to the city.

desegregation.

However, he added, "it is common knowledge that racially segregated schools exist in all of the great cities of the North and West where large concentrations of negroes and other minorities are found."

"School boards by inaction," he continued, "can create problems of unequal educational opportunity in the north and the west as well as in the South.

"There is a paradox here. In the South segregation of schools was established and maintained by state law. For this reason it was reached directly by the Brown case which held that compulsory racial segregation in public schools was of itself a denial of equal protection of the law.

"By contrast, in the North, proving that segregation is the result of official action is difficult indeed. Rarely have compulsory segregation laws been in effect.

"Thus, in the North, unless one can show overt action, the only way to reach segregation is to prove specifically the inferiority of the segregated school in teacher-pupil ratio, teaching staff or other tangible factors."

Mixed Group Touches Off Mob Uprising

fore the bus arrived.

Squad cars of police, with sirens screaming, pulled into the bus station parking lot at 10:40 a.m. Order was not restored until almost 1 p.m.

Some of the beaten Negroes had no apparent connection with the "freedom ride." Four Negroes walking along a nearby street were waylaid by angry white men. A group of teen-age white boys poured a flammable liquid on the Negro's clothes and set it afire.

The fire burned out, but the man was left sprawled in the street. One of his companions suffered a broken leg when white men attacked him.

A teen-age white employe of the Montgomery Advertiser - journal, Paschal Pike, was attacked when he tried to enter the bus terminal on an errand. He said he was beaten when he identified himself as a newspaper employe.

One of the injured "freedom riders" was Jim Zwerg, 21, a white theology student from Appleton, Wis. He was beaten, stomped and left semi-conscious for at least 30 minutes before police took him to a hospital. His condition was described as satisfactory.

The segregation-challenging bus ride originated in Nashville early Friday. The group came here after an overnight delay in Birmingham, where another group of "freedom riders" was beaten by a white mob last weekend. That group also ran into trouble at Anniston, Ala., and one bus they were riding was burned.

Two white girls among the riders beaten in Montgomery. They are Susan Wilbur, a student at Peabody College in Nashville, and Susan Hermann, a Fisk University, Nashville, exchange student from Los Angeles.

When the two girls were attacked, they got away from the pursuing crowd, they said, by running first into a church and then into an office building. Police took them into protective custody.

In addition to sending in marshals, federal officials also asked the U. S. District Court in Montgomery to issue injunctions against the Ku Klux Klan, the National States Rights party and other individuals to stop them from interfering with "peaceful interstate travel by bus."

The Justice Department in Washington said it had information that klansmen and other segregationists were moving en masse into the Montgomery area.

President Kennedy also appealed to Alabama officials and the mayors of Montgomery and Birmingham, where violence erupted last weekend, to exercise their authority to quiet the explosive racial situation.

Meanwhile, the "freedom riders" who managed to escape injury were taken to Negro homes to rest while they planned their next move.

Negro Prisoner Dies In Sleep

A 47-year-old Negro prisoner died in his sleep early Saturday morning from a heart attack in the city jail, Monroe Chief of Police James C. Kelly Jr. said yesterday.

Jerry Lewis Jr., who was jailed May 18 for disturbing the peace by public drunkenness, was pronounced dead from a heart attack by Ouachita Parish coroner Dr. John Burton yesterday.

Police said that his family was notified and the local Veteran's Administrator was also notified as he was a disabled veteran. The body was taken to Hunter's Funeral Home in Monroe.

representative of the President, was injured when he attempted to aid one of the bus riders.

In his statement, President Kennedy said he "would ... hope that any person, whether a citizen of Alabama or a visitor there, would refrain from any action which would in any way tend to provoke further outbreaks."

The President said he hoped state and local officials in Alabama "will meet their responsibilities."

He added: "The United States intends to meet its."

His statement did not say what steps the government might take. The answer came shortly thereafter from the Justice Department.

The President and the attorney general acted after receiving reports that local police in Montgomery failed to act in time to prevent Negroes and whites traveling on a "freedom tour" from being beaten by white mobs.

The federal action was announced by the attorney general in a telegram to Alabama Gov. John Patterson, copies of which were released to newsmen here.

Kennedy reminded the governor that earlier in the week he had offered federal assistance to protect the "freedom riders" if Patterson felt it was necessary. The "freedom riders," a group of Negroes and whites, have been attempting to ride buses on an integrated basis.

In connection with the federal offer to provide protection, Kennedy told the governor: "You stated that this was unnecessary and that you and the local authorities would be completely able to handle every contingency."

"It was based on this assurance of safe conduct that the students boarded the bus in Birmingham on the trip to Montgomery. They arrived in Montgomery and were attacked and beaten by a mob."

The attorney general also said in his message to the governor:

"Prior to their arrival we took the additional precautionary step of having the FBI notify the police department that these students were coming and asked the police to take all necessary steps for their protection.

"The FBI was informed and in turn notified us that all necessary steps had been taken and that no action on our part was necessary. As a matter of fact, no police were present. However, an armed mob was."

Copies of the three-page telegram were also sent to Floyd Mann, Alabama state safety director, Mayor James Morgan of Birmingham and Mayor Earl James of Montgomery.

Justice Department attorneys, who conferred with both President Kennedy and the attorney general for nearly five hours before sending the telegram, said the government was proceeding under an 1871 statute empowering the president to take any steps he feels necessary to suppress violence in a state.

2 Persons Hurt In Separate Wrecks Saturday

Two persons were injured in separate accidents Saturday in Monroe, police reported.

Joy Beavers, 41, of 1605 Glenmar St., was taken to St. Francis hospital for treatment of injuries she received when her car was struck by a Negro, on North Fifth Street, who was charged with reckless driving at 6:45 a.m. yesterday.

Thirteen-year-old Dee A. Strickland, Jr., 2016 Island Dr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Dee A. Strickland Sr., suffered a broken leg, cuts and bruises when his bicycle was hit by a car on Loop Road.

In the Beavers accident, she was hit by a car going west on Washington Street driven by Horace Geams, 64, Negro of 1701 Adams St. The Beavers car was traveling south on North Fifth Street and police reported that Geams ran a stop light at the Washington - North Fifth streets intersection.

Both cars traveled 25 feet or more after the impact and a city utility pole, a U. S. mailbox and a street sign were damaged in the wreck.

Geams was charged with reckless driving by Monroe police.

In the other accident, Mrs. Billy C. Salley, 32, of 2100 Valencia St. was traveling south on Loop Road when she skidded into the Strickland youth who was riding his bicycle on Loop Road.

Mrs. Salley told police that at 10:40 a.m. yesterday as she was traveling on Loop Road at the intersection of Beloit Street, a car meeting her swerved into her lane in an attempt to pass the bicyclist.

She evidently applied her breaks and began skidding, sliding 48 feet on the blacktop and into the yard at 1923 Loop Road.

The Strickland lad, police reports stated, cut across Loop Road in the path of her car and into the yard at 1923 Loop Road where she struck him approximately four feet from the curb at that address.

He was taken to the St. Francis hospital by Mulhearn's ambulance reportedly suffering from a broken leg. No charges were filed by police.

Molina, a Cuban Castro supporter, was convicted of killing 9-year-old Magdalena Urdaneta in a New York restaurant while Castro was visiting the United Nations last year. The little Venezuelan girl was caught in a crossfire of bullets when Molina and his friends clashed with an anti-Castro group in the restaurant where the child was eating with her parents.

Commenting on the project recommended by Mrs. Roosevelt, Eisenhower and Reuther, Milton Eisenhower said, "The effort is sanctioned by the appropriate federal officials." But he did not elaborate.

Eisenhower went on to say he feels the funds should be supplied privately. "I think nothing should be left undone to save these human lives," he said.

He concluded: "I hope earnestly that Castro will abide by his offer. If he does, I am sure that the American people will gladly provide the funds needed to restore these human beings to freedom."

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Cuban Revolutionary Council has accepted Fidel Castro's offer to trade prisoners for bulldozers.

Dr. Jose Miro Cardona, president of the council in exile, announced from his sick bed Saturday the council would collect contributions from throughout the Americas to buy 500 bulldozers and trade them for prisoners now held in Cuba.

Mixed Group Touches Off Mob Uprising

fore the bus arrived.

Squad cars of police, with sirens screaming, pulled into the bus station parking lot at 10:40 a.m. Order was not restored until almost 1 p.m.

Some of the beaten Negroes had no apparent connection with the "freedom ride." Four Negroes walking along a nearby street were waylaid by angry white men. A group of teen-age white boys poured a flammable liquid on the Negro's clothes and set it afire.

The fire burned out, but the man was left sprawled in the street. One of his companions suffered a broken leg when white men attacked him.

A teen-age white employe of the Montgomery Advertiser - journal, Paschal Pike, was attacked when he tried to enter the bus terminal on an errand. He said he was beaten when he identified himself as a newspaper employe.

One of the injured "freedom riders" was Jim Zwerg, 21, a white theology student from Appleton, Wis. He was beaten, stomped and left semi-conscious for at least 30 minutes before police took him to a hospital. His condition was described as satisfactory.

The segregation-challenging bus ride originated in Nashville early Friday. The group came here after an overnight delay in Birmingham, where another group of "freedom riders" was beaten by a white mob last weekend. That group also ran into trouble at Anniston, Ala., and one bus they were riding was burned.

Two white girls among the riders beaten in Montgomery. They are Susan Wilbur, a student at Peabody College in Nashville, and Susan Hermann, a Fisk University, Nashville, exchange student from Los Angeles.

When the two girls were attacked, they got away from the pursuing crowd, they said, by running first into a church and then into an office building. Police took them into protective custody.

In addition to sending in marshals, federal officials also asked the U. S. District Court in Montgomery to issue injunctions against the Ku Klux Klan, the National States Rights party and other individuals to stop them from interfering with "peaceful interstate travel by bus."

The Justice Department in Washington said it had information that klansmen and other segregationists were moving en masse into the Montgomery area.

President Kennedy also appealed to Alabama officials and the mayors of Montgomery and Birmingham, where violence erupted last weekend, to exercise their authority to quiet the explosive racial situation.

Meanwhile, the "freedom riders" who managed to escape injury were taken to Negro homes to rest while they planned their next move.

French Call Halt To Algiers War

Bella was being transferred from his fortress prison in the Isle d'Aix to a luxurious chateau in the Loire River Valley. Other rebels officials had their detention eased.

The rebel spokesman "took note" of the decision, but said Ben Bella should be "associated with the peace talks" and that much difficulty had arisen on this point. He did not elaborate.

News of the order was received with hope by Algerian Moslems but with bitter indignation by the French settlers.

"We have been sold out," complained one European in Algiers.

In Algiers, troops in combat dress manned gun emplacements to forestall any violent reaction by European settlers. New tension built in Algeria following a night of bomb and grenade explosions in Algiers, a riot in Oran, and bombs in other major cities.

Announcement of the cease-fire was made here by Louis Joxe, French delegation chief.

The rebel delegation, headed by Deputy Premier and Foreign Minister Krim Belkacem, flew in from their Geneva headquarters to a coldly formal greeting by a French official and the long-awaited peace talks began. The first session lasted an hour 40 minutes. Afterward a recess was announced until next Tuesday.

Joxe and Krim in opening statements outlined general views on an Algerian settlement. The statements disclosed areas of disagreement right at the start.

Krim, for example, insisted on Algerian sovereignty over the oil-rich Sahara. The French would like to see some kind of international control over the Sahara by France and the states bordering the vast desert.

At a news conference after the initial session, Joxe said France was prepared to grant Algeria full sovereignty. But, he added, if the Algerians chose to break completely with France, then France would have to take "legitimate precautions" to protect her citizens and her national interests.

Joxe also insisted the Algerian people themselves — through the ballot box — must be the final arbiters. He said one task at Evian was to arrange proper guarantees for such an election. He said the Algerians at the conference table accepted "self - determination" as a valid procedure for settling the long Algerian War.

The transfer of Ben Bella from his fortress prison appeared certain to improve the atmosphere for the talks. Ben Bella and four lieutenants were tricked into capture by the French in 1956 when their plane flying from Rabat to Tunis was forced down in Algiers. The rebel government-in-exile has long demanded to confer by telephone with rebel delegates to Evian.

The Evian talks opened with heavy security forces guarding the conference site and all approaches to the city.

Northern School Segregation Hit

desegregation.

However, he added, "it is common knowledge that racially segregated schools exist in all of the great cities of the North and West where large concentrations of negroes and other minorities are found."

"School boards by inaction," he continued, "can create problems of unequal educational opportunity in the north and the west as well as in the South.

"There is a paradox here. In the South segregation of schools was established and maintained by state law. For this reason it was reached directly by the Brown case which held that compulsory racial segregation in public schools was of itself a denial of equal protection of the law.

"By contrast, in the North, proving that segregation is the result of official action is difficult indeed. Rarely have compulsory segregation laws been in effect.

"Thus, in the North, unless one can show overt action, the only way to reach segregation is to prove specifically the inferiority of the segregated school in teacher-pupil ratio, teaching staff or other tangible factors."

checks $2 a month came under heavy House fire as an offshoot of protests against an $850,000 appropriation to build a million-dollar executive mansion. The governor withdrew the mansion appropriation.

Negro Prisoner Dies In Sleep

A 47-year-old Negro prisoner died in his sleep early Saturday morning from a heart attack in the city jail, Monroe Chief of Police James C. Kelly Jr. said yesterday.

Jerry Lewis Jr., who was jailed May 18 for disturbing the peace by public drunkenness, was pronounced dead from a heart attack by Ouachita Parish coroner Dr. John Burton yesterday.

Police said that his family was notified and the local Veteran's Administrator was also notified as he was a disabled veteran. The body was taken to Hunter's Funeral Home in Monroe.

Action Taken On Orders Of Kennedys

representative of the President, was injured when he attempted to aid one of the bus riders.

In his statement, President Kennedy said he "would . . . hope that any person, whether a citizen of Alabama or a visitor there, would refrain from any action which would in any way tend to provoke further outbreaks."

The President said he hoped state and local officials in Alabama "will meet their responsibilities."

He added: "The United States intends to meet its."

His statement did not say what steps the government might take. The answer came shortly thereafter from the Justice Department.

The President and the attorney general acted after receiving reports that local police in Montgomery failed to act in time to prevent Negroes and whites traveling on a "freedom tour" from being beaten by white mobs.

The federal action was announced by the attorney general in a telegram to Alabama Gov. John Patterson, copies of which were released to newsmen here.

Kennedy reminded the governor that earlier in the week he had offered federal assistance to protect the "freedom riders" if Patterson felt it was necessary. The "freedom riders," a group of Negroes and whites, have been attempting to ride buses on an integrated basis.

In connection with the federal offer to provide protection, Kennedy told the governor: "You stated that this was unnecessary and that you and the local authorities would be completely able to handle every contingency."

"It was based on this assurance of safe conduct that the students boarded the bus in Birmingham on the trip to Montgomery. They arrived in Montgomery and were attacked and beaten by a mob."

The attorney general also said in his message to the governor:

"Prior to their arrival we took the additional precautionary step of having the FBI notify the police department that these students were coming and asked the police to take all necessary steps for their protection.

"The FBI was informed and in turn notified us that all necessary steps had been taken and that no action on our part was necessary. As a matter of fact, no police were present. However, an armed mob was."

Copies of the three-page telegram were also sent to Floyd Mann, Alabama state safety director, Mayor James Morgan of Birmingham and Mayor Earl James of Montgomery.

Justice Department attorneys, who conferred with both President Kennedy and the attorney general for nearly five hours before sending the telegram, said the government was proceeding under an 1871 statute empowering the president to take any steps he feels necessary to suppress violence in a state.

2 Persons Hurt In Separate Wrecks Saturday

Two persons were injured in separate accidents Saturday in Monroe, police reported.

Joy Beavers, 41, of 1605 Glenmar St., was taken to St. Francis hospital for treatment of injuries she received when her car was struck by a Negro, on North Fifth Street, who was charged with reckless driving at 6:45 a.m. yesterday.

Thirteen-year-old Dee A. Strickland, Jr., 2016 Island Dr., son of Dr. and Mrs. Dee A. Strickland Sr., suffered a broken leg, cuts and bruises when his bicycle was hit by a car on Loop Road.

In the Beavers accident, she was hit by a car going west on Washington Street driven by Horace Geams, 64, Negro of 1701 Adams St. The Beavers car was traveling south on North Fifth Street and police reported that Geams ran a stop light at the Washington - North Fifth streets intersection.

Both cars traveled 25 feet or more after the impact and a city utility pole, a U. S. mailbox and a street sign were damaged in the wreck.

Geams was charged with reckless driving by Monroe police.

In the other accident, Mrs. Billy C. Salley, 32, of 2100 Valencia St. was traveling south on Loop Road when she skidded into the Strickland youth who was riding his bicycle on Loop Road.

Mrs. Salley told police that at 10:40 a.m. yesterday as she was traveling on Loop Road at the intersection of Beloit Street, a car meeting her swerved into her lane in an attempt to pass the bicyclist.

She evidently applied her breaks and began skidding, sliding 48 feet on the blacktop and into the yard at 1923 Loop Road.

The Strickland lad, police reports stated, cut across Loop Road in the path of her car and into the yard at 1923 Loop Road where she struck him approximately four feet from the curb at that address.

He was taken to the St. Francis hospital by Mulhearn's ambulance reportedly suffering from a broken leg. No charges were filed by police.

MY ANSWER

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Should divorced persons who remarry while the party of the first marriage is still living be admitted to the church? K A..

ANSWER: It depends on the circumstances! Christ, our Lord, said to a woman who had been caught in the very act of adultery, "Neither do I condemn thee; go thy way and sin no more." If Christ could forgive a person who was a moral failure, so should we. Remember, divorce is the result of "failure" — and the people who Jesus helped and used were failures of one kind or another. Peter, who "toiled all night and had caught nothing"; Zacheus, a social failure, hated and despised by his townsmen; the woman at Jacob's well, who had been married five times; and Mary Magdalene, a scarlet woman.

The important thing is this: are you now, regardless of the past, prepared to follow Christ? His words to the adulteress: "Go thy way and sin no more," delineate his terms for discipleship. If we are willing to break with the sordid past, and "sin no more," we may be identified with Christ.

For anyone to refuse fellowship with a person who has failed in any area of life . . . if they are now willing to follow Christ sincerely, is the height of hypocrisy, and is not worthy of the name Christian.

115 SURVIVE DISASTER

MANILA (AP) — A Philippine navy patrol craft brought into port Saturday 115 survivors of the sinking of a fishing boat.

The skipper of the 100-ton De la Paz said all aboard were rescued by a Formosan ship when the vessel went down in the South China Sea Wednesday.

Negro Charged With Murder

HATTIESBURG, Miss. (AP) — Authorities charged Will Stuart, 69 - year - old Hattiesburg Negro, with murder Saturday in the shooting of his 73-year-old son-in-law, Harry Morris.

The Stuarts and the Morrises shared the same home.

Stuart told officers Morris kept digging up everything planted in a garden at their home.

Police said Stuart fired three times with a pistol at Morris in the house, missing each time. Then, while Stuart was reloading, Morris got his own pistol and the two exchanged fire, and this time Morris was hit.

"Dear Eunice,

"I am making a dress of a very open embroidered eyelet material. There are actually empty spaces in it. I don't see how I can sew the seams together.

"My daughter wants me to make her a pair of summer slacks that are made of an open weave cotton lace. We have seen these ready made and they are very expensive. The ready-made ones are lined. If I should use lining for both of these garments, please tell me what kind to use?"

Mrs. R. F.

LINE EYELET

Dear Mrs. R. F.:

Both fabrics you have described would look better if they were completely lined. In this way you will have the same color showing throughout the garment.

It would be very attractive to use a bright colored, fine cotton such as polished cotton for this lining. You would baste each piece of lining to the wrong side of your eyelet or lace fabric, now treat as one piece.

A cummerbund or tie-belt would be an attractive accessory made out of your lining fabric. If you are making a skirt, shorts or slacks, you might consider using the plain colored fabric for a blouse. This will tie the whole ensemble together nicely.

STITCH APPLIQUE

"Dear Eunice,

"When I see an applique used on ready made clothes, the edges seem to be sewed on with a zig-zag machine stitch. The edges of the applique look so neat, but when I try to do this with my sewing machine, the edges curl up and twist and I can't get them to look professional. Also, please tell me how to make them look puffy like the ready to wear clothes look."

Mrs. Sue B.

Dear Mrs. Sue B.:

Try not cuttin the design out on the edges, but leave roughly ½" extra around all edges. Now zig-zag the applique onto your garment at the edge of the design, not the edge of your fabric. After it has been stitched on, you may carefully cut away the excess fabric close to the machine stitching.

To make it look puffy, you must fill the design with nylon yarn which is threaded through the wrong side of the garment and cut off at each edge of your design. The yarn will stay inside the design and make it stand up and give it a three-dimension look.

MARKS ON VELVET

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"Is there anything that will take the stitching marks from velvet? The skirt of my dress had to be let out, leaving the marks."

Mrs. C. S.

Dear Mrs. C S.:

I'm afraid there is nothing that will successfully remove these marks completely. The pile of the fabric has been flattened from the machine stitching and pressing.

You may try steaming the seam and also pressing it on a Velvet Board if one is available.

SEWING GLOSSARY:

Applique:

This is graduation week in Twin-City schools.

In the three schools in Monroe, Ouachita, Neville, and St. Mathews — a valedictorian and salutatorian — were selected, based on the best grade average.

West Monroe, due to a new grading system, does not name a valedictorian and salutatorian for its graduating class.

Here are the valedictorians and salutatorians for the three Monroe schools:

Ouachita High — valedictorian —Grace Cascio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard F. Cascio, 1400 Jackson Street.

U.S. Banks Cut Rates On Home Loans

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's drive to reduce home mortgage interest rates as a spur to home-building seemed to be gaining ground Saturday.

Three of the country's 11 regional federal home loan banks have cut their lending rates in the past 48 hours. Reductions by other banks are expected Monday and possibly others will follow suit later.

The actions lower the cost of money borrowed from the banks by savings and loan associations in their areas. The loan associations in turn, may pass the savings on to prospective home-buyers by reducing their mortgage charges.

"It looks like a trend," a bank board spokesman said.

Despite an apparently ample supply of mortgage money and slack demand for new dwellings, interest rates so far have yielded only slightly and sluggishly to combined pressure from the President, the Treasury and the new chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, Joseph P. McMurray.

McMurray's well-publicized effort in mid-March to persuade the savings and loan industry to reduce rates—by cutting the dividends they pay their savings depositors—had some initial success. It appears to have bogged down, however, because of the expectation in the industry that the business recovery will bring a general firming of interest rates.

The new approach, a campaign by McMurray and Secretary of Treasury Douglas Dillon to persuade the federal home loan banks to reduce their interest charge on loans made to the savings associations, appears now to be faring better.

A reduction in this rate can have on the mortgage market an effect somewhat similar to the impact on bank lending rates when the Federal Reserve Board reduces its discount rate.

House Hearing Set On Military Buying

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House investigators unveiled Saturday a "chamber of horrors" where the feature attraction was a metal washer costing half a cent.

That is, it cost a business man half a cent. He sold it to the armed forces for two cents. And since there were 2 million of them involved in the deal, that made a considerable difference.

And why did the government buy, without shopping around or asking for bids? Because it was found "impracticable" to seek competition as the law otherwise would require.

The half-cent washer that cost taxpayers two cents was among scores of aircraft replacement parts — nuts, bolts, bearings, battery cables — adorning walls of a house armed services hearing room. This is where a subcommittee Wednesday will start asking why the military bought these and other thousands of common items from a "sole source" supplier instead of by competitive bids.

In so doing, the subcommittee will charge, Uncle Sam paid an average 50 per cent more than he should have to keep his shopping bag filled.

Apparently only one firm in the land could whip up a canvas bag to hang over the intake of an idle jet engine. The negotiated price for the bag was $16. Same way with a two-inch steel bolt, with hexagonal head. It cost the taxpayers $2.50, and the subcommittee hates to think how many bolts were bought at that price before somebody discovered competitive bidding.

When they did, the price dropped to 12 cents.

Speech Class To Be Offered During Summer

A class in beginning speech correction will be offered at Northeast Louisiana State College this summer. The three-credit-hour course is scheduled to meet at 8:00 a.m. Mondays through Fridays.

Teaching the class will be Ed Rynes, Speech and Hearing Consultant for the college Special Education Center. Rynes is a certified member of the American Speech and Hearing Association and the American Association for Cleft Palate Rehabilitation. He serves on the Executive Council of the Louisiana Speech and Hearing Association and is Director of Public Relations for the Louisiana Laryngectomee Association.

A graduate of Ohio University and Louisiana State University, Rynes also studied and gained clinical experience at George Washington University, University of Miami, Tulane, and the State University of Iowa. He was awarded three U.S. government grants for specialized training in esophageal speech, aphasia, and cleft palate rehabilitation.

Rynes said the course is designed to meet the needs of teachers or prospective teachers in the elementary and secondary schools. It will survey the common defects of speech, help teachers to treat those defects that can be handled in the classroom or with a small amount of individual attention, and aid them in recognizing those problems which should be referred to professional therapists.

Rynes added that the class will also be applicable to parents of speech-defective children and to students whose major interests are distributed among speech correction, general speech psychology, child welfare, premedicine, predentistry, nursing, and other areas.

Ratterman Case Takes New Turn

NEWPORT, Ky. (UPI)—Charges against George Ratterman growing out of the former football player's arrest in a hotel room with a striptease dancer were dismissed Saturday by the prosecutor who said startling new developments required the matter be turned over to a grand jury.

The dismissal came shortly after Ratterman produced a surprise witness who testified he had been asked three weeks before Ratterman's arrest to take pictures of a man and woman in the hotel where Ratterman was arrested.

The photographer, Thomas Withrow, 36, said he was approached by the attorney who later represented the dancer found in the room with Ratterman. Withrow did not mention any names and said he did not take any pictures.

"But when I found out about Ratterman I must have said something out loud like, 'Oh boy, what I almost got into.'"

A few minutes later city prosecutor Thomas Hirschfeld said that if he had known about the photographer, he would have referred the matter to a grand jury instead of bringing it to trial in police court.

Bedlam broke loose in the packed courtroom with the people surging forward to congratulate Ratterman who is running as a reform candidate for sheriff pledged to clean up this city long known as being wide open.

The former Notre Dame and Cleveland Browns football player has maintained since his arrest May 9 that he was drugged and put into the room with the dancer, known professionally as April Flowers, to discredit his campaign for sheriff. He also insisted police ripped off his trousers when he was arrested.

A federal grand jury will look into the Ratterman case in Lexington, Ky., Monday with the dancer, who testified so glibly during the trial but refused to cooperate with FBI agents investigating the matter, called as the first witness.

Richwood High Services Slated

Graduation exercises of Richwood Negro High School (formerly Terzia High School) will be held today at 5 p.m. in the Swayze Elementary School Auditorium. The commencement address will be given by Dr. Floyd L. Sandle, head of the drama department at Grambling College, to the 53 graduates.

James Robinson is the valedictorian of the class and Willie M. Barber is the salutatorian.

The annual musical program of the junior and senior choirs and the band of Richwood will be held Monday at 8 p.m. in the Swayze Auditorium. Mrs. M. Y. Napoleon, music teacher and Z. Johnson, band director, stated that this year's program should be one of the best in many years.

JFK Action Possible On Joint Chiefs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The time is fast approaching when President Kennedy must either voice confidence in the U.S. joints of staff or fire them.

That view was rampant Saturday in the Defense Department, where there were increasing signs of troubled relations between professional military men and the new civilian leadership.

The immediate but not the only issue was the running fire of criticism of the military leaders' role in the Cuban invasion fiasco. The criticism has been attributed to anonymous sources.

The role of the military leaders has not been made known publicly in any detail. Critics within the new administration do not speak for direct quotation.

But there seems to be a steady effort in some quarters to shift the main burden of blame from the Central Intelligence Agency to the joint chiefs of staff.

Defense Secretary Roebrt S. McNanara, who has demanded sharply that military men fully support his policies once he decides on them, has greeted the criticism with silence.

In Pentagon corridors there is beginning to be talk of the need for loyalty-down as well as loyalty-up. That is military jargon meaning that leaders not only are entitled to full support from subordinates but must return it.

One critic who has not chosen anonymity is Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., who said Friday the joint chiefs should be replaced by "new, wiser and abler men."

Gore made the statement after a closed-door hearing of the Senate Latin America subcommittee on the Pentagon's role in the invasion flop. Senate colleagues gave him no immediate support. In fact, subcommittee chairman Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said after hearing Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer chairman of the joint chiefs, that he had "complete confidence" in the chiefs.

The White House said it had no comment on Gore's statement, however, and McNamara apparently ignored it. This stirred new uneasiness in professional military circles.

VOTE AGAINST DANCING

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI)—By an overwhelming margin, the Vermont House voted down a bill to allow Sunday dancing, now forbidden by the ancient blue laws.

The House rejected the measure Thursday 189-36, even with an amendment to allow Sunday dancing only after 2 p.m. and only at fraternal and service clubs or hotels where there is no charge.

AT SUMMIT MEET

JFK, Khrushchev May Talk Bluntly

WASHINGTON (UPI) —When President Kennedy sits down with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in Vienna June 4, there's a good chance the conversation will be rather blunt on both sides.

Khrushchev's capacity for blandishment quickly shifting to bombast is well known. Kennedy, after 14 years in Congress before entering the White House, is no stranger to harsh words. But he'll find himself in a vastly new arena when he meets the Soviet leader.

Kennedy can be expected to be civil but since he wants to show Khrushchev that America's new leadership is forceful, he approaches Vienna in no mood to take a lot of verbal punishment.

The President sized up Khrushchev during last year's election campaign. In a speech at Baltimore Sept. 16, he said of the Soviet Premier:

"He is shrewd, he is vigorous, he is informed and he is competent. He is not putting on an act when he talks about the inevitable triumph of the Communist system, for this is what he believes and this is what he is determined to achieve, and this is what we in this nation are equally determined to prevent."

The address was one of Kennedy's more carefully put together speeches of the campaign. It was unusual in that he stuck closely to his prepared text, a rarity for him during the political fight.

At the time of the speech, Khrushchev had just come to the United Nations in New York and Kennedy directed much of the speech at the Russian.

"You and your Chinese friends in particular talk of peace only while you work to undermine it," he said. "To rail against colonialism while holding an iron empire in your grasp, all the way from East Berlin to Viet Nam in the half circle, is to achieve new heights of hypocrisy."

Kennedy had two other thoughts for Khrushchev in the same speech:

"This country is still far from fitting your description of a senile, capitalistic system that is about to collapse into the ground ...while you may learn on occasion to bring a man back from outer space alive, you rarely bring them back from Siberia."

On Nov. 2, just before the close of the campaign, Kennedy told an audience in San Diego, Calif.: "I want Mr. Khrushchev to know that a new generation of Americans who fought in Italy and in Europe, who fought in the Pacific for freedom in World War II, is going to fight in the 1960s for the defense of freedom in the U.S. and all around the world."

There was no reason to believe today, two weeks before he meets Khrushchev, that the President has changed these opinions.

DETECTIVE DUBIOUS

Waiter Reports Kidnaping Plot

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A Las Vegas waiter says he and two other waiters plotted two years ago to kidnap two of Elizabeth Taylor's children. A car smashup intervened, he told Sheriff Ralph Lamb.

Officers said the informant, whom they did not identify, expressed fear his former confederates planned a renewed attempt during the actress' current visit here.

Half a million dollars ransom was to have been demanded, the informant said.

Detective Jerry Brown said he was dubious about many points in the story, and another waiter supposed to have been involved denied any knowledge of such a plot. The third is reported working now in Oakland, Calif.

Her three children were expected to arrive from Los Angeles over the weekend, but Lamb and Brown said no particular official precautions are planned.

The informant went to the sheriff, he said, after hearing that the other man still in Las Vegas had bought a pistol and a typewriter recently.

He expressed concern the typewriter might be used to type a ransom note. Brown said deputies searched the man's house without success and said he denied such purchases.

The plot, Brown said, was to abduct the youngsters while Miss Taylor was living in 1959 on a $500-a-week ranch in Paradise Valley south of Las Vegas.

She lived there, with her three children, a valet and a nurse, while Fisher completed his six months' residence requirements for a Nevada divorce from Debbie Reynolds.

The informant told Brown he backed out of the plan early. He had been scheduled to be a "baby sitter" for the children after they were kidnaped.

Shortly before the trap was to have sprung, the other two were involved in a car accident and the plan abandoned, officers were told.

The investigation is considered closed, Brown said, and there are no plans to question the third alleged participant in Oakland. No arrests are expected due to lack of evidence.

The sheriff's informant gave no details on the actual abduction plot.

HELPERS NEEDED

CINCINNATI (AP) — The nation is not so much lacking in scientists and engineers as in competently educated personnel to work with such specialists, says Dr. G. Ross Henninger, president of the Ohio College of Applied Science and the Ohio Mechanics Institute.

"On the basis of American industry's need," Henninger claims, "there should have ben 111,000 engineering technicians graduated last June to balance the 33,000 graduate engineers."

Actually, Henninger says, only 11,000 engineering technicians were graduated from accredited or acceptable technical institutes.

Accidents Take Lives Of Three In Mississippi

By United Press International

Three Mississippians were killed in traffic accidents in the opening hours of the weekend. Each accident involved only one car.

Mervin Burns of Belzoni, a young father of two, was killed early Saturday when a car crashed into a bridge abutment on a rural road near Belzoni. Three other occupants of the car were injured.

Hubert Bentley, 21, of Belmont died when his car ran off an embankment late Friday night.

Howard Anthony, a 6-year-old Negro boy, was killed when he ran into the path of a car 12 miles east of Meridian.

A freak accident on a rural road near Meridian claimed one life shortly before the weekend count began at 6 p.m. Friday. Robert E. Null, a 40-year-old Meridian man, was found dead near his wrecked pulpwood truck. Officers said he apparently was thrown from the truck, then run over by the driverless vehicle.

'Abolition' Film To Be Shown By Birch Society

"Operation Abolition," a film depicting the May, 1960, San Francisco riots against the House un-American Activities Committee, will be shown here Tuesday night by the local chapter of the John Birch Society.

Rev. H. L. Druskell, chapter leader, said Saturday that Dallas Wales of Shreveport, area coordinator for the society, will bring the film with him and be present at the meeting.

The film centers around student demonstrations against the committee which was holding hearings in San Francisco at the time.

The House Committee has charged that the riots were communist-inspired.

The film will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in the ballroom of the Virginia Hotel and will be open to the public.

CHARGES DROPPED

Ratterman Case Takes New Turn

NEWPORT, Ky. (UPI)—Charges against George Ratterman growing out of the former football player's arrest in a hotel room with a striptease dancer were dismissed Saturday by the prosecutor who said startling new developments required the matter be turned over to a grand jury.

The dismissal came shortly after Ratterman produced a surprise witness who testified he had been asked three weeks before Ratterman's arrest to take pictures of a man and woman in the hotel where Ratterman was arrested.

The photographer, Thomas Withrow, 36, said he was approached by the attorney who later represented the dancer found in the room with Ratterman. Withrow did not mention any names and said he did not take any pictures.

"But when I found out about Ratterman I must have said something out loud like, 'Oh boy, what I almost got into.'"

A few minutes later city prosecutor Thomas Hirschfeld said that if he had known about the photographer, he would have referred the matter to a grand jury instead of bringing it to trial in police court.

Bedlam broke loose in the packed courtroom with the people surging forward to congratulate Ratterman who is running as a reform candidate for sheriff pledged to clean up this city long known as being wide open.

The former Notre Dame and Cleveland Browns football player has maintained since his arrest May 9 that he was drugged and put into the room with the dancer, known professionally as April Flowers, to discredit his campaign for sheriff. He also insisted police ripped off his trousers when he was arrested.

A federal grand jury will look into the Ratterman case in Lexington, Ky., Monday with the dancer, who testified so glibly during the trial but refused to cooperate with FBI agents investigating the matter, called as the first witness.

JFK Action Possible On Joint Chiefs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The time is fast approaching when President Kennedy must either voice confidence in the U.S. joints of staff or fire them.

That view was rampant Saturday in the Defense Department, where there were increasing signs of troubled relations between professional military men and the new civilian leadership.

The immediate but not the only issue was the running fire of criticism of the military leaders' role in the Cuban invasion fiasco. The criticism has been attributed to anonymous sources.

The role of the military leaders has not been made known publicly in any detail. Critics within the new administration do not speak for direct quotation.

But there seems to be a steady effort in some quarters to shift the main burden of blame from the Central Intelligence Agency to the joint chiefs of staff.

Defense Secretary Roebrt S. McNanara, who has demanded sharply that military men fully support his policies once he decides on them, has greeted the criticism with silence.

In Pentagon corridors there is beginning to be talk of the need for loyalty-down as well as loyalty-up. That is military jargon meaning that leaders not only are entitled to full support from subordinates but must return it.

One critic who has not chosen anonymity is Sen. Albert Gore, D-Tenn., who said Friday the joint chiefs should be replaced by "new, wiser and abler men."

Gore made the statement after a closed-door hearing of the Senate Latin America subcommittee on the Pentagon's role in the invasion flop. Senate colleagues gave him no immediate support. In fact, subcommittee chairman Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said after hearing Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer chairman of the joint chiefs, that he had "complete confidence" in the chiefs.

The White House said it had no comment on Gore's statement, however, and McNamara apparently ignored it. This stirred new uneasiness in professional military circles.

VOTE AGAINST DANCING

MONTPELIER, Vt. (UPI)—By an overwhelming margin, the Vermont House voted down a bill to allow Sunday dancing, now forbidden by the ancient blue laws.

The House rejected the measure Thursday 189-36, even with an amendment to allow Sunday dancing only after 2 p.m. and only at fraternal and service clubs or hotels where there is no charge.

AT SUMMIT MEET

JFK, Khrushchev May Talk Bluntly

WASHINGTON (UPI) —When President Kennedy sits down with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev in Vienna June 4, there's a good chance the conversation will be rather blunt on both sides.

Khrushchev's capacity for blandishment quickly shifting to bombast is well known. Kennedy, after 14 years in Congress before entering the White House, is no stranger to harsh words. But he'll find himself in a vastly new arena when he meets the Soviet leader.

Kennedy can be expected to be civil but since he wants to show Khrushchev that America's new leadership is forceful, he approaches Vienna in no mood to take a lot of verbal punishment.

The President sized up Khrushchev during last year's election campaign. In a speech at Baltimore Sept. 16, he said of the Soviet Premier:

"He is shrewd, he is vigorous, he is informed and he is competent. He is not putting on an act when he talks about the inevitable triumph of the Communist system, for this is what he believes and this is what he is determined to achieve, and this is what we in this nation are equally determined to prevent."

The address was one of Kennedy's more carefully put together speeches of the campaign. It was unusual in that he stuck closely to his prepared text, a rarity for him during the political fight.

At the time of the speech, Khrushchev had just come to the United Nations in New York and Kennedy directed much of the speech at the Russian.

"You and your Chinese friends in particular talk of peace only while you work to undermine it," he said. "To rail against colonialism while holding an iron empire in your grasp, all the way from East Berlin to Viet Nam in the half circle, is to achieve new heights of hypocrisy."

Kennedy had two other thoughts for Khrushchev in the same speech:

"This country is still far from fitting your description of a senile, capitalistic system that is about to collapse into the ground ...while you may learn on occasion to bring a man back from outer space alive, you rarely bring them back from Siberia."

On Nov. 2, just before the close of the campaign, Kennedy told an audience in San Diego, Calif.: "I want Mr. Khrushchev to know that a new generation of Americans who fought in Italy and in Europe, who fought in the Pacific for freedom in World War II, is going to fight in the 1960s for the defense of freedom in the U.S. and all around the world."

There was no reason to believe today, two weeks before he meets Khrushchev, that the President has changed these opinions.

Accidents Take Lives Of Three In Mississippi

By United Press International

Three Mississippians were killed in traffic accidents in the opening hours of the weekend. Each accident involved only one car.

Mervin Burns of Belzoni, a young father of two, was killed early Saturday when a car crashed into a bridge abutment on a rural road near Belzoni. Three other occupants of the car were injured.

Hubert Bentley, 21, of Belmont died when his car ran off an embankment late Friday night.

Howard Anthony, a 6-year-old Negro boy, was killed when he ran into the path of a car 12 miles east of Meridian.

A freak accident on a rural road near Meridian claimed one life shortly before the weekend count began at 6 p.m. Friday. Robert E. Null, a 40-year-old Meridian man, was found dead near his wrecked pulpwood truck. Officers said he apparently was thrown from the truck, then run over by the driverless vehicle.

'Abolition' Film To Be Shown By Birch Society

"Operation Abolition," a film depicting the May, 1960, San Francisco riots against the House un-American Activities Committee, will be shown here Tuesday night by the local chapter of the John Birch Society.

Rev. H. L. Driskell, chapter leader, said Saturday that Dallas Wales of Shreveport, area coordinator for the society, will bring the film with him and be present at the meeting.

The film centers around student demonstrations against the committee which was holding hearings in San Francisco at the time.

The House Committee has charged that the riots were communist-inspired.

The film will be shown at 7:30 p.m. in the ballroom of the Virginia Hotel and will be open to the public.

DETECTIVE DUBIOUS

Waiter Reports Kidnaping Plot

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—A Las Vegas waiter says he and two other waiters plotted two years ago to kidnap two of Elizabeth Taylor's children. A car smashup intervened, he told Sheriff Ralph Lamb.

Officers said the informant, whom they did not identify, expressed fear his former confederates planned a renewed attempt during the actress' current visit here.

Half a million dollars ransom was to have been demanded, the informant said.

Detective Jerry Brown said he was dubious about many points in the story, and another waiter supposed to have been involved denied any knowledge of such a plot. The third is reported working now in Oakland, Calif.

Her three children were expected to arrive from Los Angeles over the weekend, but Lamb and Brown said no particular official precautions are planned.

The informant went to the sheriff, he said, after hearing that the other man still in Las Vegas had bought a pistol and a typewriter recently.

He expressed concern the typewriter might be used to type a ransom note. Brown said deputies searched the man's house without success and said he denied such purchases.

The plot, Brown said, was to abduct the youngsters while Miss Taylor was living in 1959 on a $500-a-week ranch in Paradise Valley south of Las Vegas.

She lived there, with her three children, a valet and a nurse, while Fisher completed his six months' residence requirements for a Nevada divorce from Debbie Reynolds.

The informant told Brown he backed out of the plan early. He had been scheduled to be a "baby sitter" for the children after they were kidnaped.

Shortly before the trap was to have sprung, the other two were involved in a car accident and the plan abandoned, officers were told.

The investigation is considered closed, Brown said, and there are no plans to question the third alleged participant in Oakland. No arrests are expected due to lack of evidence.

The sheriff's informant gave no details on the actual abduction plot.

HELPERS NEEDED

CINCINNATI (AP) — The nation is not so much lacking in scientists and engineers as in competently educated personnel to work with such specialists, says Dr. G. Ross Henninger, president of the Ohio College of Applied Science and the Ohio Mechanics Institute.

"On the basis of American industry's need," Henninger claims, "there should have ben 114,000 engineering technicians graduated last June to balance the 38,000 graduate engineers."

Actually, Henninger says, only 11,000 engineering technicians were graduated from accredited or acceptable technical institutes.

FANT TO SPEAK

Graduation Set For Northeast

Mayor Clyde E. Fant of Shreveport will address the graduating class of Northeast Louisiana State College at commencement exercises on May 29 at 6:30 on the lawn of the president's home.

Following the ceremonies, a reception will be held for graduates and their friends.

Fant is serving as mayor for the third time. Prior to his first election to the post, he was appointed commissioner of public utilities in 1944.

For three consecutive years, he was elected president of the Louisiana Municipal Association, and was named "Mayor of the Year" in Louisiana in 1953. The following year, he was made a life member of the board of directors of the association.

In 1954 Fant became the first individual to receive the Shreveport Advertising Club's annual award, "Shreveport's Best Ad," and award made to the person or institution bringing to Shreveport the most favorable publicity during the year.

He was a member of the Board of Trustees of the United States Conference of Mayors for three years, and attended the World Conference of Mayors at the Hague in 1948.

Fant is a graduate of what is now East Texas Baptist College, and he received from that institution in 1960 the honorary degree of doctor of laws.

He started his career as a teacher, later moving to Shreveport where he has resided more than twenty-five years.

During this period he has served as a member of the board of directors of the Broadmoor Baptist Church for seventeen years, and for seven years as chairman of the board. He is past president of the Broadmoor Kiwanis Club, a recipient of the Silver Beaver Award from the Boy Scouts of America, and a York Rite and Scottish Rite Mason. He has participated in every major civic drive in Shreveport.

Mayor Fant is married to the former Margaret Moos. They have two sons, Clyde Jr., a Baptist minister, and Jack, a law student.

FISCAL 1961-62

PAR Views State Spending For Year

BATON ROUGE (Staff Special) —Reporting on state expenditures for the coming fiscal year of $358 million up 9.4 per cent from the estimated 1960-61 level —the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) made the following points:

1. Total spending will be about $14 million above the amount reported in the executive budget when some self-supporting expenditure items are included and additions made for some dedicated fund use.

2. Education spending will amount to $283 million, which is 33 per cent of the total budget and nearly 43 per cent of spending from state funds only. Education expenditures from state funds are estimated at 7.7 per cent over the current level.

3. Public welfare spending will reach $185 million, including federal funds, which would be an increase of 10 per cent.

4. Personnel increases are being recommended though there may be little or no increase in the work load in some of the agencies.

Explaining its higher estimate on spending, PAR said teacher retirement costs are expected to be $1.1 million more than shown in the executive budget and that dedications to local government are likely to be $2.6 million higher. These would have to be financed from regular revenue sources.

Additionally, PAR reported estimated expenditures for the division of employment security of $4.1 million; wildlife and fisheries, $2.5 million; LSU from fees, gifts and federal funds, $3.5 million, and chain store tax to local governments, $500,000. Federal funds will be received for the division of employment security and special funds will be received by wildlife and fisheries.

Major expenditures listed for education were public schools, $208 million; higher education, $62.4 million; trade and special schools, $7.8 million; and grants-in-aid for private schooling, $4.9 million.

Expenditures for welfare from state funds are estimated at $64.5 million of the $185 million total. This represents an increase of 4.7 per cent in spending from state funds.

The major changes in the welfare program for next fiscal year are listed by PAR as "(1) a sizeable increase in the program of medical vendor payments on behalf of old age assistance (OAA) recipients, and (2) the institution of a program of medical aid to aged persons who are not on the old age assistance rolls." A major portion (72 per cent) of the cost of these programs will be borne by the federal government.

Several examples of proposed personnel increases without showing an additonal workload or any substantial increase in the workload were cited by PAR on the basis of data in the executive budget.

Among examples cited were:

1. A request of New Orleans Charity Hospital for 277 additional employees up 7.5 per cent—with an increase in patient service units estimatel at only three-tenths of one per cent.

2. A six per cent increase in staff sought for Confederate Memorial Hospital in Shreveport though patient service units are expected to decline by two per cent.

3. Some increases for higher education institutions, though for the past two years enrollments have not totalled the amounts planned for in budgets for those years. Among institutions budgeting an increase in personnel but which have not had enrollment increases in the past year in line with budget estimates for the year are Francis T. Nicholls, Northeast State College, and the University of Southwestern Louisiana.

Applications Being Taken For Dormitories

Applications are now being received for rooms in the men and women's dormitories, including the two recently completed air conditioned structures at Northeast Louisiana State College for the summer and fall session, it was announced today by Dr. Fred J. Vozel, dean of student services.

All male and female students under 21 years of age registering at Northeast for the first time, who are not living at home or with relatives, are requested to reside in the dormitories, Vozel said.

Dormitories will open at 1 p.m. on June 5 for the summer session. Students applying for a room are asked to mail to the dean of student services a $10 deposit fee either by check or money order along with the room application form. This room deposit will be held until the student no longer desires a room.

The summer rate in the men and women's residence hall total $123. This includes meals in Gunby Hall, the new air conditioned dining hall. The rate during the regular semester in the women's residence halls range from $60-76 for rent and $170 for meals. The total averages $230-$246. In the men's residence halls the rent is from $44-76. The meals are $170 and the total ranges from $214-246.

AFTER DERAILMENT

Area Evacuated In Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Three railroad tank cars derailed here Saturday, spilling hot liquid asphalt in one car over another containing 30,000 gallons of ethyl ether.

The ether car broke from its wheel base and rolled against a building. The hot asphalt car ruptured and spilled over it.

Ethyl ether is an inflammable liquid used for cleaning industrial equipment. The shipment had been sent from an oil refining plant at Baton rouge.

City police and sheriff's deputies evacuated residents from the immediate area of the derailment.

Firemen from atop an adjacent building played streams of water on the overturned car containing the ether, which did not break open.

The car containing the hot asphalt mix was derailed but remained in an upright position. One end was ruptured.

"It's a serious thing," said city police inspector R. S. Trigg. "We are extremely worried, even though we think we've got the tar cooled off now."

A 250-ton train wrecker was expected to arrive to try to remove the ether car from the ruptured asphalt car.

"That's going to be the really critical time," Trigg said. "We don't know what's going to happen when they try to move it."

Kefauver Seeks Tougher Curbs On Price Fixers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Estes Kefauver is drafting legislation which could send top echelon industry officials to jail for negligence in permitting price-riggers to operate within their company.

The Tennessee Democrat, it was learned Saturday, wants to pin responsibility for violations of the antitrust laws on the high command of American industry—corporation presidents and board members.

He believes the threat of penalties is the best way to make company higher-ups "go to the front line" and find out whether subordinates are meeting secretly with competitors to fix prices or allocate markets.

Another batch of Kefauver bills being circulated to other senators would:

Under certain conditions make identical prices on sealed secret bids on made-to-order equipment prima facie evidence of collusion to violate the antitrust statutes.

Increase maximum fines for antitrust violations from $50,000 to $100,000 and set three to six months as the minimum jail sentence.

Electric Co-ops
Help the Buying Public By Enabling More Efficient Farm Production At Lower Costs

T. C. COLVIN, Noble Community, using electric debeaker to prevent cannibalism.

Rural Electrification Helps Your Pocketbook

This novel debeaking machine, automatic watering and automatic feeders circulating food among his 27,000 future laying hens cut production costs drastically . . . and save the consuming public many dollars at food counters. Adequate power at reasonable rates is essential to farmers everywhere. . . and to the nation's foodbasket.

Until recently, scenes like this were most uncommon in rural Louisiana as only 1.7% of the farms and rural homes had electricity. Desperate rural folks had to organize member-owned electric co-ops to provide themselves with electricity. Today, these private cooperative enterprises offer 98% area coverage, a matchless record, indeed.

Wholesale power rates to electric co-ops are zooming ever upward. Co-op service areas stand in jeopardy. Your rural neighbors again need your understanding and help to assure adequate, low-cost power and to insure the territorial integrity of their electric co-op systems in rural areas nobody else would serve . . . with wise and fair legislation if necessary.

It is still a basic and simple fact: Only non-profit electric co-ops can serve ALL rural people at rates ALL can afford. Think what that means to the continued progress of town and country.

FISCAL 1961-62

PAR Views State Spending For Year

BATON ROUGE (Staff Special) —Reporting on state expenditures for the coming fiscal year of $858 million up 9.4 per cent from the estimated 1960-61 level —the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) made the following points:

1. Total spending will be about $14 million above the amount reported in the executive budget when some self-supporting expenditure items are included and additions made for some dedicated fund use.

2. Education spending will amount to $283 million, which is 33 per cent of the total budget and nearly 43 per cent of spending from state funds only. Education expenditures from state funds are estimated at 7.7 per cent over the current level.

3. Public welfare spending will reach $185 million, including federal funds, which would be an increase of 10 per cent.

4. Personnel increases are being recommended though there may be little or no increase in the work load in some of the agencies.

Explaining its higher estimate on spending, PAR said teacher retirement costs are expected to be $1.1 million more than shown in the executive budget and that dedications to local government are likely to be $2.6 million higher. These would have to be financed from regular revenue sources.

Additionally, PAR reported estimated expenditures for the division of employment security of $4.1 million; wildlife and fisheries, $2.5 million; LSU from fees, gifts and federal funds, $3.8 million, and chain store tax to local governments, $500,000. Federal funds will be received for the division of employment security and special funds will be received by wildlife and fisheries.

Major expenditures listed for education were public schools, $208 million; higher education, $62.4 million; trade and special schools, $7.8 million; and grants-in-aid for private schooling, $4.9 million.

Expenditures for welfare from state funds are estimated at $64.3 million of the $185 million total. This represents an increase of 4.7 per cent in spending from state funds.

The major changes in the welfare program for next fiscal year are listed by PAR as "(1) a sizeable increase in the program of medical vendor payments on behalf of old age assistance (OAA) recipients, and (2) the institution of a program of medical aid to aged persons who are not on the old age assistance rolls." A major portion (72 per cent) of the cost of these programs will be borne by the federal government.

Several examples of proposed personnel increases without showing an additonal workload or any substantial increase in the workload were cited by PAR on the basis of data in the executive budget.

Among examples cited were:

1. A request of New Orleans Charity Hospital for 277 additional employees up 7.5 per cent—with an increase in patient service units estimatel at only three-tenths of one per cent.

2. A six per cent increase in staff sought for Confederate Memorial Hospital in Shreveport though patient service units are expected to decline by two per cent.

3. Some increases for higher education institutions, though for the past two years enrollments have not totalled the amounts planned for in budgets for those years. Among institutions budgeting an increase in personnel but which have not had enrollment increases in the past year in line with budget estimates for the year are Francis T. Nicholls, Northeast State College, and the University of Southwestern Louisiana.

Applications Being Taken For Dormitories

Applications are now being received for rooms in the men and women's dormitories, including the two recently completed air conditioned structures at Northeast Louisiana State College for the summer and fall session, it was announced today by Dr. Fred J. Vogel, dean of student services.

All male and female students under 21 years of age registering at Northeast for the first time, who are not living at home or with relatives, are requested to reside in the dormitories, Vogel said.

Dormitories will open at 1 p.m. on June 5 for the summer session. Students applying for a room are asked to mail to the dean of student services a $10 deposit fee either by check or money order along with the room application form. This room deposit will be held until the student no longer desires a room.

The summer rate in the men and women's residence hall total $123. This includes meals in Gunby Hall, the new air conditioned dining hall. The rate during the regular semester in the women's residence halls range from $60-76 for rent and $170 for meals. The total averages $230-$246. In the men's residence halls the rent is from $44-76. The meals are $170 and the total ranges from $214-246.

AFTER DERAILMENT

Area Evacuated In Baton Rouge

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Three railroad tank cars derailed here Saturday, spilling hot liquid asphalt in one car over another containing 30,000 gallons of ethyl ether.

The ether car broke from its wheel base and rolled against a building. The hot asphalt car ruptured and spilled over it.

Ethyl ether is an inflammable liquid used for cleaning industrial equipment. The shipment had been sent from an oil refining plant at Baton rouge.

City police and sheriff's deputies evacuated residents from the immediate area of the derailment.

Firemen from atop an adjacent building played streams of water on the overturned car containing the ether, which did not break open.

The car containing the hot asphalt mix was derailed but remained in an upright position. One end was ruptured.

"It's a serious thing," said city police inspector R. S. Trigg. "We are extremely worried, even though we think we've got the tar cooled off now."

A 250-ton train wrecker was expected to arrive to try to remove the ether car from the ruptured asphalt car.

"That's going to be the really critical time," Trigg said. "We don't know what's going to happen when they try to move it."

Kefauver Seeks Tougher Curbs On Price Fixers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Estes Kefauver is drafting legislation which could send top echelon industry officials to jail for negligence in permitting price-riggers to operate within their company.

The Tennessee Democrat, it was learned Saturday, wants to pin responsibility for violations of the antitrust laws on the high command of American industry—corporation presidents and board members.

He believes the threat of penalties is the best way to make company higher-ups "go to the front line" and find out whether subordinates are meeting secretly with competitors to fix prices or allocate markets.

Another batch of Kefauver bills being circulated to other senators would:

Under certain conditions make identical prices on sealed secret bids on made-to-order equipment prima facie evidence of collusion to violate the antitrust statutes.

Increase maximum fines for antitrust violations from $50,000 to $100,000 and set three to six months as the minimum jail sentence.

Rural Electrification Helps Your Pocketbook

This novel debeaking machine, automatic watering and automatic feeders circulating food among his 27,000 future laying hens cut production costs drastically . . . and save the consuming public many dollars at food counters. Adequate power at reasonable rates is essential to farmers everywhere. . . and to the nation's foodbasket.

Until recently, scenes like this were most uncommon in rural Louisiana as only 1.7% of the farms and rural homes had electricity. Desperate rural folks had to organize member-owned electric co-ops to provide themselves with electricity. Today, these private cooperative enterprises offer 98% area coverage, a matchless record, indeed.

Wholesale power rates to electric co-ops are zooming ever upward. Co-op service areas stand in jeopardy. Your rural neighbors again need your understanding and help to assure adequate, low-cost power and to insure the territorial integrity of their electric co-op systems in rural areas nobody else would serve . . . with wise and fair legislation if necessary.

It is still a basic and simple fact: Only non-profit electric co-ops can serve ALL rural people at rates ALL can afford. Think what that means to the continued progress of town and country.

YIELDS TO PRESSURE

Korea President Retains Office

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—South Korea's military rulers established themselves in a new government of tough young officers Saturday and strengthened their constitutional position by pressuring President Yun Po-sun to return to office.

In a day of hectic activity, Lt. Gen. Chang Do-young named himself premier and defense minister, picked a Cabinet of military officers and convinced Yun to retract his resignation, submitted Friday night.

The 63-year-old president, a conservative who expresses disapproval of Chang's coup, is the only major elected official remaining in office.

Tension continued high. Chang continued his crackdown by jailing eight members of deposed Premier John M. Chang's government and tried without success to arrest the deposed premier himself. Sixteen dissident generals also were reported in custody, raising protests from U.S. Gen. Carter B. Magruder.

Competent sources disclosed that Magruder demanded Chang reinstate the Korean generals fired after the coup or replace them with generals acceptable to Magruder. A commander of U.N. forces in Korea, Magruder technically is boss of South Korea's 500,000-man army.

The informants said Magruder personally told Chang, who is also South Korea's army chief of staff, that the military units responsible for the coup were guilty of mutiny and should return to their positions.

The American general is reported to believe that although the withdrawal of 3,600 Korean marines, paratroopers and artillerymen to seize the capital Tuesday did not weaken defenses against Communist North Korea, it undercut the control and authority of the U.N. Command.

The 33-year-old Korean general made no response to Magruder in public.

There was no questions Chang put heavy pressure on President Yun. He told newsmen that the general had called on him three times before he withdrew his resignation from the figurehead post.

Had Yun stuck to his guns, the new regime would have been forced to seek recognition from all foreign powers. This will not be necessary now, since all foreign diplomats are accredited to Yun as chief of state.

In addition to their concern about diplomatic relations, the military leaders were believed troubled by Washington reports that Yun's resignation would seriously complicate military and economic aid from the United States, which supplies more than half the money for South Korea's budget.

Sources said the military leaders were determined to keep Yun so their new government would remain at least somewhat within the framework of the new constitution adopted less than a year ago after Syngman Rhee was ousted as president in a students' revolution.

Yun raised one small flag of independence. He said he would resign again if the new government moves in a direction of which he disapproves.

The makeup of the new Cabinet—11 army officers and one each from the air force, navy and marines—clearly showed that military men are running the government. Almost all are in their 30s, except for the new foreign minister. He is Kim Hong-il, a 62-year-old retired lieutenant general and former ambassador to Nationalist China.

Members of the deposed civilian Cabinet were hustled from their homes in raids around midnight and taken to West Gate Prison, the grim fortress where officials of the old Rhee government have been held for more than a year awaiting trial for corruption, election fraud and other charges.

Military police tried to arrest Chang, but the ex-premier's secretary said the 61-year-old politician insisted he would not leave unless he saw a warrant signed by Gen. Chang himself. The police then left.

Also jailed were 16 of 18 prosecutors named by the former premier's government to try Rhee officials. Witnesses said the prosecutors were told they were being arrested for corrupt practices while making their investigations.

Other officials also felt the bite of Chang's cleanup drive. Government officials, including clerks and schoolteachers, were told they would get no more holidays.

Rice conservation measures were also announced. The armed forces and restaurants were ordered to serve rice mixed with at least 20 per cent of other grains.

Chang also announced that 20 billion hwan in unspent funds has been set aside to buy food for needy people. In Seoul, military authorities already have distributed 15,000 bushels of relief grain. Home brewing of liquor was also forbidden as a grain-saving measure.

Appeals End In Fight To Save Slayer

CHICAGO (UPI)—An attorney indicated Saturday no further appeals are planned in the lengthy and far-reaching legal fight to save Robert Lee Goldsby from Mississippi's gas chamber.

"There is no basis for any further legal proceedings," George Leighton, Goldsby's Negro attorney, told United Press International.

However, Leighton said he would ask Gov. Ross Barnett to commute Goldsby's death sentence.

Goldsby, who was convicted of killing a white woman in Vaiden, Miss., in 1954, is scheduled to die May 31.

Seven death dates have been set for Goldsby but each previous execution was cancelled by further appeals.

His first conviction was overturned by a U. S. appeals court on grounds Negroes were "systematically excluded" from the jury which found him guilty in Carroll County. There were no Negroes registered to vote in the county, therefore none was eligible for jury duty.

Goldsby was re-tried in Jackson in December, 1959, and again sentenced to death for the murder of Mrs. Bryant Nelms. Governor Barnett, then a Jackson lawyer, was hired by Mrs. Nelms' husband as a special prosecutor and took part in both trials.

Leighton said Goldsby would have been found guilty of nothing more than manslaughter in most other states. "The fact that it was a white woman who was killed by a Negro in Mississippi had a lot to do with the resulting sentence in the case," he said.

However, Leighton—who opposed Barnett in the second trial—said, "I never have been treated with greater respect and consideration than I was in Mississippi. I have no quarrel with the treatment I received there."

REV. JOHN MAURY ALLIN

Speaker Set For Northeast Baccalaureate

The Rev. John Maury Allin, rector of All Saints' College, Vicksburg, will give the baccalaureate sermon at Northeast Louisiana State College May 28 at 5 p.m. in Brown Auditorium.

Prior to accepting his present position in 1958, Rev. Allin came to Monroe in 1952 as rector of Grace Parish. Since that time, three new Episcopal missions have been established in the local area under his leadership.

While he was in the diocese of Louisiana, he served as a member of the Bishop and Council; chairman of the Department of Chiristian Education for four years; member of the Diocesan Departments of Christian Social Relations, College Work and Promotion; and dean of the Northeastern Convocation for one year.

The rector was a member of the board of trustees of All Saints' College for five years. He also is clerical trustee from Louisiana of the University of the South; a member of the board of examining chaplains; and was elected deputy to the General Convention from Louisiana in 1958.

During a two-year period, Rev. Allin served as director of Sewanee Summer Training School and vice president of the Provincial Department of Christian Education of the Fourth Province.

Rev. Allin received the bachelor of arts degree from the University of the South, Sewanee, the bachelor of divinity degree from the School of Theology from that university, and the master of education from Mississippi College.

He was ordained deacon in June 1944 and priest the following year.

Rev. Allin began his ministry as vicar of St. Peter's Mission, Conway, Ark. in 1945 and served there until 1949. During this period he also was priest-in-charge of St. John's Mission, Harrison, Ark., St. James' Mission, Eureka Springs, and of All Saints' Mission, Russellville, both in that state.

In 1950, he became chaplain to episcopal students at Tulane University and other colleges in New Orleans and as curate of St. Andrew's Parish, New Orleans. The following year he also served as chaplain to institutions of that city.

The rector is married to the former Miss Frances Ann Kelly. They have four children.

INTELLIGENCE SHAKEUP

State Department Bureau Revamped

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department's Intelligence and Research Bureau is being revamped to promote efficiency and economy, officials said Saturday.

Under the shakeup, a large chunk of the unit will be sent "up the river" to the Central Intelligence Agency. The CIA is moving to a new building on the Potomac River above Washington.

The reorganization has nothing to do with the inquiry President Kennedy has assigned retired Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, former Army Staff Chief, to conduct in the wake of the Cuban fiasco, authorities said.

Rather, the shift was portrayed as a logical regrouping of functions that will allow the job to be accomplished more effectively and at less cost to the taxpayer. About 25 jobs will be eliminated.

Sent to the CIA will be State Department intelligence and research activities that now require the services of about 100 professional people. These activities deal with studies for the National Intelligence Survey and with collecting biographical information on people of other countries.

The National Intelligence Survey is a compilation of detailed information about places around the world which might be of use in time of war. State Department researchers have been contributing ethnological studies to the survey. The CIA and other agencies have been doing major parts of the survey.

The CIA has been paying the State Department for this part of the job, directing it and using the results.

The shift would leave about 250 professional positions in the slimmed down State Department bureau whose new boss is Roger Hillsman, former deputy director of the Library of Congress' legislative reference service.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk wants the bureau to concentrate on research and analysis duties.

TRAVEL FOR EDUCATION

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — Phil Brophy and Charles Buck figure they've traveled halfway around the world in five years getting their diplomas at Rochester Institute of Technology.

Both men, from small towns about 30 miles east of here, commuted to classes here once a week for five years to earn their management course diplomas. The trips totaled 13,300 miles, they say.

Four Booked For Drunken Driving

Four persons were booked by local city police late Friday and early Saturday for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

In West Monroe, 48-year-old Negro John L. Anderson of 107 Cherry St., West Monroe was booked for DWI and driving without a state driver's license Friday night. He reportedly hit a cement post at Montgomery and Peach Streets in a borrowed car. Monroe police booked Bishop Nelson, 25 of 125 Fairlane Dr., West Monroe and Jerry E. Ivey, 21 of 114 Bell Ave., Monroe for DWI and reckless driving. Alher D. Garvin, 34 of 303 South Second St., Monroe, was booked for DWI.

Eichmann Keeps Stoic Calm

JERUSALEM (UPI)—Only one man among the hundreds in the courtroom in Jerusalem appears unmoved by eyewitness accounts of Nazi butchery of the Jews during World War II.

He is Adolf Eichmann, the former SS official the prosecution contends was the man entrusted by the Hitler regime to carry out "the final solution of the Jewish problem"—extermination. Six million European Jews died of starvation, disease, or in the gas chambers or before Nazi "extermination" squads before the Third Reich collapsed.

For 5-½ weeks, Eichmann has sat through 46 sessions. From his bulletproof glass box he has listened to more than 30 witnesses and more than 900 documents produced by the prosecution.

The aim of the prosecution is to convict Eichmann as the greatest mass murderer of modern times and send him to the gallows.

But in spite of accumulating evidence against him, he has displayed no emotion. He listens poker-faced to the witnesses — almost bored at their stories of bestial treatment in the Nazi death camps. On rare occasions, he permits a slight smile to flicker across his lips at some amusing incident — for instance, when a witness claimed he could not understand Hebrew and then proceeded to correct the court interpreter.

The only time he shows any real interest is when the prosecution submits documentary evidence. He immediately perks up, pulls a handful of colored pencils from his pockets and begins rifling through a stack of files he brings into the court each day.

Spectators have fainted, wept or blanched during the past weeks as the prosecutors have relentlessly pursued its case. But the worst tales of horror are yet to come.

Chief prosecutor Gideon Hausner and his assistants thus far have presented witnesses and documents of Nazi atrocities against the Jews in Russia, Poland, Yugoslavia, and western Europe. There have been stories of the slaughter of babies, weak old men and pregnant women; of how Jews were stripped of all their properties and possessions—including wedding rings; of how they died by the thousands.

With an estimated two more weeks of prosecution testimony, the scene will shift shortly to Bulgaria and Greece, and then with probably the grimmest chapter of all: Hungary and the death march and concentration camps.

Negro Youth Drowns; Pair Try Rescue

An approximately 14-year-old Negro boy drowned in the Ouachita River Saturday afternoon while three witnesses looked on.

Archie Lee Jones of 212 South Eighth St., West Monroe, was dragged from the river shortly after having drowned just over the levee off Wheelis Street behind the veneer mill on the west side of the river.

Attempts by a Negro companion, Jerry Lee Taylor of 123 N. Cherry St., West Monroe, and a 12-year-old white boy to save the victim were unsuccessful, deputies from the Ouachita Parish sheriff's department said.

The incident occurred around 1 p.m. and members of the Monroe fire department emergency unit along with help from the West Monroe unit dragged the body up between 4:30 and 5 p.m.

Firemen Jack Liles with the Monroe American Legion fire truck said the body was brought up on the fourth drag approximately four feet from the bank and in approximately 15 feet of water.

The Jones boy was swimming with two other companions—Taylor, who jumped in and tried to drag him to safety but was kicked away, and Bobby Wyatt, age unknown who lives somewhere on Ridge Drive.

A white boy, Voyd Allen Cruse, 12, of 1514 Almond St., West Monroe, threw Jones the pole he was fishing with in an attempt to save him, but the pole broke before he could pull him to safety.

His parents were notified and the body was taken to Miller's Funeral Home.

Anti-Red Film Showing Set

Chamber's 'Minute Men' Start Drive

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
World Staff Writer

Monroe's "Minute Men," members of the Chamber of Commerce's legislative action group, will see a film showing how communism has encircled the United States this week.

Jim Williams, chamber manager, said this will be the start of a program to alert local citizens to the dangers of communism.

Based on appreciation of Americanism, the program will indicate steps to take toward combating communism in this country.

It also will alert citizens so that they can demand firm government action both in weeding out communists in U.S. agencies and in changing U.S. tactics.

The program calls for this nation to take the offensive against Red infiltration and aggression.

The 35 - minute film will be shown at 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, in the Chamber office at the Virginia Hotel.

Thursday noon, the Chamber will be host to program chairman of all major civic clubs in the Twin Cities, at a Rotary Club luncheon where the film will be shown again.

WIDE CIRCULATION

"We want to give this film as wide a circulation as it possibly can get," said Williams. Copies of the film will be available for showings to other organizations.

"We are encircled . . . the enemy is in our midst," the film warns.

"We can change the course of events if the people and leaders have the will to do so," it states.

"It is too late for continued apathy," the documentary says, and offers the following four steps.

1. Re-create effective legal safeguards to enable the United States government to stamp out the Red Fifth Column in this country.

2. Stiffen the U.S. attitude toward communism.

3. "Alert your neighbors" to the dangers of communism.

4. Look at the true facts of moral weakening in this country, and build up the moral caliber again.

Here is part of what the film points out:

In 1960, Nikita Khrushchev boasted that the victory of world communism "is not far off." He said that there is no need of outright war against the United States, but that Red infiltration will topple this country.

Nicolai Lenin, whose small group of followers indoctrinated 40,000 Russians and seized control of Moscow in 1917, laid down this plan for world conquest:

"First we will take Eastern Europe. Next the masses of Asia. Then we shall encircle that last bastion of Capitalism, the United States of America. We shall not have to attack. It will fall like an overripe fruit into our hands."

Eastern Europe, China and much of Asia are now communist-controlled. Communists have infiltrated into almost every European government and South American country, and have control of Cuba, 90 miles off the coast of Florida.

BLUEPRINT

"The Communists have a blueprint for conquest," writes Associated Press correspondent William L. Ryan. He terms their technique a "bit by bit" offensive, and says that a major Red asset is Americans' lack of true knowledge of commie tactics.

Recent indications of communist encirclement of the U.S.: Commie take-over in Cuba; the 1960 Japanese riots; agitation in Morocco, Venezuela, Algiers, Africa, trampling on the U.S. flag in Uruguay.

Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, former president of the Philippine Islands, issues a dramatic warning in his article, "America, Wake Up."

He warns that the cold war is a real war. The communists can win without changing their tactics. The United States cannot win if it continues in its present way, but instead must change tactics and take the offensive.

This calls for fullest citizenship service.

Nicholas Prychodko, who escaped from the Ukraine, says that millions of his countrymen who opposed the communist take-over were starved to death by police brigades from Moscow.

The Reds infiltrated Poland, Finland, Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania. Hundreds of thousands of persons who opposed them were sent to Siberian prison camps during World War II.

The fateful decision by the U.S. government to halt General Patton from leading the U. S. Army across Germany to the Russian border in World War II set the stage for the communist take-over of Eastern Europe.

Infiltration and coalition governments brought about the fall of Hungary, Romania, Albania, Bulgaria.

Socialism is powerful in Western Europe.

The communists now are working for establishment of socialism as a necessary transition stage on the road to communism, according to John Strachey of England, in his book, "The Theory and Practice of Socialism."

WIELD POWER

Undercover communists wield great power in Britain, and have 100 members in the Labor party, says Strachey, an insider to the movement.

Communists are working in every socialist nation in the world, he reveals.

Phase one of Lenin's plan is complete. Next, take a look at phase two, the masses of Asia.

A powerful communist apparatus was established in China, prior to the take-over there.

Then, a world - wide propaganda campaign was launched, against anti - communist Chaing Kai-shek.

Supply of arms to Chiang was halted by U. S. Gen. George C. Marshall in July 1946, and by executive order of President Harry S. Truman on August 18, 1946.

Russia continued to supply the Chinese communists with arms.

Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, in a report in 1947, recommended that suppressed by Presidential order, was not published until 1958.

The U. S. Senate Judiciary committee says, "The loss of China, after defeat of Japan, represents the greatest defeat in United States' history."

John F. Kennedy blasted the action on Feb. 21, 1949, 12 years before he became president.

Twenty-million Chinese landowners were executed by the communists — this would wipe out the entire population of 13 midwestern U. S. states.

Small East Asian countries were next on the Red agenda. Commies moved into Tibet and Korea.

By any military or diplomatic measuring stick, the U. S. lost the Korean War.

U.S. Armies were prevented from bombing Red bases and troop supplies in Manchuria. Thousands of American soldiers died as a result.

Comments from top U. S. Generals:

Mark Clark said his troops were not allowed to bomb the bridges used to carry supplies from Manchuria to the communist troops in Korea.

Van Fleet was convinced that U.S. forces would not attack across the Yalu River dividing Korea and Manchuria.

Stratemeyer: "We were not permitted to win."

MacArthur: "Such a limitation on utilization of available military force has no precedent in our own military history or in the history of the world."

U.S. dead: 51,246. Additional U.S. casualties in the Korean War: 103,284.

The Reds then moved into the Middle East, established important beachheads in Arab countries, and went on to Africa.

They are working to agitate and control U. S. college students and faculties.

FINAL PHASE

Now in the final phase of Lenin's plan for world conquest, the communists need only bases in South America, where they are instigating student riots.

Fidel Castro, a long-time communist, gained recognition and prestige in the United States through a press building — newspapers, magazines, television.

Two U.S. ambassadors have sworn that they warned the state department that aid to Castro would be aid to communism.

Despite this, the U. S. placed an embargo on arms to the Cuban anti-communist government, and helped bring about Castro's rise to power.

During investigations by the U.S. House of Representatives' committee on Un-American Activities in 1960 the communists incited more than 1000 California students to riot against the committee in San Francisco.

Gus Hall, communist leader in the United States, congratulated the West Coast comrades for the riots.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, says, "The communist success in San Francisco in May, 1960, proves that it (Red take-over) can happen here."

Major communist tactic at this time in the U. S. is to try to destroy by deceiving Americans, agitating them and using them as dupes.

Recently, two intelligence specialists turned traitor slipped out of this country and appeared in Russia, with important U.S. secrets in their possession.

Senate Internal Security Subcommittee member Richard Arens asked Secretary of the Army Brucker if he knew that the North Atlantic cable, which carries messages vital to this nation's security, is serviced by the American Communications Association, a communist-controlled labor organization.

Brucker replied: "I am aware of that."

Congress has taken no action about it.

Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer, in a report in 1947, recommended that suppressed by Presidential order, was not published until 1958.

The U. S. Senate Judiciary committee says, "The loss of China, after defeat of Japan, represents the greatest defeat in United States' history."

John F. Kennedy blasted the action on Feb. 21, 1949, 12 years before he became president.

Twenty-million Chinese landowners were executed by the communists — this would wipe out the entire population of 13 midwestern U. S. states.

Small East Asian countries were next on the Red agenda. Commies moved into Tibet and Korea.

By any military or diplomatic measuring stick, the U. S. lost the Korean War.

Comments from top U. S. Generals:

Mark Clark said his troops were not allowed to bomb the bridges used to carry supplies from Manchuria to the communist troops in Korea.

Van Fleet was convinced that U.S. forces would not attack across the Yalu River dividing Korea and Manchuria.

Stratemeyer: "We were not permitted to win."

MacArthur: "Such a limitation on utilization of available military force has no precedent in our own military history or in the history of the world."

U.S. dead: 54,246. Additional U.S. casualties in the Korean War: 103,284.

The Reds then moved into the Middle East, established important beachheads in Arab countries, and went on to Africa.

FINAL PHASE

Now in the final phase of Lenin's plan for world conquest, the communists need only bases in South America, where they are instigating student riots.

Fidel Castro, a long-time communist, gained recognition and prestige in the United States through a press building — newspapers, magazines, television.

Two U.S. ambassadors have sworn that they warned the state department that aid to Castro would be aid to communism.

Despite this, the U. S. placed an embargo on arms to the Cuban anti-communist government, and helped bring about Castro's rise to power.

During investigations by the U.S. House of Representatives' committee on Un-American Activities in 1960 the communists incited more than 1000 California students to riot against the committee in San Francisco.

Gus Hall, communist leader in the United States, congratulated the West Coast comrades for the riots.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI, says, "The communist success in San Francisco in May, 1960, proves that it (Red take-over) can happen here."

Major communist tactic at this time in the U. S. is to try to destroy by deceiving Americans, agitating them and using them as dupes.

Recently, two intelligence specialists turned traitor slipped out of this country and appeared in Russia, with important U.S. secrets in their possession.

Senate Internal Security Subcommittee member Richard Arens asked Secretary of the Army Brucker if he knew that the North Atlantic cable, which carries messages vital to this nation's security, is serviced by the American Communications Association, a communist-controlled labor organization.

Brucker replied: "I am aware of that."

Congress has taken no action about it.

'Y' Day Camp Quota Filling For Summer

David I. Garrett Jr., president of the Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. board of directors, announced Saturday that the Y.M.C.A. - Y.W.C.A. Day Camp for boys and girls is filling rapidly.

Approximately 600 boys and girls from all sections of Ouachita Parish are expected to attend day camps this summer.

There is limited space available in the first period of camp which begins June 12. Reservations are also available for the second period - June 26 through July 7; and third period - July 10 through July 21.

Any parent interested in sending their child to camp is urged to contact the Y.M.C.A. immediately in order that you may secure the period that you desire. Camp capacity this year is 120 boys and 100 girls per period.

Such activities as swimming, boating, fishing, handicrafts, nature lore, horseback riding, educational trips, singing, riflery, archery, devotionals, athletics and water skiing, all under well trained Christian leadership, are on tap for day campers.

Leadership for the Day Camp this summer will be Robert McKee, Y.M.C.A. youth secretary, as camp director; Arthur Forbes of Washington, Miss., as boys' program director. Hoyt Lee will serve as older boys' counselor.

An expanded program is being planned for them.

In the girls' camp Miss Bess Sharp, Y.W.C.A. executive secretary, will be the girls program director. Counselor appointments will be announced in the near future.

A comprehensive leadership training program will be held for all "Y" camp staff members from May 30 through June 2. Swimming instruction will play an important role in the camp program.

Each camper will be instructed according to the National Y.M.C.A. aquatic program. Last year 81 campers were taught to swim while 115 passed swimming tests.

RUSTON (Special) — Miss Margaret Emswiller, currently director of the program of special education for exceptional children in the public schools of Austin, Texas, will join the Louisiana Tech summer faculty for six weeks as teacher of two courses in special education, beginning June 5.

Miss Emswiler will teach Psychology of Exceptional Children and Education of the Gifted.

Miss Emswiler graduated from Michigan University and the University of Michigan. She was previously program co-ordinator for special education in Fort Worth. She developed the program for gifted children in Austin, was the first director of Austin Cerebral Palsy Center, was director of Austin Pre-school Hearing Center, and has taught blind and partially seeing children.

Miss Emswiler has also served as book reviewer for the American Association for Mental Deficiency. She has been awarded a citation by the Texas Council for Retarded Children.

Other courses offered in special education this summer at Tech will be Education of the Mentally Retarded and Materials and Methods of Teaching Crafts to Handicapped Children.

Soviet Premier Announces New Industry Goal

MOSCOW (AP) — Premier Khrushchev said Saturday the Soviet Union will no longer give priority to heavy industry but will develop both heavy industry and consumer goods production at the same rate.

The premier, wearing a dark suit and all his medals, had strolled across the garden of his residence next door to a government guest house where a party was being given for exhibitors at the British Fair which opened here Friday.

Khrushchev commented that some British businessmen had asked him about light industry in the Soviet Union and that he told them the Soviets had had to develop heavy industry first in order to create a proper base for the country's economy.

"Now we have created that base," he said, "we consider our heavy industry as built. So we are not going to give it priority. Light industry and heavy industry will develop at the same pace."

HARRISONBURG High School honor students are Sue Jackson, valedictorian, and Bonnie Rush, salutatorian. Commencement exercises will be held in the high school auditorium on May 24.

Rusk Leaves Geneva Role To Harriman

GENEVA (UPI) — Secretary of State Dean Rusk flew back to Washington Saturday, leaving special ambassador W. Averell Harriman to head the United States delegation at the 14-nation conference on the future of Laos.

Before his departure, Rusk expressed hope that the conference eventually would find a formula to "insure the independence and neutrality" of the southeast Asian kingdom plunged into chaos by the struggle for power between pro-Western and pro-Communist forces.

The search is expected to be a tough and prolonged one. Rusk wound up his four days at the conference at complete odds with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko on how to maintain the peace and neutrality of Laos.

Harriman, President Kennedy's roving ambassador, is an old hand at dealing with the Soviets. He spent three years in Moscow (1943-46) as U.S. ambassador.

The conference was in weekend recess, but behind-the-scenes consultations went forward in preparation for resumption of the debate on Monday.

Communist Poland, Burma and Thailand are expected to present their views when the conference meets. All other participating nations already have made opening presentations.

Representatives of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao and of "neutralist" Prince Souvanna Phouma, whom the Communists recognize as the "legitimate" premier of Laos, also are participating. The royal Laotian government of Premier Prince Boun Oum has boycotted the sessions because of the seating of its rivals.

Chico Marx, 70, Hospitalized By Heart Condition

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Chico Marx, 70, senior member of the Marx brothers comedy team, was in fair condition Saturday after reportedly suffering a flare-up of a heart condition.

The piano-playing comic was taken by ambulance to Cedars of Lebanon Hospital Friday night in what was termed critical condition.

His ailment was described by his doctor as "chest congestion," but another close source described it as a heart ailment. Marx, whose real first name is Leonard, suffered a similar attack in July 19[illegible].

His second wife, the former Mary DiVithas, accompanied him to the hospital and watched at his bedside during the night.

Chico and his brothers — Groucho, Harpo, Zeppo and Gummo — turned to comedy by accident after early professional careers as a serious concert group of musicians and singers. Gummo later dropped out of the group, which carried on as a four-man comedy team.

Chico was always cast in the role of the not-too-bright Italian peasant, although in reality he was an accomplished pianist.

The brothers haven't worked together in recent years.

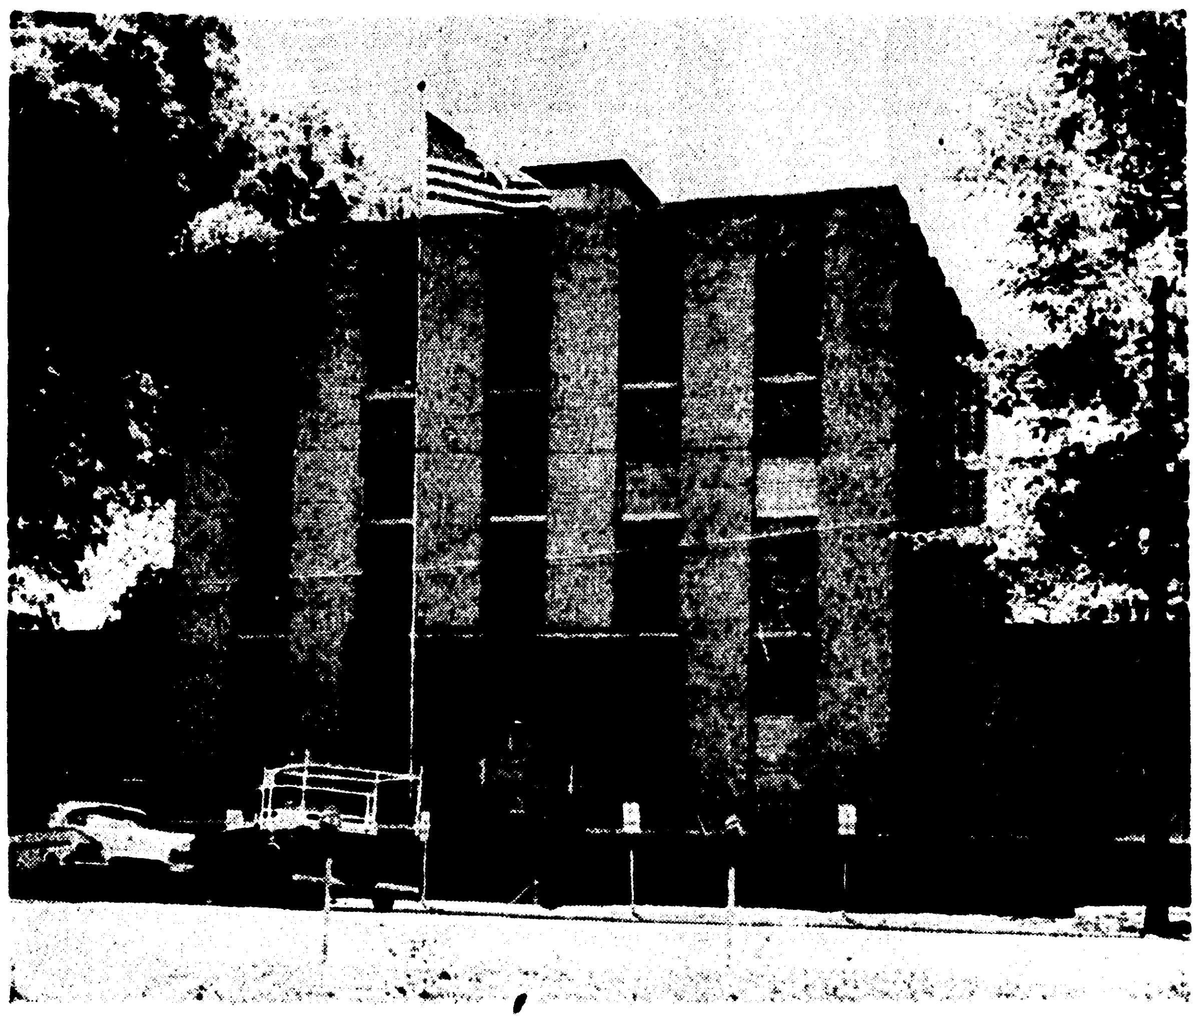
W. Monroe's Start, Growth Traced



West Monroe's Streamlined City Hall

By RICHARD TYLER
Staff Writer

Based on material gleaned from one of the best sources available, a written account of a personal visit to the area by a traveller of long-ago, West Monroe appears to have sprung into existence sometime near to the middle of the nineteenth century. It took shape slightly later than Monroe, through the common parentage of two towns seated originally on the west bank of the Ouachita.

One, called Cottonport, about where West Monroe now is situated, and a second, somewhat larger, Trenton, two miles further upstream, were those early settlements.

Declaring Cottonport to have been established in 1853 with a population of around 100 persons, the writer, a New Orleans newspaperman, described its business district as constituted of "one saloon and grocery and one sawmill, the latter engaged in cutting ties for the railroad.

There was also one Negro church and school."

TRENTON

Then there was Trenton to the north, about as fundamental a settlement as Cottonport, a bit larger in scope, perhaps, but with the same primitive needs and facilities and linked with the same limited agricultural economy.

Of Trenton, probably the truer sire of West Monroe, the writer said, "The first business was done in 1846, the first merchant being Ben Ray."

Named for William Trent, an early settler in Ouachita Parish, the town was laid into lots in 1851. William Marbury, he wrote in 1847 was the first to establish a store on main street.

"No tax is levied the treasury being supplied with funds by fines collected by the mayor from lawbreakers. The streets are kept in repair by contributions of labor of four days in each year by every male citizen."

While it must be apparent, in the light of such reminiscences, that West Monroe has advanced quite some distance since infancy, it may not be equally apparent just how great has been her development in very recent times, as contrasted with subsequent history.

Actually, West Monroe has come much of this long and difficult way in a short while. If you doubt it, ask a man who lives there.

POPULATION

In point of population, West Monroe has produced a record that well might be the envy of any city, town or hamlet in the state, or the nation, almost exactly doubling itself over an even 10 years. With a citizenry presently approaching 20,000 in number, the U.S. Census of 1950 set the total at 10,302 persons. With the lone exception of the years lying between the 1920 and 1930 nose-counts, when population very nearly redoubled in an unaccountable explosion from 2,240 to 6,566, the recent increase has been unrivaled. Census reports on base periods 1940 and 1950, for example, revealed jumps of only around 2,000 persons. Since radical spurts in population, particularly in municipalities of reasonable density, generally are accepted as indicative of bettering conditions of health within a community, how exactly may we account for the West Monroe phenomenon.

The fact is that West Monroe no longer is the patronized "kid sister" of sprawling, muscle-flexing Monroe across the river, though she bears its name in part. She has drawn herself up vigorously in recent year and now stands firmly and defiantly in open economic competition with other towns in the state, ready and willing to match her past or her future right down the line with any of them.

And, whatever the achievements or connections of the past, she indeed is marked for massive expansions in years to come in every area of civic growth, as an entity solely unto herself.

FOUNDATION

In flashback, just the past year, in fact, has witnessed much of her achievement as a growing, increasingly prosperous community, laying the foundation for still greater things to come.

Foremost among recent developments presaging a bright future, to the minds of many West Monroyans, is the raising of the new Glenwood Hospital, a four-story, 106-bed structure now taking form at the junction of Thomas Street and McMillan Road. Scheduled for completion late in 1962, as presently designed, it is the outgrowth of passage, in December of 1958, of a $1,400,000 bond issue. As indication of the underlying instinct to progress and readiness to move ahead on the part of the people of West Monroe, the proposition racked up one of the most whopping pluralities ever given at local polls. Total outlay on the project, including federal participation, is expected to surpass $2,200,000.

But even while construction grinds forward day by day, more and more thoughtful citizens are advancing the belief that the hospital may already be inadequate to meet the needs of the community by the time of its opening. The idea to annex an additional floor, even two, has, in fact, been brought before the city's progressive and forward - looking Hospital Board, and undergone serious discussion.

On other fronts, in the past year, a new sewerage system, costing nearly $968,000, and connecting with several new sub-divisions to the city, was completed The project included 17 pumping stations and many miles of sewer lines and brought every home within the city limits within reach of city service. Also, approximately $15,000 worth of ultra - modern mecury-type street lamps and special road markers were installed in the downtown area. The new Confederate Baseball Park on the southside, featuring steel bleachers arranged to seat upwards of 2,000 fans, was completed in 1960 at a cost of around $30,000, and a nine-acre tract of land was secured on Lee and Jackson Streets, near Boley High School, to handle recreation needs of the colored community. This despite defeat at the polls late last year of a $625,000 recreation bond proposal. As well, four new garbage trucks, totalling in value nearly $12,000, were purchased, and a five-year lease at $300 per annum, taken on a better and safer area for garbage disposal.

Last year, obviously, was noteworthy in West Monroe's ascension to high civic status, though it was by no means unique. Other recent years have witnessed other meaningful undertakings. For example, 1959 saw the culmination of a massive $1,370,000 water and fire prevention program, involving construction of one of the finest central fire stations in the South in cities of size comparable to West Monroe, the addition of over 3,000,000 gallons of water storage capacity, and a new water well.

The city now obtains its fresh water supply from a series of four deep wells nearby. Also included was building of three fire sub-stations and purchase of three additional trucks, backed with literally miles of new mains, making Chief E. C. Taylor's department one of the most modern and thoroughly prepared to do its job in the South.

PAINTING PROJECT

Painting alone of a towering 1,138,000 gallon capacity overhead water tank, was a major job, requiring over 730 gallons of paint to cover both inside and exterior. Two ground storage tanks, containing a maximum of a million gallons each, round out the 3,000,000 gallons additional capacity mentioned earlier.

And, the overhead tank, incidentally, looms up to cast a lanky shadow each day over the relatively new West Monroe Junior High School, which, together with West Monroe High School, is an important part of the city's recent educational "coming of age."

In almost every facet of a town's life, West Monroe has leaped forward and continues to do so.

Recognizing the burgeoning cultural vitality of the community, the state, in June of 1958, constructed a new $185,000 public library in West Monroe. An 8,000 square foot structure, housing more than 12,000 volumes, it was the first building raised in a Twin City library construction program totalling $700,000. And it is used. In fact, with nearly 6,000 volumes in use each month its circulation approximately has doubled that of the old frame Cypress Street facility.

MIRRORS GROWTH

West Monroe's police force, necessarily perhaps, has mirrored the city's growth, but obviously, its effectiveness as a unit cannot be attributed to growth alone. Comparable towns cannot approach its record. Under Jeff Caldwell's leadership some observers have declared, officers seem to acquire a secret ingredient, the single - minded faculty for putting an extra something into their work that makes the difference. Check the facts. In 1960, there were left unsolved no crimes of a major nature; 122 of 191 reported cases of theft were cleared up; likewise with 62 of 83 cases involving bad check artists, 21 of 31 forgeries, and all 71 incidents of assault and - or battery. Nine out of 11 automobiles stolen during the year were recovered, and the only murder quickly solved.

West Monroe policemen, through 1960, travelled more than 165,000 miles on patrol and escort duty, handed out 642 traffic warnings, investigated 454 accidents and amassed a total of 3,897 man hours on the job. In the eight years since 1952, the department has increased physically from 16 to 22 officers, not including the addition of a secretary - stenographer, from one to two motorcycles, and from two patrol cars to three patrol cars and a detective car. The detective department itself is new just since 1958, and now is staffed by two full-time investigators.

Also, for the first time, a police retirement fund now is in existence, supported by deductions from officers' pay and city contributions from fines and assessments levied. Established in October of 1958, the fund contained slightly more than $40,000 at the close of February of this year.

CHAMBER

And, the Chamber of Commerce, as well, has shown a vigor corresponding to that of the city it serves and supports. Often conceded to be one of the most energetic and purposeful organizations of its type in the state, Gene Smith's West Monroe Chamber might also be called the town's biggest booster.

Now, while beating the drums for its hometown very naturally is important, it is but a single aspect of a Chamber's function, and the only meaningful yardstick by which to measure its true worth is "what has it done—what is it doing." Suffice to say in examining the past, the West Monroe Chamber has been either active or instrumental in fruition of so many programs of civic development and improvement as to defy enumeration here. For the future, these goals, among other significant aims, stand out — the establishment in West Monroe of an industrial park to attract new payrolls and make possible full expansion of present economic capacities, and the location there of a transcontinental bus terminal.

Founded in March of 1956, under its first manager, Smith's predecessor, George Wylie, and President A. O. Evans, the Chamber governing body consists of 15 directors, five of which are rotated annually so as to retain a constant veneer of experience. Organic to it are 13 major working committees which constitute the mechanics for getting things done in a hurry.

POST OFFICE

Yet another indicator of West Monroe's health as a community might be thought of as its post office, and extensions there indeed have been dramatic in a space of little more than ten years. Having moved into present quarters on Wood Street early in 1948, the expansions witnessed since that time in the physical plant alone have been impressive, though increases in volumes of workload and service, in many instances, have outstripped them. The post office has seen two physical enlargements since 1948, one in 1949, and the other, including remodeling and a near 50 per cent expansion in area, in 1958. Keeping pace, city delivery service has grown from four routes in 1948 to the present 11; rural routes now number four, serving 8,000 persons over a total 300 miles, whereas in 1948 there existed only three; the staff has grown from 15 to 37 persons; annual postal receipts amount to $149,068 against a comparable $48,441; and average annual volume, building on an estimated rate of 10,000 to 15,000 pieces outgoing daily, in 1960 amounted to 3,700,000 pieces of mail (as recently as 1950, that figure stood only at 1,800,000 pieces).

And, according to Homer B. Roark, postmaster there since November, 1954, the post office acquired "the new look of motion," early in 1959 with addition of mobilized "mailsters." Six of the economical little gasoline-driven mailster buggies now are at work on city routes, replacing foot delivery and speeding and modernizing service.

RECREATION

The city recreation program, touched briefly before, perhaps has experienced a growth more phenomenal than that of any civic unit yet discussed. In the words of Harold Hill, West Monroe city clerk and present recreation committee head, we may find about the fairest appraisal of its beginnings. He said it started as "just a few swings on a sandlot."

Assaying its inception only 10 years ago, in 1951, under such circumstances as opposed to this year's operation, the contrast becomes almost startling. For example, the 1961 summer program will be nearly doubled in scope from its size as recently as last year. It'll include operation of two playgrounds, featuring softball, basketball, tennis, volley ball, horse shoes, ping pong, weight lifting and other things: two new part-time directors to assist Cecil Pirkey; and a working budget of $3,350. For the first time, facilities at West Monroe High School are being made available for city use at no charge, the only stipulation being that damaged or destroyed items be replaced.

In existence since August of 1958, the recreation committee is rounded out by members Bobby Wilson, K. D. Norris, Dick Howard and Earl Duncan.

While much heretofore has been made over past achievements, the recreation program constitutes a look into coming events, and the immediate future holds still other promise of bounty. Only last month, the wheels began to turn toward activation of a 20.7 mile street improvement program, affecting nearly 2,500 West Monroe property owners. Contracts already have been awarded and assessments posted, and work will commence within another week or two, at the completion of a final 30-day waiting period, the last legal hurdle to be cleared.

CHURCHES

Finally, since its belief in and close personal relationship to God is a critical feature in the life of any community, it should be mentioned in passing at least that West Monroe is staunchly devout in its commitment to Deity. Forming the keystone of the city's religious establishment is a total of 24 churches, nourishing the varied faiths and meeting the spiritual requirements of many creeds, denominations and sects.

And, last but in nowise least, recognition certainly must be extended to the "city father," the mayor and five aldermen, whose work in this enormous rush toward progress, as outlined above, has been tremendously significant, even vital.

As well, four new garbage trucks, totalling in value nearly $12,000, were purchased, and a five-year lease at $300 per annum, taken on a better and safer area for garbage disposal.

Last year, obviously, was noteworthy in West Monroe's ascension to high civic status, though it was by no means unique. Other recent years have witnessed other meaningful undertakings. For example, 1959 saw the culmination of a massive $1,370,000 water and fire prevention program, involving construction of one of the finest central fire stations in the South in cities of size comparable to West Monroe, the addition of over 3,000,000 gallons of water storage capacity, and a new water well.

The city now obtains its fresh water supply from a series of four deep wells nearby. Also included was building of three fire sub-stations and purchase of three additional trucks, backed with literally miles of new mains, making Chief E. C. Taylor's department one of the most modern and thoroughly prepared to do its job in the South.

PAINTING PROJECT

Painting alone of a towering 1,138,000 gallon capacity overhead water tank, was a major job, requiring over 730 gallons of paint to cover both inside and exterior. Two ground storage tanks, containing a maximum of a million gallons each, round out the 3,000,000 gallons additional capacity mentioned earlier.

And, the overhead tank, incidentally, looms up to cast a lanky shadow each day over the relatively new West Monroe Junior High School, which, together with West Monroe High School, is an important part of the city's recent educational "coming of age."

In almost every facet of a town's life, West Monroe has leaped forward and continues to do so.

Recognizing the burgeoning cultural vitality of the community, the state, in June of 1958, constructed a new $185,000 public library in West Monroe. An 8,000 square foot structure, housing more than 12,000 volumes, it was the first building raised in a Twin City library construction program totalling $700,000. And it is used. In fact, with nearly 6,000 volumes in use each month its circulation approximately has doubled that of the old frame Cypress Street facility.

MIRRORS GROWTH

West Monroe's police force, necessarily perhaps, has mirrored the city's growth, but obviously, its effectiveness as a unit cannot be attributed to growth alone. Comparable towns cannot approach its record. Under Jeff Caldwell's leadership some observers have declared, officers seem to acquire a secret ingredient, the single - minded faculty for putting an extra something into their work that makes the difference. Check the facts. In 1960, there were left unsolved no crimes of a major nature; 122 of 191 reported cases of theft were cleared up; likewise with 62 of 83 cases involving bad check artists, 21 of 31 forgeries, and all 71 incidents of assault and - or battery. Nine out of 11 automobiles stolen during the year were recovered, and the only murder quickly solved.

West Monroe policemen, through 1960, travelled more than 165,000 miles on patrol and escort duty, handed out 642 traffic warnings, investigated 454 accidents and amassed a total of 3,897 man hours on the job. In the eight years since 1952, the department has increased physically from 16 to 22 officers, not including the addition of a secretary - stenographer, from one to two motorcycles, and from two patrol cars to three patrol cars and a detective car. The detective department itself is new just since 1958, and now is staffed by two full-time investigators.

Also, for the first time, a police retirement fund now is in existence, supported by deductions from officers' pay and city contributions from fines and assessments levied. Established in October of 1958, the fund contained slightly more than $40,000 at the close of February of this year.

CHAMBER

And, the Chamber of Commerce, as well, has shown a vigor corresponding to that of the city it serves and supports. Often conceded to be one of the most energetic and purposeful organizations of its type in the state, Gene Smith's West Monroe Chamber might also be called the town's biggest booster.

Now, while beating the drums for its hometown very naturally is important, it is but a single aspect of a Chamber's function, and the only meaningful yardstick by which to measure its true worth is "what has it done—what is it doing." Suffice to say in examining the past, the West Monroe Chamber has been either active or instrumental in fruition of so many programs of civic development and improvement as to defy enumeration here. For the future, these goals, among other significant aims, stand out — the establishment in West Monroe of an industrial park to attract new payrolls and make possible full expansion of present economic capacities, and the location there of a transcontinental bus terminal.

Founded in March of 1956, under its first manager, Smith's predecessor, George Wylie, and President A. O. Evans, the Chamber governing body consists of 15 directors, five of which are rotated annually so as to retain a constant veneer of experience. Organic to it are 13 major working committees which constitute the mechanics for getting things done in a hurry.

POST OFFICE

Yet another indicator of West Monroe's health as a community might be thought of as its post office, and extensions there indeed have been dramatic in a space of little more than ten years. Having moved into present quarters on Wood Street early in 1948, the expansions witnessed since that time in the physical plant alone have been impressive, though increases in volumes of workload and service, in many instances, have outstripped them. The post office has seen two physical enlargements since 1948, one in 1949, and the other, including remodeling and a near 50 per cent expansion in area, in 1958. Keeping pace, city delivery service has grown from four routes in 1948 to the present 11; rural routes now number four, serving 8,000 persons over a total 300 miles, whereas in 1948 there existed only three; the staff has grown from 15 to 37 persons; annual postal receipts amount to $149,088 against a comparable $48,441; and average annual volume, building on an estimated rate of 10,000 to 15,000 pieces outgoing daily, in 1960 amounted to 3,700,000 pieces of mail (as recently as 1950, that figure stood only at 1,800,000 pieces).

And, according to Homer B. Roark, postmaster there since November, 1954, the post office acquired "the new look of motion," early in 1959 with addition of mobilized "mailsters." Six of the economical little gasoline-driven mailster buggies now are at work on city routes, replacing foot delivery and speeding and modernizing service.

The city recreation program, touched briefly before, perhaps has experienced a growth more phenomenal than that of any civic unit yet discussed. In the words of Harold Hill, West Monroe city clerk and present recreation committee head, we may find about the fairest appraisal of its beginnings. He said, it started as "just a few swings on a sandlot."

Assaying its inception only 10 years ago, in 1951, under such circumstances as opposed to this year's operation, the contrast becomes almost startling. For example, the 1961 summer program will be nearly doubled in scope from its size as recently as last year. It'll include operation of two playgrounds, featuring softball, basketball, tennis, volley ball, horse shoes, ping pong, weight lifting and other things; two new part-time directors to assist Cecil Pirkey; and a working budget of $3,350. For the first time, facilities at West Monroe High School are being made available for city use at no charge, the only stipulation being that damaged or destroyed items be replaced.

In existence since August of 1958, the recreation committee is rounded out by members Bobby Wilson, K. D. Norris, Dick Howard and Earl Duncan.

While much heretofore has been made over past achievements, the recreation program constitutes a look into coming events, and the immediate future holds still other promise of bounty. Only last month, the wheels began to turn toward activation of a 20.7 mile street improvement program, affecting nearly 2,500 West Monroe property owners. Contracts already have been awarded and assessments posted, and work will commence within another week or two, at the completion of a final 30-day waiting period, the last legal hurdle to be cleared.

CHURCHES

Finally, since its belief in and close personal relationship to God is a critical feature in the life of any community, it should be mentioned in passing at least that West Monroe is staunchly devout in its commitment to Deity. Forming the keystone of the city's religious establishment is a total of 24 churches, nourishing the varied faiths and meeting the spiritual requirements of many creeds, denominations and sects.

And, last but in nowise least, recognition certainly must be extended to the "city father," the mayor and five aldermen, whose work in this enormous rush toward progress, as outlined above, has been tremendously significant, even vital.

Advantageous Tax Laws

Proposed changes in two Louisiana tax laws should have the wholehearted support of all our citizens and a vote of approval by the members of the legislature.

One change would mean a big saving to the citizens of Louisiana, without any loss of revenue to the state, and the other would bring in greatly increased sums for the state without costing the taxpayers any more.

Both of these things are highly desirable. It may be difficult to conceive how such things can be done but the answer is simple. In both cases the federal government would receive less tax money.

Since we are firm believers in states' rights and states ability to handle their own affairs, as opposed to federal supervision, almost any way that we can get more money for the state by allowing the federal government less seems good.

Under the first proposed change, tobacco taxes paid to the state would be designated as consumer taxes. This would make them eligible for deductions in computing federal income taxes.

Under the other proposed change the law on inheritance and estate taxes would be revised to take advantage of a proposal pending in congress to give states a greater share in death taxes.

The Public Affairs Research Council of Louisiana estimated the potential savings for tobacco users at $2.5 million a year.

The number of states which are designating tobacco taxes as consumer taxes, thus making them eligible as tax payments that can be deducted in filing federal income tax returns, has been increased to 21.

A bill now offered in the state legislature would do this for the cigarette users in the state.

If the legislature should make this change in the state law, there would be no loss of revenue to the state. At present, the tobacco tax yields about $31 million a year.

These changes in Louisiana tax laws are being advocated by the advisory council on intergovernmental relations.

The proposal on death taxes would bring about greater uniformity in the handling of estate taxes by the federal government. It is estimated that the federal government would give up a maximum of $400 million a year in inheritance tax revenue if congress passes the pending proposal. Louisiana could share in this by changing its inheritance and state tax laws to conform to the proposal.

If this change is made, there will be no additional burden on heirs, who will pay the same total federal and state taxes, but the state would get more of the revenue.

Inheritance and estate taxes are a way of confiscating the property of those who have prospered or who have saved their money and invested in property. It is another way in which socialistic governments put a premium on indolence, mismanagement or waste.

If we must have estate and inheritance taxes and if people must be deprived of a part of the money and property they have saved and acquired after paying their full share of income tax, it is better to let the state have this money than the federal government.

In this way the state will have more money and won't have to go to the federal government so often with its hands out.

Since these two proposed tax law changes in a small measure would help to retain the state's independence from the federal money for the citizens, there should be no hesitancy on the part of the legislature in approval of them.

Sherman Adams' Truth

Sherman Adams, former chief assistant to former President D. Eisenhower, told the truth when he said that Eisenhower's greatest days were when he followed his own instincts and spoke from the heart.

The irony of this seems to be that President Eisenhower made some of his worst mistakes while listening to the advice of Adams. Of course, he did little, if any, better when he followed the admonitions of his brother, Milton. President Eisenhower always thought his brother had more sense and better judgment than he did but in that he was wrong.

Interviewed by Robert J. Donovan, chief Washington correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune, Adams said:

"Eisenhower's greateset days in politics were when he followed his own instincts, said what was on his mind, spoke from the heart and forgot the picayunish political philanderers who stayed with him when they thought he could win elections for them and left him when he needed their support to put over his program for America and the world.

Adams resigned his post with the Eisenhower administration in 1958 after admitting he had accepted favors from Bernard Goldfine of Boston, now in trouble with the federal government on charges of evading payment of huge sums in income taxes.

The former assistant president says the hurt of his resignation is still there but that he would go to Washington again under the same circumstances. He added:

"Accountability for the libel of a public servant in our system is virtually non-existent. I should know."

He said that this is as it should be.

In that he also spoke the truth for it is always extremely difficult to distinguish between just and unjust criticism of a man in political life. For the sake of the safety of our country, in the choosing of the best possible officials, the right to criticize politicians should not be abridged by calling such criticism libel. Our system of virtually unlimited criticism of politicians and office-holders has worked well.

Adams was assistant to the president about three-fourths of the time Eisenhower was in office. It was chiefly during the last two years of his administration that President Eisenhower used his own judgment rather than to allow the advice of others.

It was during thoselast two years that the president really gained in prestige and stature. Undoubtedly, if he had been eligible for another term and had desired to run he could have been re-elected easily.

The fact the president's judgment was largely good during that time shows that President Kennedy has been wise in consulting him in regard to world conditions.

When questioned for his opinion on international affairs, Eisenhower should continue to use his own judgement. He should say what he thinks and not what he believes Kennedy wants him to say. After all, in trying to decide on world matters, Kennedy wants really constructive advice and not just words whom those he questions think he wants to hear.

This is a time for unity against our enemies but also a time for forthrightness and honesty.

Adams deserves a little credit for being honest about the times President Eisenhower made the best decisions.

Khrush Takes Heavy Toll

More Than 3,000 Communist Party Officials Ousted In Iron-Handed Purge Behind Tight Censorship

Premier Khrushchev can justly claim consistency in one respect: He is being as bellicose inside Russia as he is elsewhere.

Since the first of the year, behind characteristic drum-tight censorship, the truculent Kremlin ruler has been conducting an iron-handed purge that so far has taken a toll of more than 3,000 Communist party officials in every section of the Soviet.

Some 400 of them were of top party rank.

The first and second party secretaries of eight of Russia's 15 republics have been fired on charges ranging from "unsatisfactory guidance of the economy" to "criminal neglect of duties."

Similarly, party secretaries have been axed or downgraded in a number of important regions, among them the great industrial centers of Stalingrad, Chelyabinsk, Pskov, Chita in eastern Siberia and such major farming areas as Alta, Astrakhan and Voronezh.

The latest head loppings were in Kirgizia, where Premier Kazy Bikambayev and first party secretary I. R. Razzakov were booted out. Bikambayev has been replaced by T. Usubaliev, longtime Khrushchev henchman.

These purges came on the heels of a large-scale housecleaning there last month following a visit by Frol Kozlov, deputy premier to Khrushchev and generally considered his heir apparent. More than 50 Kirgizian officials were fired during and after Koslov's trip.

In Uzbekistan, Kozlov ousted first party secretary R. G. Gulanov on the ground of "criminal neglect of the economy."

These thousands of purges, ranging from collective farm chairmen and factory managers to top party officials, are the most numerous and far-reaching since 1957, when Khrushchev, amid thunderous self-righteous bombs, wielded the hatchet on former Premier Malenkov, former Foreign Minister Molotov, veteran Transportation Minister Kaganovich and other first-rank leaders.

From time to time since those spectacular axings there have been others. But nothing comparable in scope and number to what has taken place the past five months.

WHAT'S BEHIND IT — President Kennedy and his advisers, pondering a man-to-man meeting with Khrushchev, are fully aware of this extraordinary situation inside Russia.

They have been intently studying its implications. On the basis of extensive analyses and information from diplomatic and other authoritative sources, certain conclusions have been reached as to what is behind this carefully unpublicized, far-reaching Communist party upheaval.

Foremost among these deductions are:

The Khrushchev-Kozlov faction is tightening its grip on the party machinery, which rules Russia, in preparation for the 22nd party congress scheduled for Moscow in October. This so-called national congress elects the 122-member Central committee which, in turn, names the 14-member Presidium — the real ruling power of the Soviet. The Pesidium wields the ultimate control. Khrushchev and Kozlov are making certain that the congress, the Central Committee and the Presidium are completely of their making.

Similarly, they are strengthening their domination of the party in preparation for new clashes with Red China. These are likely for various reasons, foremost among them the easing of tensions between the U. S. and Russia as a result of talks between the President and Khrushchev. Such a consequence would almost certainly be viewed unfavorably by Peiping. There are other spheres of crucial disagreement between the Soviet and Red China, and Knrushchev and his ruling clique are patently girding themselves for fateful showdowns with their Asiatic comrades.

No agenda has been announced for the October congress, and none is likely to be.

One report in diplomatic circles in Moscow is that Khrushchev will ask the congress to increase Communist party membership by one million. It now numbers some six million.

Another report is that the Young Communist League is due for a sweeping shake-up.

In a Kazakstan newspaper, copies of which have reached Moscow, Khrushchev is quoted as shouting at a meeting of party leaders, "Either produce or get out, because if you don't you'll be thrown in jail. We will not tolerate incompetents, idlers or criminals."

The national party congress consists of delegates elected by local and regional party bodies. The last congress, in 1959, approved the current five-year plan. At the 1956 congress, Khrushchev made his sensational speech castigating Stalin. That denunciation has never been published or acknowledged. It came to light through satellite sources.

THE LADIES — There are few days the White House does not receive a number of childish telephone calls for curly-haired three-year-old Caroline. That always happens after her picture appears in the papers. But the calls never reach her, although she loves to talk over the phone. The switchboard operators have strict orders against that. They do put through her calls to her grandparents and a few of her mother's close friends . . . At long last, for the first time in the 17 years she has been secretary of the Democratic National Committee, Mrs. Dorothy Vredenburgh has an office of her own. National Chairman John Bailey arranged that for her in the new headquarters. Mrs. Vredenburgh's office has dramatic green walls and red leather furnishings . . . Mrs. Lyndon Johnson is apparently peparing for a Latin American tour later on. The Second Lady is taking Spanish lessons; carried a Spanish grammar with her on the Far Eastern tour. Other prominent women studying Spanish are Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of the Supreme Court Justice, and the wives of Senators Frank Church, Idaho, and Thomas Dodd, Conn.

GEORGE SOKOLOSKY

President's Task

Chief Executive Is Head Of State And Prime Minister

The assumption of many students of American politics is that the President, being the chief executive officer of the United States who with the Vice President, is the only nationally elected official, is alone responsible for the conduct of government.

The Founding Fathers had a difficult time getting around the fact that they could not provide for a king in the Constitution. No principal European country, at that time, was without a monarch. Also at the time of the founding of the United States, the office of Prime Minister had not yet developed so that the Head of State was excluded from all executive and administrative functions. George III continued to interfere in the function of the government and Louis XVI had not yet been decapitated.

Upon the President were heaped the responsibilities of the Head of State and those of a Prime Minister. The experiment was a very successful one until the government became so complicated that in some instances the President could not know what was happening in some agencies until he read about it in the newspapers.

For the President then to assume total responsibility for all the activities of government is an absurdity. Even in the conduct of foreign affairs, there are so many agencies, that the resident may or may not know, in advance, how each is carrying out his policies.

The State Department is, of course, the central agency of government dealing with foreign relations. But then there is the CIA, an extraordinary complicated mechanism in charge of espionage, counter-espionage and paramilitary activities (cloak and dagger stuff). Then there is the ICA which distributes the aid we give to foreign countries and in this category there are several other agencies, some strictly American, some international with Americans in charge, using principally American money. The American Ambassador to the United Nations must be considered in the development of foreign policy as he has a day-by-day relationship to it.

It is impossible for the President of the United States to assume responsibility for everything done, engaged in the conduct of foreign policy, so, before he can assume such responsibility, he must have the power to hire and fire every person engaged in handling foreign relations. In the first place, many important officials who hold such offices must be confirmed by the Senate, which can be a limitation upon the President. Then, the Foreign Service employees are part of the civil service and can only be dismissed with cause, or removed within the status that they had attained. In some instances, this is a wholesome provision, developing a career service of experts; in other instances it acts as an umbrella for the inefficient, the doctrinaire, the blabber-mouth.

The President's authority thus sponsible for the entire works, he must not, in a political situation, act as an umbrella for those who should be separated from government because of their errors.

Constitutionally, it is possible to say that the sole responsibility for every executive and administrative act of government rests upon the President, but what of such agencies as TVA or the FCC or the ICC or the World Bank? The Hoover Reports have established beyond doubt the inability of any one man to monitor the whole of the American government or any large part of it.

Freedom Commission

Shreveport, La.

Senator Allen J. Ellender
Senate Office Bldg.
Washington, D.C.

Dear Senator Ellender:

I have just read the Freedom Commission Bill, S.822, and Sen. Dodd's speech of Aug. 26, 1960, concerning it. I am unable to think of enough adjectives such as "appalled, shocked, incredulous," and "disheartened, fearful, discouraged," to express my feelings about the late 86 Congress' having taken no action on this bill before they adjourned.

The bill is "to create the Freedom Commission and the Freedom Academy to research and develop an integrated, operational science to win the non-military part of the global struggle between freedom and communism and to train Government personnel, private citizens, and foreign students in this science." In the words of Sen. Dodd, so long as we are amateurs pitted against professionals, we shall continue to lose the cold war. The task of the Freedom Academy will be to develop systematic knowledge about all aspects of the Communist conspiracy; to develop a science of counteraction against Communist subersion that will see us through the perilous period ahead and ultimately pave the way for the victory of freedom; and to train Americans and nationals of other free countries in the science of total political warfare, as it must be waged by freemen.

I strongly urge you to get behind this bill and use your influence to get it is now written.

Senator what's wrong with our leadership up ther ein Washington Why have our leaders, for 15 years, consistently turned their backs on the preeminent problem of our national survival and, instead, occupied themselves with such things as federal aid to education, minimum wage bills, and the like? (As for federal aid to education, I should think any congressman truly interested in the welfare of this country could dispose of it in two seconds by the utterance of the words, "unconstitutional, unnecessary, dangerous," and then by dumping it in the trash can where it belongs.)

Tell me, Senator, do you think our leaders have often been motivated by misguided self-interest (such as fear of bad relations with the White House and the executive branch fear of being an outsider and dissenter preoccupation with matters of patronage) instead of by rational self-interest? Do they think that they themselves and their families are going to have less to lose than we out here in the grass roots section by the successful conquest of this country by the Communists? One would think that every senator and representative, every person in a policy-making or administrative position would be frantically subordinating every activity to seeing to it that America is not "pushed around, insulted, outmaneuvered, outfought, and outthought" any longer. TIME IS RUNNING OUT FOR THE FREE WORLD."

Blow At Competition

VICKSBURG, Miss.

To the Editor:

Several issues of the May 10th Monroe World, which included your editorial, "Blow at Competition," have been sent to me, and I just wanted you to know how much we appreciate not only this splendid editorial, but many other instances of support the railroads have received from your newspaper.

I like to think of what a job we could do and the improved services we could render if permitted to do some of the things other industries are allowed to do in handling their affairs. Your suggestion that fair and aggressive competition is something we should encourage to the utmost would answer the problem, if adopted. Each would fit into its proper place, and the public, as well as the employees of these companies, would benefit thereby.

Very truly yours,

Dear Sir:

If you will recall, I sometime past sent to you article by my self published in the Monroe News Star—World. In such article I defended your act in the part you played in implementing the directive of the U. S. supreme court on the segregation issue in the schools.

I have noted that recently you have indefinately postponed a hearing requested by the NAACP for the operation of the schools in Louisiana on a desegregated basis. I fully agree with you in this stand.

My understanding is that the supreme court left the implementing of desegregation to the district courts and your court has used the best of judgement in this matter.

Unwise On Cuba

Quotations From Three Sources Show Variety Of Bad Ideas

WASHINGTON, D.C. — With failure in Cuba, it is natural that we should get many remorseful critiques of that fiasco. The worst of these are faint-hearted, pacifist, penitent and not deserving of comment. But the best of them require respect even in disagreement. For example:

1. Columnist Walter Lippmann: "The ultimate reason why the Cuban affair was incompetent is that it was out of character . . . the only real altrenative to Communism is a liberal and progressive society."

2. Editorial in Toronto Daily Star: "President Kennedy has asserted the right of the U.S. to intervene anywhere in this hemisphere to block Communist penetration . . . This arrogant doctrine mocks the independence of the Western hemisphere states, including Canada . . . Castro has alienated many middle-class and liberal-minded Cubans . . . but evidently most workers and peasants are still solidly behind him. Understandably so. They have scarcely ever tasted the sweet fruits of political liberty anyhow."

3. Senator Claiborne Pell (D., R.I.): "The people of Cuba that I saw and talked to during three of four days of quiet observation (last December) were not sullen or unhappy or dissatisfied . . . The dispossessed and the disgruntled were either in jail or in exile."

These three viewpoints, while honest and respectable, are unrealistic and fatefully unwise. Mr. Lippmann is right to say that conspiratorial action against other nations is un-American and doomed for that reason — but we should have used, and must at last use, our own Armed Forces to neutralize this Communist base in Cuba. With due respect, I believe Mr. Lippmann to be wishful in his thesis that only the Good Society (to use a name he made famous) can stop Communism.

The whole difficulty is that the Good in our democratic Society has been as helpless as sheep against the wolf-pack of Communism. Not German indefatigableness, or French culture, or British coolness, or American generosity, or all institutions of liberty throughout Western civilization have prevented further Soviet advances through Europe. Russia has been deterred by fear of the U.S. Navy and Strategic Air Command with their nuclear weapons. Remove these deterrents, and the Soviet legions would march upon the West.

Similarly, the Toronto Star sees the President's reference to the Monroe Doctrine as "arrogance" and a "mockery" of liberty. But in truth, the President is defying arrogance in others and offering a defnese of liberty. In reality, only the U.S.A. is strong enough, hence responsible enough, to save the Western hemisphere from the fate of Eastern Europe.

Senator Pell's observation that most Cubans at lacge speak well of their dictator is fairly banal.

If the legislature should make this change in the state law, there would be no loss of revenue to the state. At present, the tobacco tax yields about $31 million a year.

These changes in Louisiana tax laws are being advocated by the advisory council on intergovernmental relations.

The proposal on death taxes would bring about greater uniformity in the handling of estate taxes by the federal government. It is estimated that the federal government would give up a maximum of $400 million a year in inheritance tax revenue if congress passes the pending proposal. Louisiana could share in this by changing its inheritance and state tax laws to conform to the proposal.

If this change is made, there will be no additional burden on heirs, who will pay the same total federal and state taxes, but the state would get more of the revenue.

Inheritance and estate taxes are a way of confiscating the property of those who have prospered or who have saved their money and invested in property. It is another way in which socialistic governments put a premium on indolence, mismanagement or waste.

If we must have estate and inheritance taxes and if people must be deprived of a part of the money and property they have saved and acquired after paying their full share of income tax, it is better to let the state have this money than the federal government.

In this way the state will have more money and won't have to go to the federal government so often with its hands out.

Since these two proposed tax law changes in a small measure would help to retain the state's independenece from the federal money for the citizens, there should be no hesitancy on the part of the legislature in approval of them.

Sherman Adams' Truth

Sherman Adams, former chief assistant to former President D. Eisenhower, told the truth when he said that Eisenhower's greatest days were when he followed his own instincts and spoke from the heart.

The irony of this seems to be that President Eisenhower made some of his worst mistakes while listening to the advice of Adams. Of course, he did little, if any, better when he followed the admonitions of his brother, Milton. President Eisenhower always thought his brother had more sense and better judgment than he did but in that he was wrong.

Interviewed by Robert J. Donovan, chief Washington correspondent of the New York Herald Tribune, Adams said:

"Eisenhower's greatesct days in politics were when he followed his own instincts, said what was on his mind, spoke from the heart and forgot the picayunish political philanderers who stayed with him when they thought he could win elections for them and left him when he needed their support to put over his program for America and the world.

Adams resigned his post with the Eisenhower administration in 1958 after admitting he had accepted favors from Bernard Goldfine of Boston, now in trouble with the federal government on charges of evading payment of huge sums in income taxes.

The former assistant president says the hurt of his resignation is still there but that he would go to Washington again under the same circumstances. He added:

"Accountability for the libel of a public servant in our system is virtually non-existent. I should know."

He said that this is as it should be.

In that he also spoke the truth for it is always extremely difficult to distinguish between just and unjust criticism of a man in political life. For the sake of the safety of our country, in the choosing of the best possible officials, the right to criticize politicians should not be abridged by calling such criticism libel. Our system of virtually unlimited criticism of politicians and office-holders has worked well.

Adams was assistant to the president about three-fourths of the time Eisenhower was in office. It was chiefly during the last two years of his administration that President Eisenhower used his own judgment rather than to allow the advice of others.

It was during thoselast two years that the president really gained in prestige and stature. Undoubtedly, if he had been eligible for another term and had desired to run he could have been re-elected easily.

The fact the president's judgment was largely good during that time shows that President Kennedy has been wise in consulting him in regard to world conditions.

When questioned for his opinion on international affairs, Eisenhower should continue to use his own judgement. He should say what he thinks and not what he believes Kennedy wants him to say. After all, in trying to decide on world matters, Kennedy wants really constructive advice and not just words whom those he questions think he wants to hear.

This is a time for unity against our enemies but also a time for forthrightness and honesty.

Adams deserves a little credit for being honest about the times President Eisenhower made the best decisions.

Khrush Takes Heavy Toll

More Than 3,000 Communist Party Officials Ousted In Iron-Handed Purge Behind Tight Censorship

Premier Khrushchev can justly claim consistency in one respect: He is being as bellicose inside Russia as he is elsewhere.

Since the first of the year, behind characteristic drum - tight censorship, the truculent Kremlin ruler has been conducting an iron - handed purge that so far has taken a toll of more than 3,000 Communist party officials in every section of the Soviet.

Some 400 of them were of top party rank.

The first and second party secretaries of eight of Russia's 15 republics have been fired on charges ranging from "unsatisfactory guidance of the economy" to "criminal neglect of duties."

Similarly, party secretaries have been axed or downgraded in a number of important regions, among them the great industrial centers of Stalingrad, Chelyabinsk, Pskov, Chita in eastern Siberia, and such major farming areas as Altai, Astrakhan and Voronezh.

The latest head loppings were in Kirgizia, where Premier Kazy Bikambayev and first party secretary I. R. Razzakov were booted out. Bikambayev has been replaced by T. Usubaliev, long-time Khrushchev henchman.

These purges came on the heels of a large - scale housecleaning there last month following a visit by Frol Kozlov, deputy premier to Khrushchev and generally considered his heir apparent. More than 50 Kirgizian officials were fired during and after Koslov's trip.

In Uzbekistan, Kozlov ousted first party secretary R. G. Gulanov on the ground of "criminal neglect of the economy."

These thousands of purges, ranging from collective farm chairmen and factory managers to top party officials, are the most numerous and far - reaching since 1957, when Khrushchev, amid thunderous self - righteous hoopla, wielded the hatchet on former Premier Malenkov, former Foreign Minister Molotov, veteran Transportation Minister Kaganovich and other first - rank leaders.

From time to time since those spectacular axings there have been others. But nothing comparable in scope and number to what has taken place the past five months.

WHAT'S BEHIND IT — President Kennedy and his advisers, pondering a man - to - man meeting with Khrushchev, are fully aware of this extraordinary situation inside Russia.

They have been intently studying its implications. On the basis of extensive analyses and information from diplomatic and other authoritative sources, certain conclusions have been reached as to what is behind this carefully unpublicized, far - reaching Communist party upheaval.

Foremost among these deductions are:

The Khrushchev - Kozlov faction is tightening its grip on the party machinery, which rules Russia, in preparation for the 22nd party congress scheduled for Moscow in October. This so - called national congress elects the 122-member Central committee which, in turn, names the 14-member Presidium — the real ruling power of the Soviet. The Pesidium wields the ultimate control. Khrushchev and Kozlov are making certain that the congress, the Central Committee and the Presidium are completely of their making.

Similarly, they are strengthening their domination of the party in preparation for new clashes with Red China. These are likely for various reasons, foremost among them the easing of tensions between the U. S. and Russia as a result of talks between the President and Khrushchev. Such a consequence would almost certainly be viewed unfavorably by Peiping. There are other spheres of crucial disagreement between the Soviet and Red China, and Khrushchev and his ruling clique are patently girding themselves for fateful showdowns with their Asiatic comrades.

No agenda has been announced for the October congress, and none is likely to be.

One report in diplomatic circles in Moscow is that Khrushchev will ask the congress to increase Communist party membership by one million. It now numbers some six million.

Another report is that the Young Communist League is due for a sweeping shake-up.

In a Kazakstan newspaper, copies of which have reached Moscow, Khrushchev is quoted as shouting at a meeting of party leaders, "Either produce or get out, because if you don't you'll be thrown in jail. We will not tolerate incompetents, idlers or criminals."

The national party congress consists of delegates elected by local and regional party bodies. The last congress, in 1959, approved the current five - year plan. At the 1956 congress, Khrushchev made his sensational speech castigating Stalin. That denunciation has never been published or acknowledged. It came to light through satellite sources.

THE LADIES — There are few days the White House does not receive a number of childish telephone calls for curly - haired three - year - old Caroline. That always happens after her picture appears in the papers. But the calls never reach her, although she loves to talk over the phone. The switchboard operators have strict orders against that. They do put through her calls to her grandparents and a few of her mother's close friends . . . At long last, for the first time in the 17 years she has been secretary of the Democratic National Committee, Mrs. Dorothy Vredenburgh has an office of her own. National Chairman John Bailey arranged that for her in the new headquarters. Mrs. Vredenburgh's office has dramatic green walls and red leather furnishings . . . Mrs. Lyndon Johnson is apparently peparing for a Latin American tour later on. The Second Lady is taking Spanish lessons; carried a Spanish grammar with her on the Far Eastern tour. Other prominent women studying Spanish are Mrs. William O. Douglas, wife of the Supreme Court Justice, and the wives of Senators Frank Church, Idaho, and Thomas Dodd, Conn.

GEORGE SOKOLOSKY

President's Task

Chief Executive Is Head Of State And Prime Minister

The assumption of many students of American politics is that the President, being the chief executive officer of the United States who with the Vice-President, is the only nationally elected official, is alone responsible for the conduct of government.

The Founding Fathers had a difficult time getting around the fact that they could not provide for a king in the Constitution. No principal European country, at that time, was withiut a monarch. Also at the time of the founding of the United States, the office of Prime Minister had not yet developed so that the Head of State was excluded from all executive and administrative functions. George III continued to interfere in the function of the government and Louis XVI had not yet been decapitated.

Upon the President were heaped the responsibilities of the Head of State and those of a Prime Minister. The experiment was a very successful one until the government became so complicated that in some instances the President could not know what was happening in some agencies until he read about it in the newspapers.

For the President then to assume total responsibility for all the activities of government is an absurdity. Even in the conduct of foreign affairs, there are so many agencies, that the resident may or may not know, in advance, how each is carrying out his policies.

The State Department is, of course, the central agency of government dealing with foreign relations. But then there is the CIA, an extraordinary complicated mechanism in charge of espionage, counter-espionage and paramilitary activities (cloak and dagger stuff). Then there is the ICA which distributes the aid we give to foreign countries and in this category there are several other agencies, some strictly American, some international with Americans in charge, using principally American money. The American Ambassador to the United Nations must be considered in the development of foreign policy as he has a day-by-day relationship to it.

It is impossible for the President of the United States to assume responsibility for everything men, engaged in the conduct of foreign policy, do. Before he can assume such responsibility, he must have the power to hire and fire every person engaged in handling foreign relations. In the first place, many important officials who hold such offices must be confirmed by the Senate, which can be a limitation upon the President. Then, the Foreign Service employees are part of the civil service and can only be dismissed with cause, or removed within the status that they had attained. In some instances, this is a wholesome provision, developing a career service of experts; in other instances it acts as an umbrella for the inefficient, the doctrinaire, the blabber-mouth.

The President's authority thus sponsible for the entire works, he must not, in a political situation, act as an umbrella for those who should be separated from government because of their errors.

Constitutionally, it is possible to say that the sole responsibility for every executive and administrative act of government rests upon the President, but what of such agencies as TVA or the FCC or the ICC or the World Bank? The Hoover Reports have established beyond doubt the inability of any one man to monitor the whole of the American government or any large part of it.

Freedom Commission

Shreveport, La.

Senator Allen J. Ellender
Senate Office Bldg.
Washington, D.C.

Dear Senator Ellender:

I have just read the Freedom Commission Bill, S.822, and Sen. Dodd's speech of Aug. 26, 1960, concerning it. I am unable to think of enough adjectives such as "appalled, shocked, incredulous," and "disheartened, fearful, discouraged," to express my feelings about the late 86 Congress' having taken no action on this bill before they adjourned.

The bill is "to create the Freedom Commission and the Freedom Academy to research and develop an integrated, operational science to win the non-military part of the global struggle between freedom and communism and to train Government personnel, private citizens, and foreign students in this science." In the words of Sen. Dodd, so long as we are amateurs pitted against professionals, we shall continue to lose the cold war. The task of the Freedom Academy will be to develop systematic knowledge about all aspects of the Communist conspiracy; to develop a science of counteraction against Communist subersion that will see us through the perilous period ahead and ultimately pave the way for the victory of freedom; and to train Americans and nationals of other free countries in the science of total political warfare, as it must be waged by freemen.

I strongly urge you to get behind this bill and use your influence to get it is now written.

Senator what's wrong with our leadership up ther ein Washington Why have our leaders, for 15 years, consistently turned their backs on the preeminent problem of our national survival and, instead, occupied themselves with such things as federal aid to education, minimum wage bills, and the like? (As for federal aid to education, I should think any congressman truly interested in the welfare of this country could dispose of it in two seconds by the utterance of the words, "unconstitutional, unnecessary, dangerous," and then by dumping it in the trash can where it belongs.)

Tell me, Senator, do you think our leaders have often been motivated by misguided self - interest (such as fear of bad relations with the White House and the executive branch fear of being an outsider and dissenter preoccupation with matters of patronage) instead of by rational self-interest? Do they think that they themselves and their families are going to have less to lose than we out here in the grass roots section by the successful conquest of this country by the Communists? One would think that every senator and representative, every person in a policy-making or administrative position would be frantically subordinating every activity to seeing to it that America is not "pushed around, insulted, outmaneuvered, outfought, and outthought" any longer. TIME IS RUNNING OUT FOR THE FREE WORLD."

Blow At Competition

VICKSBURG, Miss.

To the Editor:

Several issues of the May 10th Monroe World, which included your editorial, "Blow at Competition," have been sent to me, and I just wanted you to know how much we appreciate not only this splendid editorial, but many other instances of support the railroads have received from your newspaper.

I like to think of what a job we could do and the improved services we could render if permitted to do some of the things other industries are allowed to do in handling their affairs. Your suggestion that fair and aggressive competition is something we should encourage to the utmost would answer the problem, if adopted. Each would fit into its proper place, and the public, as well as the employees of these companies, would benefit thereby.

Very truly yours,

Dear Sir:

If you will recall, I sometime past sent to you article by myself published in the Monroe News Star—World. In such article I defended your act in the part you played in implementing the directive of the U. S. supreme court on the segregation issue in the schools.

I have noted that recently you have indefinately postponed a hearing requested by the NAACP for the operation of the schools in Louisiana on a desegregated basis. I fully agree with you in this stand.

My understanding is that the supreme court left the implementing of desegregation to the district courts and your court has used the best of judgement in this matter.

Unwise On Cuba

Quotations From Three Sources Show Variety Of Bad Ideas

WASHINGTON, D.C. — With failure in Cuba, it is natural that we should get many remorseful critiques of that fiasco. The worst of these are faint - hearted, pacifist, penitent and not deserving of comment. But the best of them require respect even in disagreement. For example:

1. Columnist Walter Lippmann: "The ultimate reason why the Cuban affair was incompetent is that it was out of character . . . the only real altrenative to Communism is a liberal and progressive society."

2. Editorial in Toronto Daily Star: "President Kennedy has asserted the right of the U.S. to intervene anywhere in this hemisphere to block Communist penetration . . . This arrogant doctrine mocks the independence of the Western hemisphere states, including Canada . . . Castro has alienated many middle - class and liberal - minded Cubans . . . but evidently most workers and peasants are still solidly behind him. Understandably so. They have scarcely ever tasted the sweet ruits of political liberty anyhow."

3. Senator Claiborne Pell (D., R.I.): "The people of Cuba that I saw and talked to during three of four days of quiet observation (last December) were not sullen or unhappy or dissatisfied . . . The dispossessed and the disgruntled were either in jail or in exile."

These three viewpoints, while honest and respectable, are unrealistic and fatefully unwise. Mr. Lippmann is right to say that conspiratorial action against other nations is un-American and doomed for that reason — but we should have used, and must at last use, our own Armed Forces to neutralize this Communist base in Cuba. With due respect, I believe Mr. Lippmann to be wishful in his thesis that only the Good Society (to use a name he made famous) can stop Communism.

The whole difficulty is that the Good in our democratic Society has been as helpless as sheep against the wolf-pack of Communism. Not German indefatigableness, or French culture, or British coolness, or American generosity, or all institutions of liberty throughout Western civilization have prevented further Soviet advances through Europe. Russia has been deterred by fear of the U.S. Navy and Strategic Air Command with their nuclear weapons. Remove these deterrents, and the Soviet legions would march upon the West.

Similarly, the Toronto Star sees the President's reference to the Monroe Doctrine as "arrogance" and a "mockery" of liberty. But in truth, the President is defying arrogance in others and offering a defnese of liberty. In reality, only the U.S.A. is strong enough, hence responsible enough, to save the Western hemisphere from the fate of Eastern Europe.

Senator Pell's observation that most Cubans at large speak well of their dictator is fairly banal.

What Others Say

Two legislative developments in Florida recently merit note, according to the monthly bulletin put out by the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association.

The two bills:

1. One to prohibit publication or broadcast of confessions prior to trial was killed by a Senate Juriciary Committee.

2. The other development, Representative Karl introduced a bill in the Florida House to repeal a 1912 statute requiring newspapers to publish replies to attacks on political candidates. Karl said the old law violates every principle of freedom of the press set forth in a long series of U.S. and Florida Supreme Court cases.

All we can say, is thanks to Mr. Karl. Its wonderful to know there are still people who stand up for what they believe to be right —even when they, too, may be criticized by the object which they have defended.

In a recent editorial, the Houston Chronicle, under the heading — "Strict Press Self-Censorship Can Do More Harm than Good" — brought up many interesting points. For that reason, it is being reprinted below:

President Kennedy did not make a good enough case for greater self - censorship by newspapers in his talk to the publishers Thursday night. He will have to give more documentation than he gave the publishers if he is to establish that the enemies of freedom get a great deal of information out of our newspapers which they otherwise could not obtain readily.

As a matter of fact there is plenty of evidence that the Russians can get every bit of information they need whether it is printed or not. No newspaper printed the specifications for making the atomic and hydrogen bombs but American traitors gave them to the enemy.

The Russians have an extensive and efficient espionage system in this country. Their swollen staffs at their embassy and at the United Nations; every member of the Communist party; and any number of their fellow travelers are obtaining and passing information on to them all the time. No one knows how many Alger Hisses, Judith Coplins and Rosenbergs are still active, many of them within government. Or how many communications workers are agents of the Communist conspiracy.

The President is entirely right in his statement that Communist cold-war tactics constitute a threat that ranks with war itself, and that danger "has never been more imminent. It is also true that at such a time every publication should ask itself, before printing certain information, whether it could prove of value to the enemy.

But we are convinced that precious little such information has been printed that the enemy did not already have or was not in position to obtain anyway. We are convinced that if any responsible newspaper — and most newspapers are responsible — obtains information that the enemy should not have it will check with the proper authority before printing it.

The President's address unfortunately will encourage officials to withhold information the people should have. There has been entirely too much of that already.

And the further danger, if our newspapers should apply self-censorship too stringently, is that the American people would be denied facts they should have while the enemy would have the information anyway. We can go too far in abridging the people's right to know. That is the greater danger.

The other day, The Times over in Shreveport came up with a little gem. We thought you would like it and hence we're passing it on. It said:

The Russians are said to be on the verge of perfecting a drug that will enable you to get all the sleep you need in three hours. This will lengthen the waking — and presumably working — day in the Peoples Paradise to 21 hours. That's three times the seven hours that the unions say will be our work day.

But American scientists are busy, too; they've isolated the biochemical that induces sleep. They can inject it into a fully-rested person and throw him into a doze. That's for us.

Sleep may be something dreamt up by the cave men (as scientists say it is) to while away the dark hours, but our only complaint is that they didn't go far enough in perfecting the technique. Now U.S. scientists have. A three-hour work-day and 21 hours of sleep strikes us as just about the right balance.

Here And There

Some brief — but interesting comments were made the other day by General Lyman L. Lemnitzer — chairman of the Joint chiefs of Staff in testimony before Congress.

Said the general:

"In the past year, there has been a deterioration in the international situation from that that existed a year ago. I would say that the imminence of general war is not any greater today than it was a year ago . . . No one is going to embark on a general war if he knows it is going to result in his own distruction But we always have the problem of a general war occurring through accident — or through escalation of a small war." That, of course, is the chance that nations have taken through the ages — and in nearly every case it has been a small war or incident that touched off the big one . . .

Another interesting item from Washington is the fact that the Kennedy administration isn't so eager to finance the so - called prestige study for the U.S. abroad. As you recall, Mr. Kennedy used this survey repeatedly in his attack on Mr. Nixon during the presidential campaign. Now that he's in the White House, he apparently doesn't want the prestige measured. Confidential reports say this country's prestige at present is about as low as it's ever been . . . .

Fidel Castro — the little guy that should be killed like a mad dog — is taking another tip from his Soviet masters; he's not publicizing the fact that his firing squads are as busy as ever. Until the recent invasion, Castro's group announced frequently how many they were killing, but now they're not. However, best reports from that terror - dominated island indicates that a real reign of terror is underway. For example, 200,000 Cubans were arrested and jammed into prisons where there was standing room only. At one fort in Havana, 60 persons reportedly were shot — and the executions are being stepped up.

The British, too, are having trouble with their intelligence agencies which correspond to our CIA. In fact, a sweeping investigation is underway. It seems two recent spy cases have stirred public doubts about the efficiency of the organizations. In the first one, five persons were convicted for stealing British naval secrets for Russia. Then, George Blake was convicted of funneling secrets to Russia for nine and a half-years. Actually, as it turned out, it seems Blake had been a British intelligence agent who was secretly working for Russia, and that British intelligence networks had been seriously endangered.

There's an interesting note in the news about the gifted children's program throughout the nation. A study of the academically talented children, made public by the national Education Association, shows these findings: Gifted youngsters are superior in most areas of schoolwork — not just one; they are emotionally healthy, and generally, they are fine physical specimens. Then, too, the report says the superiority of the gifted carries through into adult life . . .

Summer Reading Club

Here's something the younger groups should really take advantage of: it is the Summer Vacation Reading Club, sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Public Library.

The theme for this season is "The Civil War Centennial" according to Francis Flanders, the Ouachita Parish librarian.

Every youngster who reads 15 books during the summer months will earn a pin, which has the confederate and U.S. flags crossed on it, and a reading certificate.

According to Miss Flanders children from the fifth grade up must read at least three books about the Civil War. The pins will be presented on completion of reading, while the certificates will be given at school after schools open in September.

Incidentally, this is the 13th annual summer reading club sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Public Library. During the 12 years it has been in operation, 12,353 certificates have been awarded.

The reading club begins on May 29 and ends September 2. Everyone who can qualify should take advantage of this wonderful opportunity — another service of one of the best library systems in the country.

Life's Funny Side

Do you know it is getting more expensive to get married . . . The average wedding today costs the bride — or we should say her pop — nearly $1,700 . . . This includes $160 for the dress, $600 for a reception . . . But it doesn't cover the new $3.50 necktie the bridegroom buys for the ceremony or the $100 spent on the honeymoon . . . The most popular marrying age in this country, incidentally, has dropped to 18 for brides, 21 for men . . .

This one will surprise you. A study made at Cornell University shows that the pig is smarter than he looks . . . In fact the lowly grunter is the most intelligent of all domestic animals . . .

A good quote by John Dewey . . . "It seems to me that the chief danger to religion lies in the fact that it has become respectable."

Here are a couple of definitions that sound interesting. If you put cotton in your ears and pull down the shades during a thunder and lightning storm, you have karaunophobica. If you are afraid to handle a knife or any sharp instrument, you have aichmophobia.

Signs of the times: In the window of a woman'a specialty shop — "We have everything for tall girls, except tall men."

A good one — a wacky ad from a west coast paper: "For sale, large sugar plants. A steal. Write Castro, Box 1, Cuba."

Military Role Is Questioned

EDITOR'S NOTE: A great—military-industrial complex is one of the necessities of the cold war. But two presidents have warned that its influence on the nation's life must not become excessive. Here is a revealing study of this giant network of military, economic, and political relationships.

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twice within a 60-day period a different president of the United States expressed concern over the role of the military in the life of the nation.

It can now be reported on high authority that President Kennedy took office convinced that the military establishment had obtained greater power than was desirable.

And in his final statement as president, Dwight D. Eisenhower cautioned: "In the councils of government we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence. . .by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rule of misplaced power exists and will persist."

President Kennedy declared in his March 28 special message on the defense budget: "Neither our strategy nor our psychology as a nation — and certainly not our economy — must become dependend upon the permanet maintenance of a large military establishment." He added: "Our arms must be subject to civilian control at all times."

One of the first subjects Kennedy discussed with his staff after his inauguration was the matter of putting a halter on the military. He is known to feel that military men have been meddling too much in areas of primary civilian concern, especially foreign affairs.

At the President's direction, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara moved quickly to put a lid on saber-rattling speeches by ranking military officers.

Two big questions are raised by the expressions of presidential concern over the role of the military establishment in the nation's economy and affairs.

1. Is there an interlocking alliance, perhaps an unwitting one, among military, industrial and political interests in which the national interest could be subordinated?

2. Is there real danger of excessive influence by the gigantic military-industrial complex?

Both Mr. Kennedy and his predecessor have suggested that, at the very least, these questions bear careful examination.

What, is the military-industrial complex and how does it function?

Primarily, it owes its enormous scope to the cold war which has compelled the nation to maintain large professional armed services and a huge defense budget. Four major factors are involved:

1. The big spending by the Defense Department and the channeling of these funds.

2. The ramifications of defense spending in all segments of the economy.

3. The relationship between the military and Congress. Congressmen have vital interest in whether, and how much, defense money is spent in their districts. Congress also must keep an eye on the over-all operation.

4. The relationship between the armed services, defense contractors, service organizations, procurement officers and others.

Drawing upon a number of sources and official documents, let's fill in the picture in some detail.

The Defense Department now spends about $42 billion annually, or more than 50 per cent of the total national budget.

Roughly $21 billion of the total is allocated by the department for the procurement of goods.

The subcommittee on defense procurement of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, chairmanned by Sen. Paul Douglas, D.-Ill., estimates that the Defense Department spends twice as much on procurement as the entire nation spends on public education.

The Defense Department says it employs 3½ million persons directly, including 947,000 civilians, and has an annual payroll of $11 billion.

That is more than twice the annual payroll of the entire automobile industry.

While there are no precise figures available on how many persons are employed in defense industries, there are rough estimates that the number is between three and four millions.

This means that the jobs of between 6½ and 7½ million Americans depend upon defense spending.

If you assume that each of these persons supports two others on the average, the number concerned rises to somewhere between 19½ and 22½ million.

The U. S. labor force is around 75 million. If the estimates are valid, about 10 per cent of the entire labor force is occupied with defense.

Of the $21 billion set aside for procurement, about $15.4 billion is being spent with 100 giant corporations, according to the defense department.

About half of the $15.4 billion, or $7.6 billion, is being spent with 10 of these huge corporations alone.

Now for one final figure: 86.4 per cent of the $21 billion procurement total is being handed out by military officers to industry without competitive bidding.

The military insist that national security needs make these noncompetitive contract awards necessary.

Since 1947 Congress has been recommending that the system of awarding contracts without competitive bidding, and with little regard to the values in the open market, be abandoned save in extremely rare instances. But the practice continues.

The records of Congress are not only filled with examples of the Defense Department's refusal to supply information but even, in some instances, examples of misinformation.

In 1958 the House Freedom of Information Committee, headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D.-Calif., cited a large number of such refusals and then reported: "The Department of Defense has evolved a policy . . . under which officials are claiming the right to determine what information Congress shall and shall not have."

For some years Congress has sought to force the Defense Department to set up a system whereby all the services use a single manager system of procurement, especially for common-use items.

In January, 1960, the joint subcommittee on procurement disclosed that it had a glowing report from defense on the progress being made toward the single manager system.

Richard J. Newman, investigator for the committee, testified there was only one thing wrong with the report: It was not true—and the people in the Pentagon who put it together knew it.

Sen. Douglas then asked, "How can we operate in Congress when we get statements of purported fact which we have to rely upon which are untrue?"

There are 738 military installations in 282 of the country's 437 congressional districts. This figure does not include defense plants.

Decisions on whether to maintain these military installations at their present strength, whether to close them altogether, or reduce them in size are matters for military recommendation.

What defense plant is going to get what business handed it by a procurement officer is also a matter for military recommendation.

In brief, matters which can affect the economic welfare of a large number of congressional districts are matters of military recommendation at times.

Back in 1959 the House subcommittee for special investigations became curious as to how many of the 100 top defense contractors employed retired military men above the grade of major. Back came the answers from 72 of the contractors: 1,426, including 261 generals and admirals.

In subsequent hearings the committee found that while none of these officers was engaged in selling or negotiating defense contracts, they did have "representation functions."

Exercise of the "representation function," so the committee found, included entertainment and favors for military men.

The award or cancellation of defense contracts often can have an enormous impact on congressional districts. A $500-million cutback in the Bomarc missile production forced the layoff of 2,700 employes in one district alone.

A Dramatic Document Of A Campaign

REPORT OF THE COUNTY CHAIRMAN. By James A. Michener. Random House. $3.95.

Most people think of Michener as a best selling novelist ("Hawaii" at present). They tend to forget he was trained in economics, government and political science, and has demonstrated more than once a strong sense of civic responsibility.

Because he thought it was his duty as a citizen, he was up to his ears in partisan politics in the 1960 campaign. He headed the Citizens for Kennedy group in his own county and barnstormed with other celebrities on a cross country tour. This book is a complete record of what happened to him, and around him, before and during the campaign. Because he seems to have almost total recall, it is filled with an amazing amount of detail.

His home county is Bucks, near Philadelphia, which happens to be an intriguing scene for politics. For years Bucks was the center of Republican Grundyism. German Lutherans and Mennonites are there, along with the fashionable suburban set, and a few years ago Levittown brought a flood of young families to the southern section.

You can watch Michener grow in practical political experience in this account. He begins by telling how he decided to back Kennedy, how he felt about the candidates for both nominations—he believed Rockefeller could have been a winner—and then how his own views on the issues changed as the campaign progressed.

He tells what it is like to meet, on the precinct and county level, the issues of race and religion. He tells how decisions were reached to soft pedal some topics and hit others. He 's mystified by Eisenhower's late entry into the campaign, and tells how he switched from a neutralist position on Nixon to disliking him. He first decides Kennedy won the election, but swings around to the belief that Nixon lost it through bungling.

Kennedy didn't take Bucks County. But Nixon's margin in Bucks and other counties was smaller than he needed to offset the heavy Democratic voting in Pennsylvania's big cities.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS,

Ouachita Parish Librarian

As the summer vacation period approaches everyone will find more time for reading just for pleasure. Most of the clubs in Ouachita Parish do not function during the summer, children are out of school and there is more leisure time. There is not a better way to spend it than in reading books at the Ouachita Parish Public Library.

Several new books have arrived during the past week. "Thunder on the Chespeake" by David Divine is an absorbing account of a major sea conflict that ended for all time one era of naval history and ushered in another. It also forms a memorable addition to our knowledge of the sufferings, the doubts, and the motivations of men and women torn apart by war and driven by new and fearful passions. It is a most timely book, since this is the Centennial year of the Civil War.

A story which tears the heart strings of the reader is "Shame of our Wounds" by Arthur Roth. This book has it's setting in a boy's orphanage and the story of the sufferings of the hero are almost unimaginable. One of the most clever of modern writers is Peter DeVries, who has a devoted following. His latest book is called "Through the Fields of Clover" and is one of his usual books about the doings of the so called "Smart Set". Mr. DeVries writes very clearly, but I really would not care to know any of his characters. The many people who like to read mystery stories will welcome a reprint of one of the best of Ellery Queen's. It is called XYZ murders and contains three separate stories. A timely and important novel of American life today is "A Shooting Star" by Wallace Stegner. With a background of more than usual brilliance, this is a story of a woman and the failure of her marriage and how she solved her problems.

Una Troy has given us a group of delightful stories with a present day Irish setting. Her latest one is called "The Other End of the Bridge". If you want to read something for pure entertainment, I can heartily recommend this book and if you have missed it, go back and read her "We are Seven" which appeared several years ago.

The non - fiction added during the past week continues to show a great variety and will appeal to many different people. Laurence F. Schmeckebier is the author of an interesting study called "Government Publications and their Use." One of the most exciting robberies of modern times was the hold up of the Brinks armored car several years ago. Sid Feder and Edward Gibbons have written an interesting account of this event which they call "The Great Brinks Holdup". An interesting project from a scientific viewpoint is the Mohole project in which scientists have pierced the crust of the earth. Willard Bascom has written a very fine account of this activity which he calls "A Hole in the Bottom of the Sea."

Gardeners will be interested in a new book called "The Lawn Book" written by Robert W. Schery. It contains much splendid information about making and building a lawn. One of the most popular sections in the library is the cook book section. Phyllis MacDonald has written a new one especially for older people which she calls "The Golden Age Cookbook". One of the most colorful painters of the American scene was Frederic Remington, whose paintings will always keep alive a forgotten era. Now we have a beautiful book containing many of them, with comments and text called "Frederic Remington's Own West." This is a book which will appeal to artists and those who like the west. Sir Harold Nicholson is the author of "The Age of Reason" which is a complete account of life in the eighteenth century. "The Queen's Necklace" by Frances Mossiker is an account of the diamond necklace affair, which was one of the precipitating causes of the French Revolution.

Books about the Civil War continue to arrive and they are all eagerly read by the library patrons. The latest one is "Inferno at Petersburg", written by Henry Pleasants, Jr. This is a true account of one of the bloodiest battles of the Civil War. A very useful addition to the genealogy collection of the Library is "Marriage Contracts of Natchitoches, 1739-1803" compiled by Winston De Ville. This is a copy of records on file in the Court House in Natchitoches and should be most useful. Good histories of Louisiana are very scarce and we are happy that Dr. Edwin Adams Davis of the History Department of the Louisiana State University has just written an excellent one. It is a three volume set. The first volume is a very good history of our state, the other two volumes are biographical, containing much excellent information about people now living in Louisiana. Most of the people in the biographical sections live in the Southern part of the State, but the publisher assured me that a fourth volume, dealing with Monroe and Shreveport would be released in the fall. The books are interesting and valuable for reference material.

RUNNING THE SCALES

'Birdie' Producer To Publish 'Bravo'

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

"Bravo!" That's the name of a new magazine of the lively arts which will be an enterprise of former Monroyan L. Slade Brown.

While Brown will be executive vice president of the publication, another name familiar to Monroe concert - goers will sit behind the president's desk at the "Bravo!" company. That is Arthur A. Whittemore. He is the other half of the Whittemore and Lowe duo - piano team which fired up the twin "88's" here several years ago.

"Bye Bye Birdie," a musical comedy which Brown and Edward Padula produced turned out as one of the hits of 1960. Reports from the left bank of the Hudson River have it that another hoped-for hit is already in the works.

WORKSHOP

The opening of Strauss Playhouse here holds hopes of the creation of real tri - state theatre center in Monroe. Northeast State College will combine forces with the Little Theatre and its director, Richard Clark, to offer a summer workshop this year for directors, students of speech and drama and others interested in the theatre. George Brian, director of dramatics at the college, will conduct the course and direct the plays to be produced.

By the way, Director Clark reports rehearsals for "Diary of Anne Frank" progressing smoothly and the play — final offering on the regular 1960-61 Little Theatre schedule — will begin its run during last week in May.

"The Devil's General" was a German film with English subtitles shown last week by the Northeast department of languages. The movie, which starred Kurt Jurgens in the title role, was built around the conflicting attitudes in German military and political circles which saw that nation plunged into war and defeat. Scenes were rapidly paced and dialects were thick in some instances.

As a piece of educational material, the film served good purpose and merits several follow-ups. Many European children have learned "American" by going to the movies.

POST MORTEM

The Dallas Theater Center's experiment on tour, "The Chairs," touched off such comment among local theatre goers until a few additional remarks are in order.

The New York critics were split down the middle on pro's and con's. Some thought it "original and stimulating," others said "boring" when the play ran there in 1958.

From photographs of other productions, we concluded the Dallas group did the best possible with the piece by staging it as an 18th century ballet gone wild.

The long middle section which dealt with the arrival of "guests" and the placing of the empty chairs onstage could have been cut in half and then some.

Perhaps playwright Ionesco thinks he hit upon something clever by placing his audience in the position of innocents in a mad house. If this is the case, then he should not be so brutal as to call his work a "tragic farce". The age of the sick or "gruesome" joke is past.

A typical attitude of many mental illnesses carries the statement from the patient, "I wanted to say but I couldn't say." This may parallel the frustration felt by everyone who tries to write or otherwise deal with creative arts.

But it is not the same thing; the one cannot be substituted for the other. So far as can be determined, creative efforts through the ages have made such good sense as to be profound in many instances.

Who are we moderns to turn nonsense into creativity?

What Others Say

Two legislative developments in Florida recently merit note, according to the monthly bulletin put out by the Southern Newspaper Publishers Association.

The two bills:

1. One to prohibit publication or broadcast of confessions prior to trial was killed by a Senate Juriciary Committee.

2. The other development, Representative Karl introduced a bill in the Florida House to repeal a 1912 statute requiring newspapers to publish replies to attacks on political candidates. Karl said the old law violates every principle of freedom of the press set forth in a long series of U.S. and Florida Supreme Court cases.

All we can say, is thanks to Mr. Karl. Its wonderful to know there are still people who stand up for what they believe to be right —even when they, too, may be criticized by the object which they have defended.

In a recent editorial, the Houston Chronicle, under the heading — "Strict Press Self-Censorship Can Do More Harm than Good' — brought up many interesting points. For that reason, it is being reprinted below:

President Kennedy did not make a good enough case for greater self - censorship by newspapers in his talk to the publishers Thursday night. He will have to give more documentation than he gave the publishers if he is to establish that the enemies of freedom get a great deal of information out of our newspapers which they otherwise could not obtain readily.

As a matter of fact there is plenty of evidence that the Russians can get every bit of information they need whether it is printed or not. No newspaper printed the specifications for making the atomic and hydrogen bombs but American traitors gave them to the enemy.

The Russians have an extensive and efficient espionage system in this country. Their swollen staffs at their embassy and at the United Nations; every member of the Communist party; and any number of their fellow travelers are obtaining and passing information on to them all the time. No one knows how many Alger Hisses, Judith Coplins and Rosenbergs are still active, many of them within government. Or how many communications workers are agents of the Communist conspiracy.

The President is entirely right in his statement that Communist cold-war tactics constitute a threat that ranks with war itself, and that danger "has never been more imminent. It is also true that at such a time every publication should ask itself, before printing certain information, whether it could prove of value to the enemy.

But we are convinced that precious little such information has been printed that the enemy did not already have or was not in position to obtain anyway. We are convinced that if any responsible newspaper — and most newspapers are responsible — obtains information that the enemy should not have it will check with the proper authority before printing it.

The President's address unfortunately will encourage officials to withhold information the people should have. There has been entirely too much of that already.

And the further danger, if our newspapers should apply self-censorship too stringently, is that the American people would be denied facts they should have while the enemy would have the information anyway. We can go too far in abridging the people's right to know. That is the greater danger.

The other day. The Times over in Shreveport came up with a little gem. We thought you would like it and hence we're passing it on. It said:

The Russians are said to be on the verge of perfecting a drug that will enable you to get all the sleep you need in three hours. This will lengthen the waking — and presumably working — day in the Peoples Paradise to 21 hours. That's three times the seven hours that the unions say will be our work day.

But American scientists are busy, too; they've isolated the biochemical that induces sleep. They can inject it into a fully-rested person and throw him into a doze. That's for us.

Sleep may be something dreamt up by the cave men (as scientists say it is) to while away the dark hours, but our only complaint is that they didn't go far enough in perfecting the technique. Now U.S. scientists have. A three-hour work-day and 21 hours of sleep strikes us as just about the right balance.

Here And There

Some brief — but interesting comments were made the other day by General Lyman L. Lemnitzer — chairman of the Joint chiefs of Staff in testimony before Congress.

Said the general:

"In the past year, there has been a deterioration in the international situation from that that existed a year ago. I would say that the imminence of general war is not any greater today than it was a year ago . . . No one is going to embark on a general war if he knows it is going to result in his own distruction But we always have the problem of a general war occurring through accident — or through escalation of a small war." That, of course, is the chance that nations have taken through the ages — and in nearly every case it has been a small war or incident that touched off the big one . . .

Another interesting item from Washington is the fact that the Kennedy administration isn't so eager to finance the so - called prestige study for the U.S. abroad. As you recall, Mr. Kennedy used this survey repeatedly in his attack on Mr. Nixon during the presidential campaign. Now that he's in the White House, he apparently doesn't want the prestige measured. Confidential reports say this country's prestige at present is about as low as it's ever been . . . .

Fidel Castro — the little guy that should be killed like a mad dog — is taking another tip from his Soviet masters; he's not publicizing the fact that his firing squads are as busy as ever. Until the recent invasion, Castro's group announced frequently how many they were killing, but now they're not. However, best reports from that terror - dominated island indicates that a real reign of terror is underway. For example, 200,000 Cubans were arrested and jammed into prisons where there was standing room only. At one fort in Havana, 60 persons reportedly were shot — and the executions are being stepped up.

The British, too, are having trouble with their intelligence agencies which correspond to our CIA. In fact, a sweeping investigation is underway. It seems two recent spy cases have stirred public doubts about the efficiency of the organizations. In the first one, five persons were convicted for stealing British naval secrets for Russia. Then, George Blake was convicted of funneling secrets to Russia for nine and a half-years. Actually, as it turned out, it seems Blake had been a British intelligence agent who was secretly working for Russia, and that British intelligence networks had been seriously endangered.

There's an interesting note in the news about the gifted children's program throughout the nation. A study of the academically talented children, made public by the national Education Association, shows these findings: Gifted youngsters are superior in most areas of schoolwork — not just one; they are emotionally healthy, and generally, they are fine physical specimens. Then, too, the report says the superiority of the gifted carries through into adult life . . .

Summer Reading Club

Here's something the younger groups should really take advantage of: it is the Summer Vacation Reading Club, sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Public Library.

The theme for this season is "The Civil War Centennial" according to Francis Flanders, the Ouachita Parish librarian.

Every youngster who reads 15 books during the summer months will earn a pin, which has the confederate and U.S. flags crossed on it, and a reading certificate.

According to Miss Flanders children from the fifth grade up must read at least three books about the Civil War. The pins will be presented on completion of reading, while the certificates will be given at school after schools open in September.

Incidentally, this is the 13th annual summer reading club sponsored by the Ouachita Parish Public Library. During the 12 years it has been in operation, 12,353 certificates have been awarded.

The reading club begins on May 29 and ends September 2. Everyone who can qualify should take advantage of this wonderful opportunity — another service of one of the best library systems in the country.

Life's Funny Side

Do you know it is getting more expensive to get married . . . The average wedding today costs the bride — or we should say her pop — nearly $1,700 . . . This includes $160 for the dress, $600 for a reception . . . But it doesn't cover the new $3.50 necktie the bridegroom buys for the ceremony or the $400 spent on the honeymoon . . . The most popular marrying age in this country, incidentally, has dropped to 18 for brides, 21 for men . . .

This one will surprise you. A study made at Cornell University shows that the pig is smarter than he looks . . . In fact the lowly grunter is the most intelligent of all domestic animals . . .

A good quote by John Dewey . . . "It seems to me that the chief danger to religion lies in the fact that it has become respectable."

Here are a couple of definitions that sound interesting. If you put cotton in your ears and pull down the shades during a thunder and lightning storm, you have karaunophobica. If you are afraid to handle a knife or any sharp instrument, you have aichmophobia.

Signs of the times: In the window of a woman'a specialty shop — "We have everything for tall girls, except tall men."

A good one — a wacky ad from a west coast paper: "For sale, large sugar plants. A steal. Write Castro, Box 1, Cuba."

Military Role Is Questioned

EDITOR'S NOTE: A great— military-industrial complex is one of the necessities of the cold war. But two presidents have warned that its influence on the nation's life must not become excessive. Here is a revealing study of this giant network of military, economic, and political relationships.

By BEM PRICE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Twice within a 60-day period a different president of the United States expressed concern over the role of the military in the life of the nation.

It can now be reported on high authority that President Kennedy took office convinced that the military establishment had obtained greater power than was desirable.

And in his final statement as president, Dwight D. Eisenhower cautioned: "In the councils of government we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence. . .by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rule of misplaced power exists and will persist."

President Kennedy declared in his March 28 special message on the defense budget: "Neither our strategy nor our psychology as a nation — and certainly not our economy — must become depended upon the permanet maintenance of a large military establishment." He added: "Our arms must be subject to civilian control at all times."

One of the first subjects Kennedy discussed with his staff after his inauguration was the matter of putting a halter on the military. He is known to feel that military men have been meddling too much in areas of primary civilian concern, especially foreign affairs.

At the President's direction, Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara moved quickly to put a lid on saber-rattling speeches by ranking military officers.

Two big questions are raised by the expressions of presidential concern over the role of the military establishment in the nation's economy and affairs.

1. Is there an interlocking alliance, perhaps an unwitting one, among military, industrial and political interests in which the natonal interest could be subordinated?

2. Is there real danger of excessive influence by the gigantic military-industrial complex?

Both Mr. Kennedy and his predecessor have suggested that, at the very least, these questions bear careful examination.

What, is the military-industrial complex and how does it function?

Primarily, it owes its enormous scope to the cold war which has compelled the nation to maintain large professional armed services and a huge defense budget. Four major factors are involved:

1. The big spending by the Defense Department and the channeling of these funds.

2. The ramifications of defense spending in all segments of the economy.

3. The relationship between the military and Congress. Congressmen have vital interest in whether, and how much, defense money is spent in their districts. Congress also must keep an eye on the over-all operation.

4. The relationship between the armed services, defense contractors, service organizations, procurement officers and others.

Drawing upon a number of sources and official documents, let's fill in the picture in some detail.

The Defense Department now spends about $42 billion annually, or more than 50 per cent of the total national budget.

Roughly $21 billion of the total is allocated by the department for the procurement of goods.

The subcommittee on defense procurement of the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, chairmanned by Sen. Paul Douglas, D.-Ill., estimates that the Defense Department spends twice as much on procurement as the entire nation spends on public education.

The Defense Department says it employs 3½ million persons directly, including 947,000 civilians, and has an annual payroll of $11 billion.

That is more than twice the annual payroll of the entire automobile industry.

While there are no precise figures available on how many persons are employed in defense industries, there are rough estimates that the number is between three and four millions.

This means that the jobs of between 6½ and 7½ million Americans depend upon defense spending.

If you assume that each of these persons supports two others on the average, the number concerned rises to somewhere between 19½ and 22½ million.

The U. S. labor force is around 75 million. If the estimates are valid, about 10 per cent of the entire labor force is occupied with defense.

Of the $21 billion set aside for procurement, about $15.4 billion is being spent with 100 giant corporations, according to the defense department.

About half of the $15.4 billion, or $7.6 billion, is being spent with 10 of these huge corporations alone.

Now for one final figure: 86.4 per cent of the $21 billion procurement total is being handed out by military officers to industry without competitive bidding.

The military insist that national security needs make these noncompetitive contract awards necessary.

Since 1947 Congress has been recommending that the system of awarding contracts without competitive bidding, and with little regard to the values in the open market, be abandoned save in extremely rare instances. But the practice continues.

The records of Congress are not only filled with examples of the Defense Department's refusal to supply information but even, in some instances, examples of misinformation.

In 1958 the House Freedom of Information Committee, headed by Rep. John E. Moss, D.-Calif., cited a large number of such refusals and then reported: "The Department of Defense has evolved a policy . . . under which officials are claiming the right to determine what information Congress shall and shall not have."

For some years Congress has sought to force the Defense Department to set up a system whereby all the services use a single manager system of procurement, especially for common-use items.

In January, 1960, the joint subcommittee on procurement disclosed that it had a glowing report from defense on the progress being made toward the single manager system.

Richard J. Newman, investigator for the committee, testified there was only one thing wrong with the report: It was not true— and the people in the Pentagon who put it together knew it.

Sen. Douglas then asked, "How can we operate in Congress when we get statements of purported fact which we have to rely upon which are untrue?"

There are 738 military installations in 282 of the country's 437 congressional districts. This figure does not include defense plants.

Decisions on whether to maintain these military installations at their present strength, whether to close them altogether, or reduce them in size are matters for military recommendation.

What defense plant is going to get what business handed it by a procurement officer is also a matter for military recommendation.

In brief, matters which can affect the economic welfare of a large number of congressional districts are matters of military recommendation at times.

Back in 1959 the House subcommittee for special investigations became curious as to how many of the 100 top defense contractors employed retired military men above the grade of major. Back came the answers from 72 of the contractors: 1,426, including 261 generals and admirals.

In subsequent hearings the committee found that while none of these officers was engaged in selling or negotiating defense contracts, they did have "representation functions."

Exercise of the "representation function," so the committee found, included entertainment and favors for military men.

The award or cancellation of defense contracts often can have an enormous impact on congressional districts. A $500-million cutback in the Bomarc missile production forced the layoff of 2,700 employes in one district alone.

A Dramatic Document Of A Campaign

REPORT OF THE COUNTY CHAIRMAN. By James A. Michener. Random House. $3.95.

Most people think of Michener as a best selling novelist ("Hawaii" at present). They tend to forget he was trained in economics, government and political science, and has demonstrated more than once a strong sense of civic responsibility.

Because he thought it was his duty as a citizen, he was up to his ears in partisan politics in the 1960 campaign. He headed the Citizens for Kennedy group in his own county and barnstormed with other celebrities on a cross country tour. This book is a complete record of what happened to him, and around him, before and during the campaign. Because he seems to have almost total recall, it is filled with an amazing amount of detail.

His home county is Bucks, near Philadelphia, which happens to be an intriguing scene for politics. For years Bucks was the center of Republican Grundyism. German Lutherans and Mennonites are there, along with the fashionable suburban set, and a few years ago Levittown brought a flood of young families to the southern section.

You can watch Michener grow in practical political experience in this account. He begins by telling how he decided to back Kennedy, how he felt about the candidates for both nominations— he believed Rockefeller could have been a winner—and then how his own views on the issues changed as the campaign progressed.

He tells what it is like to meet, on the precinct and county level, the issues of race and religion. He tells how decisions were reached to soft pedal some topics and hit others. He 's mystified by Eisenhower's late entry into the campaign, and tells how he switched from a neutralist position on Nixon to disliking him. He first decides Kennedy won the election, but swings around to the belief that Nixon lost it through bungling.

Kennedy didn't take Bucks County. But Nixon's margin in Bucks and other counties was smaller than he needed to offset the heavy Democratic voting in Pennsylvania's big cities.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS,

Ouachita Parish Librarian

As the summer vacation period approaches everyone will find more time for reading just for pleasure. Most of the clubs in Ouachita Parish do not function during the summer, children are out of school and there is more leisure time. There is not a better way to spend it than in reading books at the Ouachita Parish Public Library.

Several new books have arrived during the past week. "Thunder on the Chespeake" by David Divine is an absorbing account of a major sea conflict that ended for all time one era of naval history and ushered in another. It also forms a memorable addition to our knowledge of the sufferings, the doubts, and the motivations of men and women torn apart by war and driven by new and fearful passions. It is a most timely book, since this is the Centennial year of the Civil War. A story which tears the heart strings of the reader is "Shame of our Wounds" by Arthur Roth. This book has it's setting in a boy's orphanage and the story of the sufferings of the hero are almost unimaginable. One of the most clever of modern writers is Peter DeVries, who has a devoted following. His latest book is called "Through the Fields of Clover" and is one of his usual books about the doings of the so called "Smart Set". Mr. DeVries writes very clearly, but I really would not care to know any of his characters. The many people who like to read mystery stories will welcome a reprint of one of the best of Ellery Queen's. It is called XYZ murders and contains three separate stories. A timely and important novel of American life today is "A Shooting Star" by Wallace Stegner. With a background of more than usual brilliance, this is a story of a woman and the failure of her marriage and how she solved her problems.

Una Troy has given us a group of delightful stories with a present day Irish setting. Her latest one is called "The Other End of the Bridge". If you want to read something for pure entertainment, I can heartily recommend this book and if you have missed it, go back and read her "We are Seven" which appeared several years ago.

The non - fiction added during the past week continues to show a great variety and will appeal to many different people. Laurence F. Schmeckebier is the author of an interesting study called "Government Publications and their Use." One of the most exciting robberies of modern times was the hold up of the Brinks armored car several years ago. Sid Feder and Edward Gibbons have written an interesting account of this event which they call "The Great Brinks Holdup". An interesting project from a scientific viewpoint is the Mohole project in which scientists have pierced the crust of the earth. Willard Bascom has written a very fine account of this activity which he calls "A Hole in the Bottom of the Sea."

Gardeners will be interested in a new book called "The Lawn Book" written by Robert W. Schery. It contains much splendid information about making and building a lawn. One of the most popular sections in the library is the cook book section. Phyllis MacDonald has written a new one especially for older people which she calls "The Golden Age Cookbook". One of the most colorful painters of the American scene was Frederic Remington, whose paintings will always keep alive a forgotten era. Now we have a beautiful book containing many of them, with comments and text called "Frederic Remington's Own West." This is a book which will appeal to artists and those who like the west. Sir Harold Nicholson is the author of "The Age of Reason" which is a complete account of life in the eighteenth century. "The Queen's Necklace" by Frances Mossiker is an account of the diamond necklace affair, which was one of the precipitating causes of the French Revolution.

Books about the Civil War continue to arrive and they are all eagerly read by the library patrons. The latest one is "Inferno at Petersburg", written by Henry Pleasants, Jr. This is a true account of one of the bloodiest battles of the Civil War. A very useful addition to the genealogy collection of the Library is "Marriage Contracts of Natchitoches, 1739-1803" compiled by Winston De Ville. This is a copy of records on file in the Court House in Natchitoches and should be most useful. Good histories of Louisiana are very scarce and we are happy that Dr. Edwin Adams Davis of the History Department of the Louisiana State University has just written an excellent one. It is a three volume set. The first volume is a very good history of our state, the other two volumes are biographical, containing much excellent information about people now living in Louisiana. Most of the people in the biographical sections live in the Southern part of the State, but the publisher assured me that a fourth volume, dealing with Monroe and Shreveport would be released in the fall. The books are interesting and valuable for reference material.

RUNNING THE SCALES

'Birdie' Producer To Publish 'Bravo'

By JOHN CALE

Staff Writer

"Bravo!" That's the name of a new magazine of the lively arts which will be an enterprise of former Monroyan L. Slade Brown.

While Brown will be executive vice president of the publication, another name familiar to Monroe concert - goers will sit behind the president's desk at the "Bravo!" company. That is Arthur A. Whittemore. He is the other half of the Whittemore and Lowe duo - piano team which fired up the twin "88's" here several years ago.

"Bye Bye Birdie," a musical comedy which Brown and Edward Padula produced turned out as one of the hits of 1960. Reports from the left bank of the Hudson River have it that another hoped-for hit is already in the works.

WORKSHOP

The opening of Strauss Playhouse here holds hopes of the creation of real tri - state theatre center in Monroe. Northeast State College will combine forces with the Little Theatre and its director, Richard Clark, to offer a summer workshop this year for directors, students of speech and drama and others interested in the theatre. George Brian, director of dramatics at the college, will conduct the course and direct the plays to be produced.

By the way, Director Clark reports rehearsals for "Diary of Anne Frank" progressing smoothly and the play — final offering on the regular 1960-61 Little Theatre schedule — will begin its run during last week in May.

"The Devil's General" was a German film with English subtitles shown last week by the Northeast department of languages. The movie, which starred Kurt Jurgens in the title role, was built around the conflicting attitudes in German military and political circles which saw that nation plunged into war and defeat. Scenes were rapidly paced and dialects were thick in some instances.

As a piece of educational material, the film served good purpose and merits several follow - ups. Many European children have learned "American" by going to the movies.

POST MORTEM

The Dallas Theatre Center's experiment on tour, "The Chairs," touched off such comment among local theatre goers until a few additional remarks are in order.

The New York critics were split down the middle on pro's and con's. Some thought it "original and stimulating," others said "boring" when the play ran there in 1958.

From photographs of other productions, we concluded the Dallas group did the best possible with the piece by staging it as an 18th century ballet gone wild.

The long middle section which dealt with the arrival of "guests" and the placing of the empty chairs onstage could have been cut in half and then some.

Perhaps playwright Ionesco thinks he hit upon something clever by placing his audience in the position of innocents in a mad house. If this is the case, then he should not be so brutal as to call his work a "tragic farce". The age of the sick or "gruesome" joke is past.

A typical attitude of many mental illnesses carries the statement from the patient, "I wanted to say but I couldn't say." This may parallel the frustration felt by everyone who tries to write or otherwise deal with creative arts.

But it is not the same thing; the one cannot be substituted for the other. So far as can be determined, creative efforts through the ages have made such good sense as to be profound in many instances.

Who are we moderns to turn nonsense into creativity?

Natural Gas Price Control Plan Is Given

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — President Kennedy's plan to exempt small producers may lead to another showdown battle in Congress in the 12-year controversy over natural gas price controls.

The excemption plan for the most part has received only cold shoulder treatment from the industry but it again placed the dispute squarely before Congress.

There is indication the plan will trigger long-waited counter proposals from the industry.

Several industry groups have been at work for months, however, drafting new bills. The groups include a task force of representatives from all segments of the industry—producers, pipeliners, distributors, and consumers.

PROGRESS SLOW

Progress has been slow.

Part of the delay has been attributed to an unfavorable atmosphere in Washington. Part of it has been dictated by the gigantic task of trying to get all segments of the industry to present a united front.

One of the sponsors of the Kennedy plan, Rep. Torbert H. MacDonald, D-Mass., this week in effect challenged the industry to place its own bill before Congress.

MacDonald told the 15th annual meeting of the 6,500-member Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association he could not understand why small producers are unwilling to accept exemption.

"The fact is we have been waiting to see an industry bill that would do justice to all the segments of your industry," he said.

Then he departed from his prepared text to say:

"I've been waiting five years for it and I imagine some of you have been waiting longer."

There was no evidence of support of the exemption plan but TIPRO left any action on the matter to its executive committee. The May 2 midyear meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America rejected the plan.

Both groups renewed pleas for broad decontrol bills. While in the House and Senate, President Kennedy voted against decontrol bills that later were vetoed by Presidents Truman and Eisenhower.

There was indication at both meetings of the independent producers, however, that President Kennedy's exemption plan had cleared the Washington atmosphere somewhat and the time may be ripe for the industry to roll out its plan.

The Kennedy proposal would exempt producers who sell less than two billion cubic feet of gas annually into interstate commerce.

Producers, both large and small, have tagged the plan as a "divide by size" formula.

Objections by the small producers are based primarily on a contention the plan would lead to their being regulated by indirection.

The Federal Power Commission would continue to regulate prices for some 270 major producers.

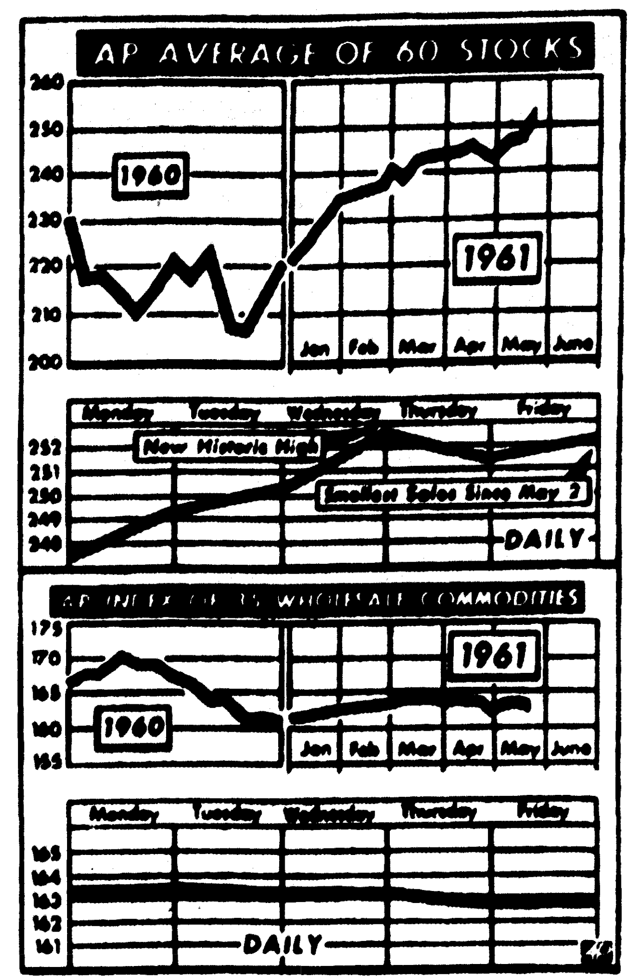
Buying Of Currency Brings Sentences

MOSCOW (AP) — Seven young Muscovites have been given long prison terms for buying foreign currency from Western tourists. They also were denounced for getting rock 'n' roll records, monkey-decorated neckties and even a Paris tailored suit from tourists.

The sentences, which ranged from seven to eight years, were reported today by Moscow Pravda. The report came at the beginning of the tourist season and was clearly a warning against dealings with foreigners.



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks, recording its sharpest weekly advance since early November, closed at 251.1 from 247.5 a week ago. The Commodity Index, with food showing the largest loss, declined this week, closing at 162.9 from 163.2 a week earlier. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Improvement Is Seen In Economy

NEW YORK (AP) — Economists and industrialists raised their sights during the week on the expected extent of the business recovery.

Improvement in personal incomes, factory sales, steel production and automobile sales spurred the optimism.

"The regenerative forces on the economy are being restored and strengthened," said Walter H. Heller, chief economic adviser to President Kennedy.

He asserted that any doubt about a brightening of the business picture disappeared with a 2½ per cent advance in the industrial production index from March to April.

PREDICTION

And he predicted the country's output of goods and services will rise $25 billion by the end of the year from the January-March rate. This would boost it to about $525 billion for the year.

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges pointed to the advances in personal incomes and manufacturers' sales in April as new signs of recovery.

The economy "is not kicking at the roof but it is out of the cellar," he said.

Because his advisers believe the recovery is solidly based, President Kennedy has decided against any huge spending program or income tax cuts to hasten the resurgence. However, he did release $318 million in federal highway funds six weeks ahead of schedule in an effort to speed up road building.

John Dykstra, president of Ford Motor Co., said the prospects for the nations economy and the automobile industry are much brighter now than during the first quarter.

The new car sales rate for the first 10 days of May showed a 14 per cent gain over the first third of April. Dealers sold 165,632 domestic cars, compared with 128,364 in the April period.

Production for the week was estimated at 128,945 passenger cars, a slight decline from the previous weeks 129,530 but enough to put the year's output over the two-million mark.

T. F. Patton, president of Republic Steel Corp., predicted that steel production would rise in each quarter of this year and through the first half of 1962.

The industry expected to show its 10th consecutive weekly increase. In the previous week the output was 1,988,000 tons, about 68 per cent of capacity.

An increase in orders and shipments has caused Republic Steel to recall 2,500 employes to its Cleveland plant since the first of the year.

The stock market shot up to historic highs during a week in which developments in the financial world came thick and fast.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks climbed to new highs. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials sourted above 700 for the first time. These averages are made up of representative stocks, the so-called market wheelhorses.

But the public's feverish interest in low priced stocks and new issues prompted the second warning in six weeks by Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, against unwise speculation.

The Securities and Exchange Commission announced it would investigate practices on the smaller American Stock Exchange to determine if new regulations are needed. And the House Commerce and Finance subcommittee said it planned to investigate operations of the SEC, which oversees all stock exchanges.

The Commerce Department reported dividends paid by corporations in April totaled $914 million, a gain of $17 million over April 1960. For the first four months of this year dividends totaled $4.3 billion, up $17 millio nover a year ago. The bulk of the gain was in communications and electric and gas utilities.

Retail sales in the week ended Wednesday ran 10 per cent ahead of a year ago but included Mother's Day buying, whereas the comparable 1960 week didn't.

A major development is the retail field was the announcement by F. W. Woolworth Co. that it will establish a chain of discount department stores.

Wholesale food prices dipped for the fifth consecutive week and reached a new 1961 low for the third time.

Briefly around the business scene: The Dr. Pepper Co., maker of soft drinks, will give away an island in the Bahamas as first prize in a contest ... Cigarette shipments in March set a new high of 42.4 billion smokes for the month ... General Electric Co. to receive a $33-million Navy contract for new long-range height-finding radar systems for use on ships ... Stockholders of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Co. (Nickel Plate) approved a plan to merge into Norfolk & Western Railway Co.

Grain Futures Are Irregular

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market alternated between firmness and weakness most of the time this week but finished with mostly moderate losses on the entire list.

Trade generally was draggy in the absence of any significant commercial influences and market fluctuations were rather narrow.

Although old crop soybeans met occasional flurries which carried prices over fairly broad ranges at times net changes were relatively small until dealers settled down to close out their positions in the May contract on Friday.

At the close of the week, soybeans were 2-8¾ cents a bushel lower, May 3.04-06; wheat ¼ higher to ⅝ lower, May 1.86¾-⅛; corn ⅝-1¼ lower, May 1.13⅝-12⅞; oats ¼ higher to 1⅝ lower, May 66-68 cents; rye 1-2¼ lower, May 1.15¼-½.

HONEYMOON HOUSE

LONDON (UPI) — The Duke of Kent will honeymoon in the same Scottish house used by his cousin, Queen Elizabeth, on her wedding trip with Prince Philip.

The duke, who will marry Katharine Worsley next month, has been given the home of Queen Mother Elizabeth, Birkhall, for the honeymoon. It is in a secluded spot on the royal estate at Balmoral.

PHOTO TIPS

Cameras Require Spring Cleaning

Spring! It evokes pictures of Spring announcements, Spring bouquets, Spring fever and Spring cleaning.

Take Spring cleaning first. How many camera fans think of Spring cleaning their own cameras and equipment? Not enough. Yet before the hectic summer shooting starts, what a practical way to get equipment inventoried, spruced up and ready to snap, snap!

It's a time to turn a gadget bag or photo closet inside out, to vacuum the corners and to brush briskly. Cameras, too, accumulate lint and dust but they require more delicate handling. Lens tissue, an air syringe, a camel hair brush and some lint-free "Q-tips" make handy cleaning tools for cameras, inside and out.

You can blow or gently brush the dust away from the lens or optical surfaces. The cotton swabs, dabbed in nail polish remover (acetone) will remove grit that accumulates in camera interiors and near moving parts.

A clean lens an dust-free camera will give clearer pictures and trouble - free operations. However, don't become an amateur repairman. Leave the cleaning of shutters and intricate internal mechanisms for skilled craftsmen.

As for Spring announcements, here's one about the newest fully automatic electric eye Polaroid camera which has been simplified to an Aim, shoot and remove-picture-in-10-seconds operation.

There's no focusing with the new J 66 model because it operates normally at an aperture of f-32, bringing everything from 4½ feet to infinity into focus. The electric eye handles the shutter speed department only. It gauges the light and selects the proper speed from 1-15 to 1-1000 of a second.

Indoors, or when the light is too low, a signal pops up to warn that a flash is necessary. A tiny flashgun built into the camera takes the jelly - bean - size AG flashbulbs. The flashgun is raised into position when needed and it swivels to aim the flash for bounce or direct lighting.

For close-ups or portraits, the camera body is extended one notch forward from its normal position. This shifts the zone of sharpness forward, putting everything in focus from 30 inches to 4½ feet.

The camera also has a "light and dark" control ring. Turning it changes the aperture from f-32 to f-19 to lighten pictures or to f-64 to darken them.

With an (electric) eye to the future, the J 66 also has provision for the anticipated introduction of Polaroid color film, when (no longer "if") that day finally arrives.

And speaking of color, we get back to our colorful Spring bouquet. We're all aware that the beautiful colors in a Spring bouquet don't last. Ae thfloswersdei, quet don't last. As the flowers die, colors fade away.

Color prints have been fading too, imperceptibly perhaps. In sunlight or under bright lights, however, fading action is hastened. Now a chemical has been found which is said to retard or eliminate color print fading. Colorless and soluble, it has been added to processing solutions and it forms an invisible shield on the print surface to protect it from ultra - violet light rays.

The development will be made nationally available to color processors.

Cotton Futures Show Mixed On N. Y. Exchange

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures moved irregularly on the New York Cotton Exchange this week, ending 40 cents a bale lower to 30 cents a bale higher.

All contracts except those for delivery in July 1962 were lower, however.

Observers said the thinness of the market last week made it susceptible to moves in either direction. The limited amount of support came mainly from commission houses, while offerings were furnished through commission house and mill liquidation. Reports that a few mills were curtailing operations also served to dampen buying enthusiasm.

Domestic consumption in April of 648,000 bales was slightly below a previous estimate of 665,000 bales by the exchange's service bureau, and down sharply from 709,000 in April 1960. Consumption for the season through April now is 6,240,000 bales compared with 6,893,000 bales a year earlier.

Analysts noted, however, that the average daily rate of consumption was 32,400 bales compared with 31,800 in March and 35,400 in April 1960. The 1.9 per cent increase from March contrasted sharply with an average March-to-April decline in the past five years of 2.3 per cent.

Statisticians noted that if consumption follows its seasonal trend from now through July, a full season use of 8.2 million bales would be in prospect. Cosumption a year earlier came to 9 million bales.

Exports in the week ended Tuesday of 79,000 bales dropped sharply from the previous week's 142,000, but were off only slightly from 87,000 in the similar 1960 week. For the season through May 16, exports were estimated at 6,166,000 bales compared with 5,724,000 a year earlier.

Interesting Man Found In Panama City

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — There's a bartender at the International Hotel who should be listed in guidebooks as one of the things every tourist should see — and hear — during a visit to Panama City.

His name is Carlos Perez, and he once visited the United States. In a Latin America which—from much you read—is supposed to be hostile to Yankees, Perez is typical of the many who do like Americans.

"Who could not like a country that puts 'In God We Trust' on their coins," Perez said as he slid over a bowl filled with something that looked like potato chips, but actually was a fried fruit.

Perez also is a philosopher of sorts, and full of information about his hometown. He also — in his friendliness to a visitor— is typical of so many of the people I encountered in Panama, which still is trying to become a major tourist stop on the Latin circuit.

And talk to a U.S. citizen who has settled down in Panama City — not the U.S.-run Canal Zone— like Mrs. Marjorie Smith, and you'll hear nothing but good words about what Panama has to offer. Mrs. Smith, a native of Illinois and a former resident of Florida, however, is keeping one of the better things in Panama to herself.

It's the restaurant Jardin Brisas del Mar in the San Francisco section on the outskirts of the city. With the Pacific splashing below the open pavillion, a huge moon shining on the water and a big sirloin going for $2, what more could any tourist ask.

"Do many tourists come here?"

"We try to keep this place a secret," laughed Mrs. Smith.

Panama City, to the casual tourist, is a little less than lovers of the area like Mrs. Smith might allege. Yet it's well worth the visit.

The Brisas del Mar, fortunately, is just one of several fine and atmospheric eating places, like the Skychef, which is run by an American who likes to be called Gus and has Spanish candlelight flavor and a menu with practically everything selling for $2.25, including a 20-ounce porterhouse steak, or Lee's, another steak house with more a U. S. than a Panamanian flavor.

The menu prices are indicative that a little money can go a long way in Panama City. There are some fantastic shopping bargains in cameras, liquor and perfume in the duty - free stores. It's hard to see how a place like Cia. Henriquez, S.A., a duty - free store, turns a profit considering that any tourist can wander in and sit and sample the various liquors for sale for as long as he wants — without charge — before buying.

There also are good buys in objects from all over the world (among the best is Guatemalan skirt cloth) in the Hindu and Chinese stores in downtown Panama City, even though they may not be duty - free stores and you can walk out with your purchase instead of having to have it sent directly from a bonded warehouse to your plane or ship.

The best way to go a long way in Panama City is by taxi — in fact its the only way to really see the sights every visitor should see. And it gets the visitor off to a good local - touch start — bargaining with the cab driver. No one jumps in a cab and says "Take me to see the sights." He tries to beat down the price first.

About $5 should do it — and that includes a seven - mile drive out of the city to the site of Old Panama, the once glorious Spanish city sacked and destroyed by the pirate Henry Morgan in the 17th Century.

The ruins of the old city are quite impressive, especially those of the Cathedral.

A taxi tour also should include stops at San Jose Church, which houses the incredibly beautiful mahogany and gold altar that monks saved from Morgan's raiders by applying whitewash; the ruins, in the city, of Santo Domingo Church, which was built in 1678 and destroyed by fire in 1761, and the President's Palace, with herons strutting around the pool in the central patio. Nor should the Public Market be missed, with the crowd pushing around its fruit and vegetable stands.

The Miraflores Locks of the Panama Canal are only a short drive out of Panama City, and are open to visitors to watch the big ocean - going ships being raised or lowered 54 feet within a matter of minutes and pulled through the locks by electric "mules."

There's night life, too, with such clubs as Maxim's, where there are stateside prices and so many acts you'll think the show will never end. If it isn't all quality, there's certainly international quantity, and lots of local color.

Panama City has two first class tourist hotels, and a third near Tocumen Airport, far outside the city. Two more are under construction, and another two planned. Panama apparently expects its days of waiting are about over, and the rush will be on soon.

Natural Gas Price Control Plan Is Given

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — President Kennedy's plan to exempt small producers may lead to another showdown battle in Congress in the 12-year controversy over natural gas price controls.

The excemption plan for the most part has received only cold shoulder treatment from the industry but it again placed the dispute squarely before Congress.

There is indication the plan will trigger long-waited counter proposals from the industry.

Several industry groups have been at work for months, however, drafting new bills. The groups include a task force of representatives from all segments of the industry—producers, pipeliners, distributors, and consumers.

PROGRESS SLOW

Progress has been slow.

Part of the delay has been attributed to an unfavorable atmosphere in Washington. Part of it has been dictated by the gigantic task of trying to get all segments of the industry to present a united front.

One of the sponsors of the Kennedy plan, Rep. Torbert H. MacDonald, D-Mass., this week in effect challenged the industry to place its own bill before Congress.

MacDonald told the 15th annual meeting of the 6,500-member Texas Independent Producers & Royalty Owners Association he could not understand why small producers are unwilling to accept exemption.

"The fact is we have been waiting to see an industry bill that would do justice to all the segments of your industry," he said.

Then he departed from his prepared text to say:

"I've been waiting five years for it and I imagine some of you have been waiting longer."

There was no evidence of support of the exemption plan but TIPRO left any action on the matter to its executive committee. The May 2 midyear meeting of the Independent Petroleum Association of America rejected the plan.

Both groups renewed pleas for broad decontrol bills. While in the House and Senate, President Kennedy voted against decontrol bills that later were vetoed by Presidents Truman and Eisenhower.

There was indication at both meetings of the independent producers, however, that President Kennedy's exemption plan had cleared the Washington atmosphere somewhat and the time may be ripe for the industry to roll out its plan.

The Kennedy proposal would exempt producers who sell less than two billion cubic feet of gas annually into interstate commerce.

Producers, both large and small, have tagged the plan as a "divide by size" formula.

Objections by the small producers are based primarily on a contention the plan would lead to their being regulated by indirection.

The Federal Power Commission would continue to regulate prices for some 270 major producers.

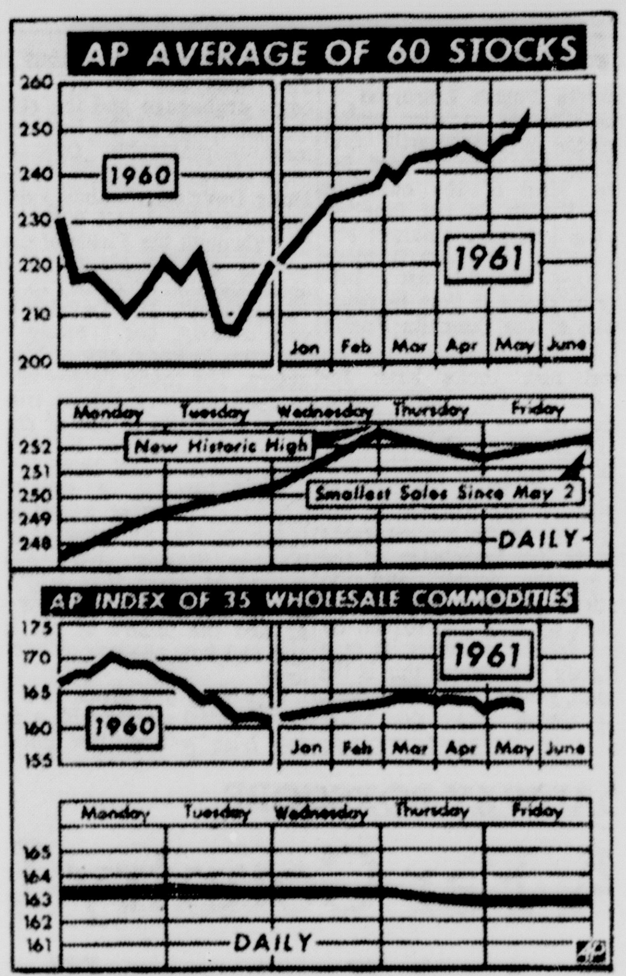
Buying Of Currency Brings Sentences

MOSCOW (AP) — Seven young Muscovites have been given long prison terms for buying foreign currency from Western tourists. They also were denounced for getting rock 'n' roll records, monkey-decorated neckties and even a Paris tailored suit from tourists.

The sentences, which ranged from seven to eight years, were reported today by Moscow Pravda. The report came at the beginning of the tourist season and was clearly a warning against dealings with foreigners.



THE ASSOCIATED Press average of 60 stocks, recording its sharpest weekly advance since early November, closed at 251.1 from 247.5 a week ago. The Commodity Index, with food showing the largest loss, declined this week, closing at 162.9 from 163.2 a week earlier. (AP Wirephoto Chart)

BUSINESS OUTLOOK

Improvement Is Seen In Economy

NEW YORK (AP)—Economists and industrialists raised their sights during the week on the expected extent of the business recovery.

Improvement in personal incomes, factory sales, steel production and automobile sales spurred the optimism.

"The regenerative forces on the economy are being restored and strengthened," said Walter H. Heller, chief economic adviser to President Kennedy.

He asserted that any doubt about a brightening of the business picture disappeared with a 2½ per cent advance in the industrial production index from March to April.

PREDICTION

And he predicted the country's output of goods and services will rise $25 billion by the end of the year from the January-March rate. This would boost it to about $525 billion for the year.

Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges pointed to the advances in personal incomes and manufacturers' sales in April as new signs of recovery.

The economy "is not kicking at the roof but it is out of the cellar," he said.

Because his advisers believe the recovery is solidly based, President Kennedy has decided against any huge spending program or income tax cuts to hasten the resurgence. However, he did release $818 million in federal highway funds six weeks ahead of schedule in an effort to speed up road building.

John Dykstra, president of Ford Motor Co., said the prospects for the nations economy and the automobile industry are much brighter now than during the first quarter.

The new car sales rate for the first 10 days of May showed a 14 per cent gain over the first third of April. Dealers sold 165,632 domestic cars, compared with 128,364 in the April period.

Production for the week was estimated at 128,945 passenger cars, a slight decline from the previous weeks 129,530 but enough to put the year's output over the two-million mark.

T. F. Patton, president of Republic Steel Corp., predicted that steel production would rise in each quarter of this year and through the first half of 1962.

The industry expected to show its 10th consecutive weekly increase. In the previous week the output was 1,938,000 tons, about 68 per cent of capacity.

An increase in orders and shipments has caused Republic Steel to recall 2,500 employes to its Cleveland plant since the first of the year.

The stock market shot up to historic highs during a week in which developments in the financial world came thick and fast.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks climbed to new highs. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials spurted above 700 for the first time. These averages are made up of representative stocks, the so-called market wheelhorses.

But the public's feverish interest in low-priced stocks and new issues prompted the second warning in six weeks by Keith Funston, president of the New York Stock Exchange, against unwise speculation.

The Securities and Exchange Commission announced it would investigate practices on the smaller American Stock Exchange to determine if new regulations are needed. And the House Commerce and Finance subcommittee said it planned to investigate operations of the SEC, which oversees all stock exchanges.

The Commerce Department reported dividends paid by corporations in April totaled $914 million, a gain of $17 million over April 1960. For the first four months of this year dividends totaled $4.3 billion, up $17 millio nover a year ago. The bulk of the gain was in communications and electric and gae utilities.

Retail sales in the week ended Wednesday ran 10 per cent ahead of a year ago but included Mother's Day buying, whereas the comparable 1960 week didn't.

A major development is the retail field was the announcement by F. W. Woolworth Co. that it will establish a chain of discount department stores.

Wholesale food prices dipped for the fifth consecutive week and reached a new 1961 low for the third time.

Briefly around the business scene: The Dr. Pepper Co., maker of soft drinks, will give away an island in the Bahamas as first prize in a contest . . . Cigarette shipments in March set a new high of 42.4 billion smokes for the month . . . General Electric Co. receive a $36-million Navy contract for new long-range height-finding radar systems for use on ships . . . Stockholders of the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Co. (Nickel Plate) approved a plan to merge into Norfolk & Western Railway Co.

Grain Futures Are Irregular

CHICAGO (AP) — The grain futures market alternated between firmness and weakness most of the time this week but finished with mostly moderate losses on the entire list.

Trade generally was draggy in the absence of any significant commercial influences and market fluctuations were rather narrow.

Although old crop soybeans met occasional flurries which carried prices over fairly broad ranges at times net changes were relatively small until dealers settled down to close out their positions in the May contract on Friday.

At the close of the week, soybeans were 2-8¾ cents a bushel lower, May 3.04-06; wheat ¼ higher to ⅝ lower, May 1.86¾-⅛; corn ⅝-1¼ lower, May 1.13⅜-12⅞; oats ⅛ higher to 1⅝ lower, May 66-68 cents; rye 1-2⅛ lower, May 1.15¼-½.

HONEYMOON HOUSE

LONDON (UPI) — The Duke of Kent will honeymoon in the same Scottish house used by his cousin, Queen Elizabeth, on her wedding trip with Prince Philip.

The duke, who will marry Katharine Worsley next month, has been given the home of Queen Mother Elizabeth, Birkhall, for the honeymoon. It is in a secluded spot on the royal estate at Balmoral.

PHOTO TIPS

Cameras Require Spring Cleaning

Spring! It evokes pictures of Spring announcements, Spring bouquets, Spring fever and Spring cleaning.

Take Spring cleaning first. How many camera fans think of Spring cleaning their own cameras and equipment? Not enough. Yet before the hectic summer shooting starts, what a practical way to get equipment inventoried, spruced up and ready to snap, snap!

It's a time to turn a gadget bag or photo closet inside out, to vacuum the corners and to brush briskly. Cameras, too, accumulate lint and dust but they require more delicate handling. Lens tissue, an air syringe, a camel hair brush and some lint-free "Q-tips" make handy cleaning tools for cameras, inside and out.

You can blow or gently brush the dust away from the lens or optical surfaces. The cotton swabs, dabbed in nail polish remover (acetone) will remove grit that accumulates in camera interiors and near moving parts.

A clean lens an dust-free camera will give clearer pictures and trouble - free operations. However, don't become an amateur repairman. Leave the cleaning of shutters and intricate internal mechanisms for skilled craftsmen.

As for Spring announcements, here's one about the newest fully automatic electric eye Polaroid camera which has been simplified to an Aim, shoot and remove-picture-in-10-seconds operation.

There's no focusing with the new J 66 model because it operates normally at an aperture of f-32, bringing everything from 4½ feet to infinity into focus. The electric eye handles the shutter speed department only. It gauges the light and selects the proper speed from 1-15 to 1-1000 of a second.

Indoors, or when the light is too low, a signal pops up to warn that a flash is necessary. A tiny flashgun built into the camera takes the jelly - bean - size AG flashbulbs. The flashgun is raised into position when needed and it swivels to aim the flash for bounce or direct lighting.

For close-ups or portraits, the camera body is extended one notch forward from its normal position. This shifts the zone of sharpness forward, putting everything in focus from 30 inches to 4½ feet.

The camera also has a "light and dark" control ring. Turning it changes the aperture from f-32 to f-19 to lighten pictures or to f-64 to darken them.

With an (electric) eye to the future, the J 66 also has provision for the anticipated introduction of Polaroid color film, when (no longer "if") that day finally arrives.

And speaking of color, we get back to our colorful Spring bouquet. We're all aware that the beautiful colors in a Spring bouquet don't last. Ae thfloswersdei, quet don't last. As the flowers die, colors fade away.

Color prints have been fading too, imperceptibly perhaps. In sunlight or under bright lights, however, fading action is hastened. Now a chemical has been found which is said to retard or eliminate color print fading. Colorless and soluble, it has been added to processing solutions and it forms an invisible shield on the print surface to protect it from ultra - violet light rays.

The development will be made nationally available to color processors.

Cotton Futures Show Mixed On N. Y. Exchange

NEW YORK (AP)—Cotton futures moved irregularly on the New York Cotton Exchange this week, ending 40 cents a bale lower to 30 cents a bale higher.

All contracts except those for delivery in July 1962 were lower, however.

Observers said the thinness of the market last week made it susceptible to moves in either direction. The limited amount of support came mainly from commission houses, while offerings were furnished through commission house and mill liquidation. Reports that a few mills were curtailing operations also served to dampen buying enthusiasm.

Domestic consumption in April of 643,000 bales was slightly below a previous estimate of 665,000 bales by the exchange's service bureau, and down sharply from 709,000 in April 1960. Consumption for the season through April now is 6,240,000 bales compared with 6,393,000 bales a year earlier.

Analysts noted, however, that the average daily rate of consumption was 32,400 bales compared with 31,800 in March and 35,400 in April 1960. The 1.9 per cent increase from March contrasted sharply with an average March-to-April decline in the past five years of 2.3 per cent.

Statisticians noted that if consumption follows its seasonal trend from now through July, a full season use of 8.2 million bales would be in prospect. Cosumption a year earlier came to 9 million bales.

Exports in the week ended Tuesday of 79,000 bales dropped sharply from the previous week's 142,000, but were off only slightly from 87,000 in the similar 1960 week. For the season through May 16, exports were estimated at 6,166,000 bales compared with 5,724,000 a year earlier.

Interesting Man Found In Panama City

PANAMA CITY (UPI) — There's a bartender at the International Hotel who should be listed in guidebooks as one of the things every tourist should see — and hear — during a visit to Panama City.

His name is Carlos Perez, and he once visited the United States. In a Latin America which—from much you read—is supposed to be hostile to Yankees, Perez is typical of the many who do like Americans.

"Who could not like a country that puts 'In God We Trust' on their coins," Perez said as he slid over a bowl filled with something that looked like potato chips, but actually was a fried fruit.

Perez also is a philosopher of sorts, and full of information about his hometown. He also — in his friendliness to a visitor—is typical of so many of the people I encountered in Panama, which still is trying to become a major tourist stop on the Latin circuit.

And talk to a U.S. citizen who has settled down in Panama City — not the U.S.-run Canal Zone—like Mrs. Marjorie Smith, and you'll hear nothing but good words about what Panama has to offer. Mrs. Smith, a native of Illinois and a former resident of Florida, however, is keeping one of the better things in Panama to herself.

It's the restaurant Jardin Brisas del Mar in the San Francisco section on the outskirts of the city. With the Pacific splashing below the open pavillion, a huge moon shining on the water and a big sirloin going for $2, what more could any tourist ask.

"Do many tourists come here?"

"We try to keep this place a secret," laughed Mrs. Smith.

Panama City, to the casual tourist, is a little less than lovers of the area like Mrs. Smith might allege. Yet it's well worth the visit.

The Brisas del Mar, fortunately, is just one of several fine and atmospheric eating places, like the Skychef, which is run by an American who likes to be called Gus and has Spanish candlelight flavor and a menu with practically everything selling for $2.25, including a 20-ounce porterhouse steak, or Lee's, another steak house with more a U. S. than a Panamanian flavor.

The menu prices are indicative that a little money can go a long way in Panama City. There are some fantastic shopping bargains in cameras, liquor and perfume in the duty - free stores. It's hard to see how a place like Cia. Henriquez, S.A., a duty - free store, turns a profit considering that any tourist can wander in and sit and sample the various liquors for sale for as long as he wants — without charge — before buying.

There also are good buys in objects from all over the world (among the best is Guatemalan skirt cloth) in the Hindu and Chinese stores in downtown Panama City, even though they may not be duty - free stores and you can walk out with your purchase instead of having to have it sent directly from a bonded warehouse to your plane or ship.

The best way to go a long way in Panama City is by taxi — in fact its the only way to really see the sights every visitor should see. And it gets the visitor off to a good local - touch start — bargaining with the cab driver. No one jumps in a cab and says "Take me to see the sights." He tries to beat down the price first.

About $5 should do it — and that includes a seven - mile drive out of the city to the site of Old Panama, the once glorious Spanish city sacked and destroyed by the pirate Henry Morgan in the 17th Century.

The ruins of the old city are quite impressive, especially those of the Cathedral.

A taxi tour also should include stops at San Jose Church, which houses the incredibly beautiful mahogany and gold altar that monks saved from Morgan's raiders by applying whitewash; the ruins, in the city, of Santo Domingo Church, which was built in 1678 and destroyed by fire in 1761, and the President's Palace, with herons strutting around the pool in the central patio. Nor should the Public Market be missed, with the crowd pushing around its fruit and vegetable stands.

The Miraflores Locks of the Panama Canal are only a short drive out of Panama City, and are open to visitors to watch the big ocean - going ships being raised or lowered 54 feet within a matter of minutes and pulled through the locks by electric "mules."

There's night life, too, with such clubs as Maxim's, where there are stateside prices and so many acts you'll think the show will never end. If it isn't all quality, there's certainly international quantity, and lots of local color.

Panama City has two first class tourist hotels, and a third near Tocumen Airport, far outside the city. Two more are under construction, and another two planned. Panama apparently expects its days of waiting are about over, and the rush will be on soon.

3-UNDER PAR 67

Grumbling Snead Holds Lead Spot

By DICK LEONARD

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP) — Sam Snead, although grumbling he couldn't get his game into gear, shot a 3-under par 67 Saturday to hold to his fat lead going into the final 18-hole round of the tournament named for him.

The lone challenger to Snead's little kingdom, was Stan Leonard, the 40-year-old Canadian. Leonard at 200 was four strokes behind the West Virginia slammer. Leonard had a 64 Saturday.

Chick Harbert, the veteran Miami, Fla., pro, turned out a 66 and was between Player and Palmer with 204.

Leonard's 64 plus his 63 Friday are the finest 36 holes of tournament golf he has ever played, he said.

This is Leonard's first appearance here in the 14-year history of the $10,000 tournament, which is getting to be known as the Sam Snead benefit. He has won the $2,000 first prize no less than five times.

"I couldn't get my game in gear today," Snead complained. "I would be 30 feet short or 30 feet over where I wanted to be."

Snead had four birdies and one bogey. He missed somes short putts but said he wasn't complaining about that because he knocked in a 25-footer and a 35-footer.

Loenard was sinking them from all ovesr the place with his putter. One was a 25-footer, and a couple were 8 to 10-footers.

Twins Defeat A's To Share Second

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP)—Camilo Pascual notched his second straight shutout victory as the Minnesota Twins stopped the Kansas City Athletics 2-0 Saturday.

The victory, coupled with Cleveland's 4-3 win over New York, moved the Twins into a second place tie with the Indians.

Harmon Killebrew's first inning home run—his ninth of the year—gave Pascual all the cushion he needed before the 12,306 fans.

Pascual blanked the Chicago White Sox on four hits last Monday. In that victory, the Cuban right-hander fanned seven and didn't walk a man.

He nearly duplicated the feat Saturday, striking out nine Athletic batters to run his league-leading total to 50, and walking none. Pascual's record is now 4-3 while loser Joe Nuxhall is 1-1.

The Twins scored an insurance run in the eighth on a single, balk, error, walk and sacrifice fly. Lenny Green extended his consecutive game hitting streak to 16 with a fourth inning double.

Go To Memphis If You Must, Advises Golfer

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP)—Peter Thomson, captain of Australia's international team, said Saturday that if he had been obligated to play in a PGA co-sponsored golf tournament such as the $30,000 Memphis Open he would do so and skip the International Cup competition in San Juan.

Both the International Cup and Canadian Cup matches in Puerto Rico and the Memphis Open are scheduled June 1-4.

"The Canada Cup matches are team matches, and they are important," Thomson told The Associated Press. "I don't think the individual international is so important. But I'd play in Memphis if I had to. However, I don't have to and I will play in Puerto Rico."

Thomson, four time British Open champ, and Del Nagel won the team honors at Melbourne in 1959 and at Montreal in 1954.

Nagle and Thomson appear to be sticklers for the PGA rule which says none of the winners of PGA events the last 12 months may not appear in a tourney not approved or co-sponsored by it. If they do they face a six-months PGA tour suspension and a $500 fine.

U.S. Open champion Arnold Palmer, leading money-winner Gary Player of South Africa and Stan Leonard of Vancouver, B.C., have said they will play in the International Cup matches.

Fred Corcoran of the International Golf Association has said that the cup mautches were announced last May 19, a month before the Memphis Open.

However, PGA pros here say the site was announced then but the dates for San Juan were announced only recently. Some believe the San Juan matches originatlly were intended for early May but were switched because Sam Snead had to appear in Las Vegas where he won $10,000 in the Tournament of Champions.

Memphis Open officials have steadfastly refused to grant Palmer, Player and Leonard permission to play in any tournament other than theirs. So far the PGA has backed up Memphis.

Plans Announced For Race Track

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP)—Plans to build a $1 million harness racing track in Washington County were announced Saturday.

The announcement was made by Delvin Miller, a nationally known trotting race driver and owner of Meadow Lands Farms near here, and his business associate, Robert L. McCarrell Jr. of Washington.

They said nine other men from southwestern Pennsylvania will join them in the enterprise.

The pair said the group hopes to complete the track in time to bring harness racing and pari-mutual betting to the county in 1962. A site for the track has not yet been chosen, they said.

Drives Fast Lap For Grand Prix

ZANDVOORT-ON-SEA, Netherlands (AP) — Britain's Stirling Moss drove a Cooper to the fastest lap time in trials Saturday for Monday's Dutch Grand Prix auto race.

After touring the 2m55-mile circuit in 1:38.1 in the morning, he came back in the afternoon and whipped around the course in 1:36.2, for an average speed of 97.52 miles an hour.

Jack Brabham, the world champion driver from Australia, was fastest in the morning with a 1:36.6 clocking in a Cooper but he could not improve on the performance in the afternoon.

Fernandez Tops Wright In TV Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—Jorge Fernandez, a windmill puncher from Argentina, unanimously outpointed Ted Wright of Detroit Saturday night in a nationally televised 10-round bout at St. Nicholas Arena.

Fernandez weighed in at 150½, Wright 150.

Fernandez, ranked No. 4 in the welterweight division, was willing to take two punches to connect with one. He was at his best in the last four rounds when right tired. But he never could get right off his feet despite a steady barrage.

Referee Mark Conn had Fernandez the winner 6-3-1. Judge Joe Armstrong had it Fernandez 7-3 and Judge Leo Birnbaum 6-4. The Associated Press had Fernandez the victor 5-4-1.

Fernandez started out by sending Wright, a world traveler who last fought just a month ago in Rome, to the ropes with a left to the head. For a few seconds it appeared that Wright wasn't going to last. But he still was standing when the bell rang.

At the start of the second, Wright started some effective counterpunching and by the time the sixth rolled around, Fernandez had cuts over and under his left eye.

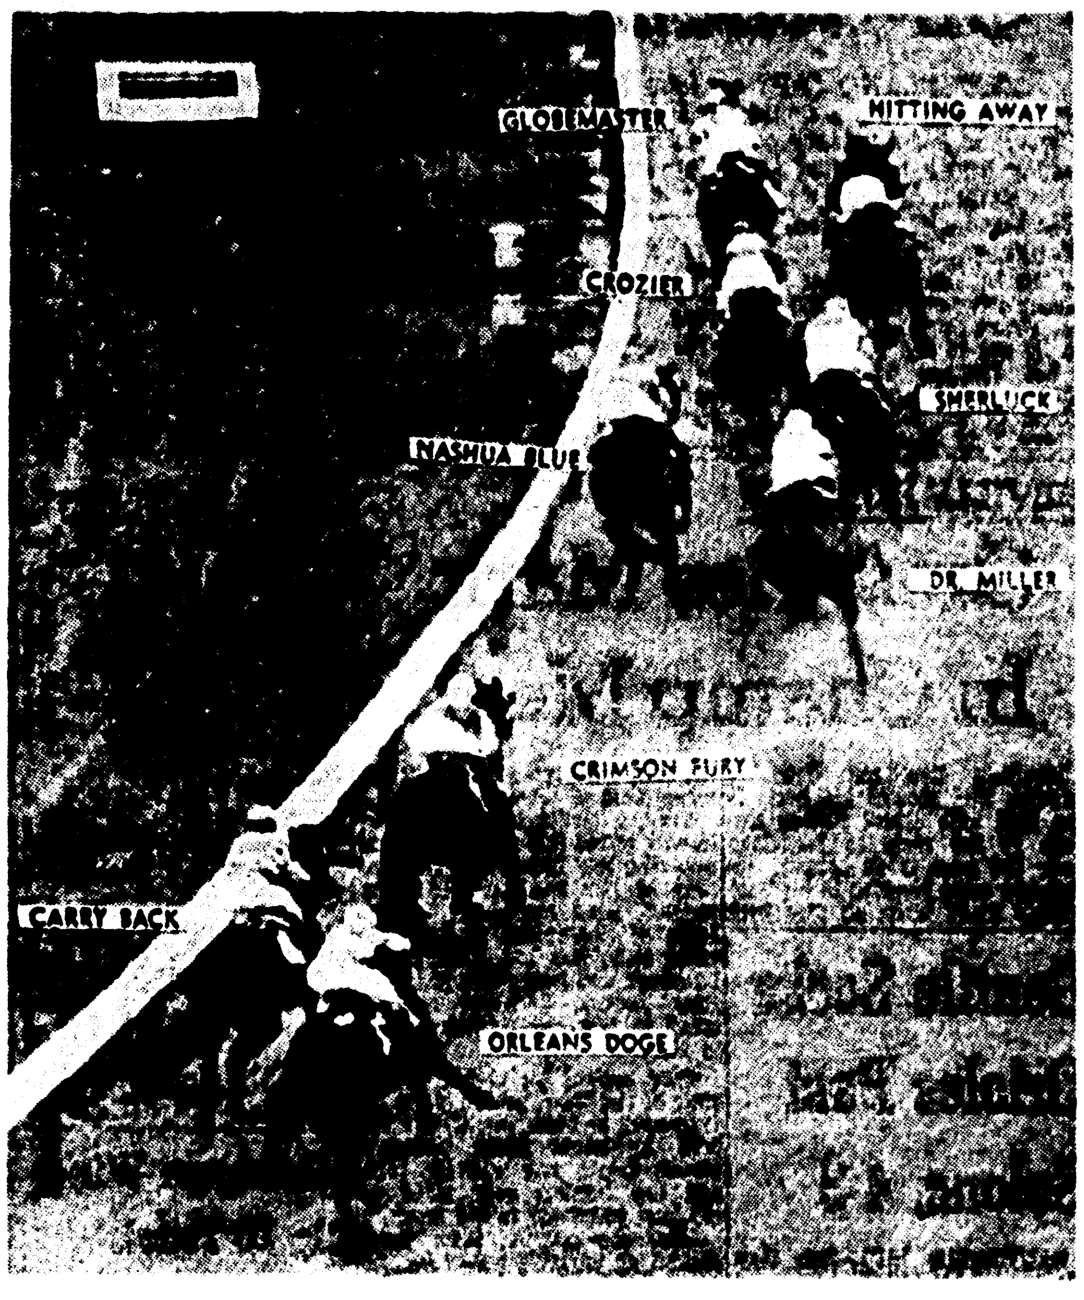
However, Wright was beginning to lose some of the power in his punches and was slowing down. That was all Fernandez needed. He bulldozed his way in all through the last four rounds and had Wright in trouble in the seventh and ninth.

"He's the best fighter I've ever come up against," said Wright. "He hurt me every time he connected."

Said Fernandez:

"I felt great at the end."

Fernandez was rewarded with a July 15 date in Madison Square Garden for his victory.



CARRY BACK, the eventual winner, is on the rail next to last as the Preakness field heads into the first turn of the mile and 3/16 race yesterday at Pimlico. Globemaster, the horse Carry Back caught in the stretch, is leading at this stage. (AP Wirephoto)

Champ Finishes With Big Stride

By JOHN CHANDLER

BALTIMORE (AP) — Carry Back, the most popular colt since the grey-coated Native Dancer thrilled the fans eight years ago, came from behind with his characteristic late rush Saturday and won the 85th running of the $178,700 Preakness Stakes at Pimlico.

With Jockey Johnny Sellers astride the Kentucky Derby winner, Carry Back zoomed up from seventh place in the field of nine three-year-olds and gave the same heart-throbbing finish he provided at Louisville two weeks ago.

The little dark-brown son of Saggy-Joppy by Stan Bien, whipped down to the finish line of the mile and three-sixteenths race and poured it on just when it appeared that Leonard P. Sasso's Globemaster might take the black eyed susans and the $126,200 first prize, which was the second richest of all Preaknesses inaugurated in 1873.

Carry Back, the even-money favorite of an excited crowd of 32,211 customers, came swinging away on the outside jsst like he did in the Derby and just made it in the final strides to win going away by ¾ of a length over Globemaster.

He won the Derby at Churchill Downs May 6 by the same margin over Fred W. Hooper's Crozier. This cloudy but rainless day, however, Crozier could do no better than third, four lengths behind the pacesetting Globemaster who had upset Carry Back in the Wood Memorial April 26 at Aqueduct.

Mrs. Ethel D. Jacob's Dr. Miller, who made a late rush in the Derby to finish fourth, repeated his performance this time, a half length behind Crozier.

Carry Back, who is supposed to be unfashionably bred, gave the critics all the answers again just like he did in Louisville. Before that he had beaten Crozier in the Flamingo at Hialeah and the Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park, both $100,000 races.

Now it's on to New York, where Carry Back should be the odds-on favorite to win the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes June 3 and become the ninth three-year-old to sweep the triple-grand-slam—the Derby-Preakness - Belmont. No horse has accomplished this since Calumet Farm's great Citation in 1948.

Carry Back, a usually slow-starter, came out of the gate at the head of the Pimlico stretch and appeared to be bothered slightly when Crozier, on his left, and Orleans Doge, on his right, pinched him back a trifle.

Jockey John Rotz, who got Globemaster away with a rush and had beaten Carry Back in the Wood Memorial by a front-running job, went down to the finish line the first time with a comfortable lead.

Ogden Phipps' Hitting Away was second at this point, followed by Crozier, Boncrist Farms Nashua Blue and the others. At this point Carry Back was next to last.

Globemaster kept pouring it on around the clubhouse turn and into the backstretch with the same horses pursuing him in that order. Briefly, Carry Back dropped clear back to last place.

Carry Back was better than 15 lengths behind Globemaster after ½ of a mile and it seemed—just like in the Derby—that he had an impossible job ahead.

But Sellers knew where he was going and Carry Back started around his field as they went into the final turn with less than ½ mile to go.

At the top of the stretch, where the race started and with 3-16 of a mile to negotiate, Carry Back was still sixth, however only slightly more than five lengths behind at this stage.

IN 10TH INNING

Jensen's Single Pulls Sox Over Detroit Tigers, 4-3

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON (AP) — Jackie Jensen's two-out, two-strike single to left in the 10th inning brought Boston a second straight victory over mighty Detroit, 4-3 Saturday.

The winning hit was delivered off southpaw reliever Hank Aguirre who failed to help his own cause ealier in the inning.

Pinch hitter Rip Repulski hit a little grounder near first base which neither Aguirre nor first baseman Norm Cash went for, figuring the other had it.

Rookie Chuck Schilling moved the winning run to second when Aguirre fielded his bunt and threw wildly to second. Jensen drove pinch runner Tom Brewer the rest of the way home.

Red Sox reliever Dave Hillman walked only one man in a brilliant 2 2/3 inning relief performance, aided greatly by two of Boston's five crisp double plays.

Rookie Jake Wood's three-run homer in the eighth inning pulled the Tigers even and ended a 17-inning scoreless streak for Detroit.

Boston outfielder Carroll Hardy drilled a long double for one run and crashed home plate for another as the Red Sox bunched three runs in the sixth. Southpaw Don Mossi of the American League leaders appeared to be sidearming his way toward a no-hitter when the Sox struck.

Hardy, inserted in the lineup specifically to face the left hander smashed a run-scoring drive to deep right center for the first blow off Mossi, but the latter's undoing began when he issued his second walk to opposing pitcher Billy Muffett.

With one out Tiger shortstop Chico Fernandez fumbled and momentarily lost an easy double play grounder by Chuck Schilling with both runners safely anchored by the time the harrassed infield [illegible] recovered [illegible].

IN POLE VAULT

Davies Smashes World Record

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Oklahoma State sophomore George Davies vaulted a world record 15 feet, 10¼ inches and Oklahoma, scoring heavily in field events, shattered Kansas' nine-year reign in the Big Eight Outdoor Track and Field Championships Saturday.

Davis' vault broke the 15-9¼ record Don Bragg set last year.

The Cowboy athlete, from Phoenix, Ariz., cleared the bar in the final event of the competition as a crowd of 2,000 and other athletes on the field watches spellbound.

Twice he failed, missing by a wide margin and knocking off the bar. On the third try, he brushed the bar on his way down. It shimmied momentarily, then held steady as a big roar went up.

Davis himself bounced up from the sawdust pit, leaping around the track and shouting joyfully.

Oklahoma scored 99 points to 88¼ for runner-up Kansas in winning its first conference outdoor championship since 1955.

Other team scores were Oklahoma State 84½, Missouri 58¾, Kansas Sate 50¾, Colorado 49, Nebraska 41¾ and Iowa State 23.

Double victories were turned in by Oklahoma weightman Mike Lindsay and hurdler Rex Stucker of Kansas State.

Lindsay won the shotput at 57 feet, 5½ inches and the discus with a throw of 164 feet, 2 inches. Stucker, repeating his dual triumphs of a year ago, swept to victory in the 120-yard highs in :14.1 and the 220-yard low hurdles in :22.8.

Other than Davies' mark, the only other record-ending performance was by Jim Heath of Colorado. He captured the 440-yard dash in :46.5, tying the conference record set by Chuck Carlson of Colorado two years ago.

Kansas' troubles began in the afternoon's first event, the 440-yard relay. The Jayhawks failed to finish after they dropped the baton in a handoff from Bob Covey to Charlie Smith. Kansas lost ground in the 100-yard dash, too, where Larry McCue was favared. He wound up sixth, pulling up with a lame muscle.

Oklahoma picked up 16 points in discus, 12 in broad jump and 10 in the shot.

Big 8 League Renews Deal For Bowl Tilt

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The Big Eight Conference and the Orange Bowl Committee announced Saturday a three-year renewal of their contract providing for a big eight football team to play in the Orange Bowl at Miami on Jan. 1.

The Big Eight has been sending a team there for the past eight years. The last contract also covered three years.

There are no restrictions in the new agreement prohibiting one Big Eight team from playing consecutive games in the Orange Bowl. The old contract prevented successive games by one Big Eight team.

The contract gives the Orange Bowl Committee authority "to select the member institution from the Big Eight to compete." This means that the committee can chose the champion, runner-up or any other Big Eight team it wishes.

However, if the champion or runner-up are ineligible the Orange Bowl Committee "shall have the privilege of selecting a substitute team, and it is understood that such substitute team shall not necessarily represent a member institution of the Big Eight."

Signing of the contract at a meeting of the Big Eight faculty representatives and athletic directors with the Orange Bowl Committee was announced jointly by Van Kussrow, chairman of scheduling for the Orange Bowl, and Reaves Peters, executive director for the Big Eight.

New Records

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP)—Harry Jerome of Oregon tied the world record in the 100-yard dash and Dyrol Burleson, also of Oregon, turned in the fastest 880 of the year in this country at the Far West track and field meet here.

Jerome's time was 9.3 seconds. Burleson's time was 1:48.7.

Hartack Atop Four Winners At Washington

CHICAGO (AP)—Willie Hartack rode four winners at Washington Park Saturday including Matthias in the $22,250 Clang Handicap.

The battle for second place was close, with Oink finishing ahead of Roman Colonel and Will Ye before a crowd of 19,213. Grand Wizard was fifth and then followed Benedicto, Alhambra and Vita [illegible] in the field of eight.

Matthias, owned by William S. Miller, chairman of the Illinois racing board, outbroke his field and held a half-length lead after a quarter mile.

Matthias, on the inside, was joined by Will Ye and Roman Colonel on the stretch bend. The three raced as a team briefly before Matthias drew out to win handily by 1½ lengths.

It was the first stakes victory for Matthias, who paid $4.80, $3.40 and $2.60. Oink, the second choice, returned $4.20 and $3. Show price on Roman Colonel was $3.40.

Matthias earned $13,250 and ran the 6 furlongs in 1:09 2-5.

Chicago Tops Cards In 1-0 Shutout Tilt

CHICAGO (AP)—Ed Bouchee's leadoff homer in the ninth inning gave the Chicago Cubs a 1-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday after the chunky first baseman had tied a major league fielding record.

Bouchee clubbed Larry Jackson's first pitch in the ninth into the left field bleachers for his first homer of the season which gave the Cubs their second successive 1 - 0 triumph over the slump-ridden Cardinals.

Dick Ellsworth limited the Cardinals to three hits in picking up his initial pitching victory of 1961. The closest the Cardinals came to scoring was in the second inning when Daryl Spencer walked and tried to score on a double by Curt Flood. But Spencer was out at the plate when Ernie Banks took center fielder Al Heist's throw and made a perfect relay to catcher Dick Bertell to retire Spencer.

Bouchee tied a record held by many in accepting 22 chances at first base on 19 putouts and 3 assists. The last to do it was Elbie Fletcher of Pittsburgh in 1941.

The Cubs threatened in the eighth when they loaded the bases with one out but Jackson (0-3) worked his way out of the jam by retiring Ron Santo and Billy Williams.

Predicts More Arrests Over Hoop Scandal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—District Solicitor Lester Chalmers returned from New York Saturday and said more arrests will be made in connection with fixing basketball games.

Chalmers, who was in New York several days conferring with authorities there, declined to say how many arrests would be made or to name those involved.

"It just wouldn't be right to say too much now," Chalmers staged. "But we haven't scratched the surface yet."

The solicitor said it was doubtful that three North Carolina State players—captain Stan Niewierowski, Terry Litchfield and Anton Muehlbauer—will go on trial June 5 on charges of bribery in the fixing of games.

"I don't think I can be prepared by then," Chalmers said. The grand jury will meet then and indictments will be handed to that body, he added.

Louis Barshak, an alleged gambler accused of being the contact man in the charges against the state players, is in the custody of the New York district attorney's office, Chalmers said.

New York District Attorney Hank Hogan has named 12 players from seven colleges as involved ite current scandal. Hogan said in New York earlier that the investigation is continuing but beyond that declined comment.

Chalmers said he would be continuing his investigation Sunday and that some warrants may be issued then.

Looking ahead in the probe, he said "we'll have other names to announce and possible games of other years."

3-UNDER PAR 67

Grumbling Snead Holds Lead Spot

By DICK LEONARD

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP) — Sam Snead, although grumbling he couldn't get his game into gear, shot a 3-under par 67 Saturday to hold to his fat lead going into the final 18-hole round of the tournament named for him.

The lone challenger to Snead's little kingdom, was Stan Leonard, the 40-year-old Canadian. Leonard at 200 was four strokes behind the West Virginia slammer. Leonard had a 64 Saturday.

Top money winner Gary Player of South Africa and U.S. Open champ Arnold Palmer both zoomed out of contention despite a pair of 68s. Player had a 203 total and Palmer 205 in the same Snead Festival.

Chick Harbert, the veteran Miami, Fla., pro, turned out a 66 and was between Player and Palmer with 204.

Leonard's 64 plus his 63 Friday are the finest 36 holes of tournament golf he has ever played, he said.

This is Leonard's first appearance here in the 14-year history of the $10,000 tournament, which is getting to be known as the Sam Snead benefit. He has won the $2,000 first prize no less than five times.

"I couldn't get my game in gear today," Snead complained. "I would be 30 feet short or 30 feet over where I wanted to be."

Snead had four birdies and one bogey. He missed somes short putts but said he wasn't complaining about that because he knocked in a 25-footer and a 35-footer.

Loenard was sinking them from all ovesr the place with his putter. One was a 25-footer, and a couple were 8 to 10-footers.

Twins Defeat A's To Share Second

ST. PAUL-MINNEAPOLIS (AP) —Camilo Pascual notched his second straight shutout victory as the Minnesota Twins stopped the Kansas City Athletics 2-0 Saturday.

The victory, coupled with Cleveland's 4-3 win over New York, moved the Twins into a second place tie with the Indians.

Harmon Killebrew's first inning home run—his ninth of the year—gave Pascual all the cushion he needed before the 12,306 fans.

Pascual blanked the Chicago White Sox on four hits last Monday. In that victory, the Cuban right-hander fanned seven and didn't walk a man.

He nearly duplicated the feat Saturday, striking out nine Athletic batters to run his league-leading total to 50, and walking none. Pascual's record is now 4-3 while loser Joe Nuxhall is 1-1.

The Twins scored an insurance run in the eighth on a single, balk, error, walk and sacrifice fly. Lenny Green extended his consecutive game hitting streak to 16 with a fourth inning double.

Go To Memphis If You Must, Advises Golfer

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W.Va. (AP)—Peter Thomson, captain of Australia's international team, said Saturday that if he had been obligated to play in a PGA co-sponsored golf tournament such as the $30,000 Memphis Open he would do so and skip the International Cup competition in San Juan.

Both the International Cup and Canadian Cup matches in Puerto Rico and the Memphis Open are scheduled June 1-4.

"The Canada Cup matches are team matches, and they are important," Thomson told The Associated Press. "I don't think the individual international is so important. But I'd play in Memphis if I had to. However, I don't have to and I will play in Puerto Rico."

Thomson, four time British Open champ, and Del Nagel won the team honors at Melbourne in 1959 and at Montreal in 1954.

Nagle and Thomson appear to be sticklers for the PGA rule which says none of the winners of PGA events the last 12 months may not appear in a tourney not approved or co-sponsored by it. If they do they face a six-months PGA tour suspension and a $500 fine.

U.S. Open champion Arnold Palmer, leading money-winner Gary Player of South Africa and Stan Leonard of Vancouver, B.C., have said they will play in the International Cup matches.

Fred Corcoran of the International Golf Association has said that the cup mautches were announced last May 19, a month before the Memphis Open.

However, PGA pros here say the site was announced then but the dates for San Juan were announced only recently. Some believe the San Juan matches originatlly were intended for early May but were switched because Sam Snead had to appear in Las Vegas where he won $10,000 in the Tournament of Champions.

Memphis Open officials have steadfastly refused to grant Palmer, Player and Leonard permission to play in any tournament other than theirs. So far the PGA has backed up Memphis.

Plans Announced For Race Track

WASHINGTON, Pa. (AP)—Plans to build a $4 million harness racing track in Washington County were announced Saturday.

The announcement was made by Delvin Miller, a nationally known trotting race driver and owner of Meadow Lands Farms near here, and his business associate, Robert L. McCarrell Jr. of Washington.

They said nine other men from southwestern Pennsylvania will join them in the enterprise.

The pair said the group hopes to complete the track in time to bring harness racing and parimutual betting to the county in 1962. A site for the track has not yet been chosen, they said.

Drives Fast Lap For Grand Prix

ZANDVOORT-ON-SEA, Netherlands (AP) — Britain's Stirling Moss drove a Cooper to the fastest lap time in trials Saturday for Monday's Dutch Grand Prix auto race.

Fernandez Tops Wright In TV Fight

NEW YORK (AP)—Jorge/ Fernandez, a windmill puncher from Argentina, unanimously outpointed Ted Wright of Detroit Saturday night in a nationally televised 10-round bout at St. Nicholas Arena.

Fernandez weighed in at 150½, Wright 150.

Fernandez, ranked No. 4 in the welterweight division, was willing to take two punches to connect with one. He was at his best in the last four rounds when right tired. But he never could get right off his feet despite a steady barrage.

Referee Mark Conn had Fernandez the winner 6-3-1. Judge Joe Armstrong had it Fernandez 7-3 and Judge Leo Birnbaum 6-4. The Associated Press had Fernandez the victor 5-4-1.

Fernandez started out by sending Wright, a world traveler who last fought just a month ago in Rome, to the ropes with a left to the head. For a few seconds it appeared that Wright wasn't going to last. But he still was standing when the bell rang.

At the start of the second, Wright started some effective counterpunching and by the time the sixth rolled around, Fernandez had cuts over and under his left eye.

However, Wright was beginning to lose some of the power in his punches and was slowing down. That was all Fernandez needed. He bulldozed his way in all through the last four rounds and had Wright in trouble in the seventh and ninth.

"He's the best fighter I've ever come up against," said Wright. "He hurt me every time he connected."

Said Fernandez:

"I felt great at the end."

Fernandez was rewarded with a July 15 date in Madison Square Garden for his victory.

Champ Finishes With Big Stride

By JOHN CHANDLER

BALTIMORE (AP) — Carry Back, the most popular colt since the grey-coated Native Dancer thrilled the fans eight years ago, came from behind with his characteristic late rush Saturday and won the 85th running of the $178,700 Preakness Stakes at Pimlico.

With Jockey Johnny Sellers astride the Kentucky Derby winner, Carry Back zoomed up from seventh place in the field of nine three-year-olds and gave the same heart-throbbing finish he provided at Louisville two weeks ago.

The little dark-brown son of Saggy-Joppy by Stan Blen, whipped down to the finish line of the mile and three-sixteenths race and poured it on just when it appeared that Leonard P. Sasso's Globemaster might take the black eyed susans and the $126,200 first prize, which was the second richest of all Preaknesses inaugurated in 1873.

Carry Back, the even-money favorite of an excited crowd of 32,211 customers, came swinging away on the outside jsst like he did in the Derby and just made it in the final strides to win going away by ¾ of a length over Globemaster.

He won the Derby at Churchill Downs May 6 by the same margin over Fred W. Hooper's Crozier. This cloudy but rainless day, however, Crozier could do no better than third, four lengths behind the pacesetting Globemaster who had upset Carry Back in the Wood Memorial April 26 at Aqueduct.

Mrs. Ethel D. Jacob's Dr. Miller, who made a late rush in the Derby to finish fourth, repeated his performance this time, a half length behind Crozier.

Carry Back, who is supposed to be unfashionably bred, gave the critics all the answers again just like he did in Louisville. Before that he had beaten Crozier in the Flamingo at Hialeah and the Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park, both $100,000 races.

Now it's on to New York, where Carry Back should be the odds-on favorite to win the $125,000-added Belmont Stakes June 3 and become the ninth three-year-old to sweep the triple-grand-slam—the Derby-Preakness - Belmont. No horse has accomplished this since Calumet Farm's great Citation in 1948.

Carry Back, a usually slow-starter, came out of the gate at the head of the Pimlico stretch and appeared to be bothered slightly when Crozier, on his left, and Orleans Doge, on his right, pinched him back a trifle.

Jockey John Rotz, who got Globemaster away with a rush and had beaten Carry Back in the Wood Memorial by a front-running job, went down to the finish line the first time with a comfortable lead.

Ogden Phipps' Hitting Away was second at this point, followed by Crozier, Boncrist Farms Nashua Blue and the others. At this point Carry Back was next to last.

Globemaster kept pouring it on around the clubhouse turn and into the backstretch with the same horses pursuing him in that order. Briefly, Carry Back dropped clear back to last place.

Carry Back was better than 15 lengths behind Globemaster after ¾ of a mile and it seemed—just like in the Derby—that he had an impossible job ahead.

But Sellers knew where he was going and Carry Back started around his field as they went into the final turn with less than ½ mile to go.

At the top of the stretch, where the race started and with 3-16 of a mile to negotiate, Carry Back was still sixth, however only slightly more than five lengths behind at this stage.

Chicago Tops Cards In 1-0 Shutout Tilt

CHICAGO (AP)—Ed Bouchee's leadoff homer in the ninth inning gave the Chicago Cubs a 1-0 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Saturday after the chunky first baseman had tied a major league fielding record.

Bouchee clubbed Larry Jackson's first pitch in the ninth into the left field bleachers for his first homer of the season which gave the Cubs their second successive 1 - 0 triumph over the slump-ridden Cardinals.

Dick Ellsworth limited the Cardinals to three hits in picking up his initial pitching victory of 1961. The closest the Cardinals came to scoring was in the second inning when Daryl Spencer walked and tried to score on a double by Curt Flood. But Spencer was out at the plate when Ernie Banks took center fielder Al Heist's throw and made a perfect relay to catcher Dick Bertell to retire Spencer.

Bouchee tied a record held by many in accepting 22 chances at first base on 19 putouts and 3 assists. The last to do it was Elbie Fletcher of Pittsburgh in 1941.

The Cubs threatened in the eighth when they loaded the bases with one out but Jackson (0-3) worked his way out of the jam by retiring Ron Santo and Billy Williams.

IN 10TH INNING

Jensen's Single Pulls Sox Over Detroit Tigers, 4-3

By BOB HOOBING

BOSTON (AP) — Jackie Jensen's two-out, two-strike single to left in the 10th inning brought Boston a second straight victory over mighty Detroit, 4-3 Saturday.

The winning hit was delivered off southpaw reliever Hank Aguirre who failed to help his own cause ealier in the inning.

Pinch hitter Rip Repulski hit a little grounder near first base which neither Aguirre nor first baseman Norm Cash went for, figuring the other had it.

Rookie Chuck Schilling moved the winning run to second when Aguirre fielded his bunt and threw wildly to second. Jensen drove pinch runner Tom Brewer the rest of the way home.

Red Sox reliever Dave Hillman walked only one man in a brilliant 2 2-3 inning relief performance, aided greatly by two of Boston's five crisp double plays.

Rookie Jake Wood's three-run homer in the eighth inning pulled the Tigers even and ended a 17-inning scoreless streak for Detroit.

Boston outfielder Carroll Hardy drilled a long double for one run and crashed home plate for another as the Red Sox bunched three runs in the sixth. Southpaw Don Mossi of the American League leaders appeared to be sidearming his way toward a no-hitter when the Sox struck.

Hardy, inserted in the lineup specifically to face the left-hander smashed a run-scoring drive to deep right center for the first blow off Mossi, but the latter's undoing began when he issued his second walk to opposing pitcher Billy Muffett.

With one out Tiger shortstop Chico Fernandez fumbled and momentarily lost an easy double play grounder by Chuck Schilling with both runners safely anchored by the time the harrassed infielder discovered the ball again.

IN POLE VAULT

Davies Smashes World Record

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Oklahoma State sophomore George Davies vaulted a world record 15 feet, 10¼ inches and Oklahoma, scoring heavily in field events, shattered Kansas' nine-year reign in the Big Eight Outdoor Track and Field Championships Saturday.

Davis' vault broke the 15-9¼ record Don Bragg set last year.

The Cowboy athlete, from Phoenix, Ariz., cleared the bar in the final event of the competition as a crowd of 2,000 and other athletes on the field watches spellbound.

Twice he failed, missing by a wide margin and knocking off the bar. On the third try, he brushed the bar on his way down. It shimmied momentarily, then held steady as a big roar went up.

Davis himself bounced up from the sawdust pit, leaping around the track and shouting joyfully.

Oklahoma scored 99 points to 88¼ for runner-up Kansas in winning its first conference outdoor championship since 1935.

Other team scores were Oklahoma State 84½, Missouri 58¾ Kansas Sate 50¾, Colorado 49, Nebraska 41¾ and Iowa State 23.

Double victories were turned in by Oklahoma weightman Mike Lindsay and hurdler Rex Stucker of Kansas State.

Lindsay won the shotput at 57 fet, 5½ inches and the discus with a throw of 164 feet, 2 inches. Stucker, repeating his dual triumphs of a year ago, swept to victory in the 120-yard highs in :14.1 and the 220-yard low hurdles in :22.8.

Other than Davies' mark, the only other record-eualing performance was by Jim Heath of Colorado. He captured the 440-yard dash in :46.5, tying the conference record set by Chuck Carlson of Colorado two years ago.

Kansas' troubles began in the afternoon's first event, the 440-yard relay. The Jayhawks failed to finish after they dropped the baton in a handoff from Bob Covey to Charlie Smith. Kansas lost ground in the 100-yard dash, too, where Larry McCue was favared. He wound up sixth, pulling up with a lame muscle.

Oklahoma picked up 16 points in discus, 12 in broad jump and 10 in the shot.

Big 8 League Renews Deal For Bowl Tilt

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — The Big Eight Conference and the Orange Bowl Committee announced Saturday a three-year renewal of their contract providing for a big eight football team to play in the Orange Bowl at Miami on Jan. 1.

The Big Eight has been sending a team there for the past eight years. The last contract also covered three years.

There are no restrictions in the new agreement prohibiting one Big Eight team from playing consecutive games in the Orange Bowl. The old contract prevented successive games by one Big Eight team.

The contract gives the Orange Bowl Committee authority "to select the member institution from the Big Eight to compete." This means that the committee can chose the champion, runner-up or any other Big Eight team it wishes.

However, if the champion or runner-up are ineligible the Orange Bowl Committee "shall have the privilege of selecting a substitute team, and it is understood that such substitute team shall not necessarily represent a member institution of the Big Eight."

Signing of the contract at a meeting of the Big Eight faculty representatives and athletic directors with the Orange Bowl Committee was announced jointly by Van Kussrow, chairman of scheduling for the Orange Bowl, and Reaves Peters, executive director for the Big Eight.

New Records

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP)—Harry Jerome of Oregon tied the world record in the 100-yard dash and Dyrol Burleson, also of Oregon, turned in the fastest 880 of the year in this country at the Far West track and field meet here.

Jerome's time was 9.3 seconds. Burleson's time was 1:48.7.

Hartack Atop Four Winners At Washington

CHICAGO (AP)—Willie Hartack rode four winners at Washington Park Saturday including Matthias in the $22,250 Clang Handicap.

The battle for second place was close, with Oink finishing ahead of Roman Colonel and Will Ye before a crowd of 19,213. Grand Wixard was fifth and then followed Benedicto, Alhambra and Vital Force in the field of eight.

Matthias, owned by William S. Miller, chairman of the Illinois racing board, outbroke his field and held a half-length lead after a quarter mile.

Matthias, on the inside, was joined by Will Ye and Roman Colonel on the stretch bend. The three raced as a team briefly before Matthias drew out to win handily by 1½ lengths.

It was the first stakes victory for Matthias, who paid $4.80, $3.40 and $2.60. Oink, the second choice, returned $4.20 and $3. Show price on Roman Colonel was $3.40.

Matthias earned $13,250 and ran the 6 furlongs in 1:09 2.5.

Predicts More Arrests Over Hoop Scandal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—District Solicitor Lester Chalmers returned from New York Saturday and said more arrests will be made in connection with fixing basketball games.

Chalmers, who was in New York several days conferring with authorities there, declined to say how many arrests would be made or to name those involved.

"It just wouldn't be right to say too much now," Chalmers staged. "But we haven't scratched the surface yet."

The solicitor said it was doubtful that three North Carolina State players—captain Stan Niewierowski, Terry Litchfield and Anton Muehlbauer—will go on trial June 5 on charges of bribery in the fixing of games.

"I don't think I can be prepared by then," Chalmers said. The grand jury will meet then and indictments will be handed to that body, he added.

Louis Barshak, an alleged gambler accused of being the contact man in the charges against the state players, is in the custody of the New York district attorney's office, Chalmers said.

New York District Attorney Hank Hogan has named 12 players from seven colleges as involved ite current scandal. Hogan said in New York earlier that the investigation is continuing but beyond that declined comment.

Chalmers said he would be continuing his investigation Sunday and that some warrants may be issued then.

Looking ahead in the probe, he said "we'll have other names to announce and possible games of other years."

A TIRED Doug Sanders chats with admirers after posting his second straight 68 to take a mid-point lead in the $20,000 Hot Springs Open Invitational golf tournament Friday. Sanders, who almost skipped this tourney for a vacation, said he has been going to a doctor for pains in his back and chest and wasn't sure he'd be able to finish the round. Sanders was tied with Mason Rudolph for first Friday, but despite his ailments, shot a three-under par 69 yesterday to take the lead. (AP Wirephoto)

SERIES SWEEP

Indians Ease Past Yanks On Romano's Double, 4-3

CLEVELAND (AP) — John Romano drove in the winning run with a double in the eighth inning to give Cleveland a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday and a sweep of the two-game series.

Romano's double came off loser Bill Stafford after Vic Power had singled. The Yankees threatened to tie it up in the ninth on Tony Kubek's two-out triple. But relief ace Frank Funk got Hector Lopez to fly out to end the game.

The Indians, winning six of seven, moved into second place ahead of the faltering Yanks.

New York took a 1-0 lead in the third inning on Roger Maris' home run off starter Gary Bell. It was Maris' sixth homer of the year.

Cleveland grabbed a 3-1 lead in the fourth. After Jim Piersall had walked and Tito Francona had singled, Vic Power doubled, scoring Piersall. When Mickey Mantle bobbled the ball, Francona also scored. Power took third on a sacrifice fly. Woodie Held brought Power home with an infield single.

New York knotted the score at 3-3 with a pair of runs in the eighth and chased Bell. Kubek got an infield single and pinch hitter Jesse Gonder singled to center. Kubek scored from third on a fly ball by Maris. After Mantle walked and Yogi Berra singled to fill the bases, Funk (4-2) came on for Bell. Gonder then scored on a force out before Funk got Bob Cerv to foul out, ending the inning.

Stafford (0-2), who worked the final two frames in relief of starter Ralph Terry, took the loss.

NEVILLE HURDLER

Gray Ties Mark In Champ Meet

Neville's Courtland Gray, a hurdler who showed his heels to the best high school timber toppers in the state of Louisiana over the past track season, added two more trophies to his case Friday night when he won both the high and lows in the New Orleans Meet of Champions.

Gray, a senior thinclad on the Neville squad this season, skipped over the low hurdles in the fine time of 14.7 and won the highs in 19.5, good enough to tie the Meet of Champions record. The other co-holders are Jesuit's Jim Lockhart and Baton Rouge High's Billy Hardin. Lockhart set his mark in 1953 and Hardin got his in 1960.

Gray proved his ability at the start of the track season when he journeyed to Memphis, Tennessee with Northeast State College's cinder forces and won the high and low hurdles over some of the best prepsters in the South.

After the opening meet Gray racked up valuable points for the Tiger tracksters in the hurdles and entered into a hurdle war with Ruston's ace Allan Carpenter. Carpenter held the edge on the Neville star until the state AA meet in Natchitoches. Gray's hustle and desire paved the way for two victories in the state meet as he beat Carpenter and set two state records, 19.5 in the lows and 14.5 in the highs. He also ran on the Neville mile relay team turning in a 52 second flat quarter mile.

Gentile Socks Orioles Past Solons, 4-3

BALTIMORE (AP) — Jim Gentile socked his 12th home run of the season Saturday, a blast that cleared the wire fence in deep right center field, to give Baltimore its victory margin as the Orioles edged the Washington Senators 4-3.

Gentile's blast came in the bottom of the eighth inning off relief pitcher Johnny Klippstein and drove in Brooks Robinson, who was on first by virtue of a walk.

The two runs combined with another pair of runs the Orioles racked up in the first inning, and were enough to offset a two-run homer by the Senators' Jim King during a Washington uprising in the ninth.

King's homer came after Chuck Hinton had singled to lead off. The Oriole starter, Hal (Skinny) Brown, retired the next two men, but then gave up a single to Pete Daley and a double to Coot Veal.

Baltimore's tireless relief ace, Hoyt Wilhelm, was called in to face pinch hitter R.C. Stevens. He forced Stevens into a game-ending ground out, to save Brown's third victory of the season against one loss.

Brown yielded nine hits, four of them in the final frame, as the Orioles climbed above the .500 mark for the season with their fifth victory without loss against Washington.

Until the ninth, the game was a pitching duel between Brown and Senator starter Joe McClain, who went out for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

McClain took the loss, his third against four victories.

Sanders Leads At Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Doug Sanders had some interference from a cocker spaniel Saturday, but posted a two-stroke lead in the semifinal round of the Hot Springs Open Golf Tournament.

The third-leading pro money winner from Ojai, Calif., shot a 3-under-par 69 for a 54-hole total of 205, 11 under par. In Sunday's 18-hole final round he shoots for his second tournament victory in eight days.

Sanders won the Colonial at Fort Worth, Tex., last Sunday. His putting was off here in the round although his drives and approach shots were perfect. He took 34 putts.

He lined up a 3-foot putt for a birdie on the sixth hole and putted as he met the ball the cocker spaniel, who was wallowing in a nearby sand trap, gave a "yip." The putt rimmed and he took a par.

The same dog frolicked between Jerry Steelsmith and the cup on the third hole as Steelsmith lined up a putt. The golfer waited for the dog, then sank the shot for a par.

Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, Ga., and Steelsmith, of Glendale, Calif., followed Sanders with 207s. Aaron shot a 66, the best score of the round.

Mason Rudolph of Clarksville, Tenn., who tied Sanders for the 36-hole lead at 136, shot a par 72 and dropped into a tie for fourth with Johnny Pott, Dave Ragan, Al Geiberger and Mike Souchak.

Jockey Says Preakness Was Toughest

BALTIMORE (AP) — Carry Back's three-quarter length victory in the Preakness Saturday was described by jockey Johnny Sellers as the 3-year-old colt's "toughest race."

"He didn't take to the track as readily as in the Kentucky Derby," said the nation's leading rider. "It was not until we got outside on firmer ground that he really took off. He was bothered by the deep track and the sand coming back in his face."

Sellers, who has ridden Mrs. Katherine Price's come-from-behind colt in his major victories, said he did not try to force Carry Back to do what he didn't want to do. He merely waited until he was ready to run.

"I talked to him on the backside, and I whipped him some at the half-mile pole to make him move. We were a little further back than we had planned," Sellers said.

"I hit him a little more than normal, but this horse doesn't like too much stick."

Sellers said they were about a length behind with a sixteenth of a mile to go, caught the front-running Globemaster with 70 yards left, but he didn't know he would win until the final few strides.

Carry Back was pinched back a little coming out of the starting gate, Sellers said, so he took him to the rail and saved ground.

The winning jockey had words of praise for Globemaster, saying he didn't expect Leonard P. Sasso's colt to do as well.

"I was watching Crozier," he said, "but when I got to the head of the stretch and saw Globemaster way out there was a lot of riding to do."

The victory was the seventh in 12 starts for Sellers and Carry Back since Sellers replaced Bill Hartack as the rider last October.

In addition to being the nation's leading jockey in number of winners, Sellers has accounted for more than $1 million in purses since the start of the year. This was his first appearance in a Preakness.

John Rotz, the rider of Globemaster, said he didn't believe his horse could have run any better, "but when you take Carry Back down to the wire, you know you've run a good race."

Braulio Baeza, aboard third-place Crozier, was disappointed in the performance.

"He didn't run at all," Baeza said. "He never tried. I don't know whether it was the track, but more likely it was his mood. When I tried to make him move, he just shook his head and did nothing."

Jack Price, trainer of Carry Back, said he thought the race was lost when they came out of the second and last turn, "and I didn't change my mind until he hit the wire."

Mrs. Price said she was more apprehensive than during the Derby stretch drive by her little brown colt.

"Why does he have to run such thrilling races?" she asked. "He's such a ham."

Michigan Wins Big 10 Track Title Easily

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Michigan's talented Wolverines, led by double winners Tom Robinson and Ergas Leps, Saturday swept to an overwhelming triumph in the 61st Big Ten track and field meet which produced two conference records.

Bahaman Robinson easily retained his 100 and 220 dash titles and Canadian Olympian Leps repeated as mile champion and captured the 880 to pace the Wolverines' 55 1-5-point performance.

Indiana was runner-up with 36 points and defending champion Illinois wound up third with 27 1-5. Iowa had 24½, Northwestern 24 1-5, Michigan State 16, Ohio State 15 7-10, Minnesota 15, Purdue 12 and Wisconsin 5 1-5.

The records were fashioned in the 220-yard low hurdles, around one curve, by Michigan's Dick Cephas, and in the 2-mile run by Purdue's George Harvey.

Cephas was clocked in :23.4, shattering the 28-year-old mark of :23.5 set by Ohio State's George Keller and tied by another Buckeye, Glenn Davis, in 1956.

Harvey, Purdue senior, finished with a tremendous kick to win the 2-mile in 9:02.6, bettering the former mark of 9:03.2 by Minnesota's Len Edelen in 1958.

The Wolverines won six individual events and scored points in 11 of the 15 events.

Three defending champions were unseated—Minnesota's Dave Odegard by Michigan's Ben McRae in the hurdles, Michigan's Ray Locke by Bill Brown of Illinois in the shotput, and Paul Foreman of Illinois by teammate Deryck Taylor in the broad jump.

Milwaukee Braves Roll Over Reds By 9-5 Score

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves combined some lusty hitting with five walks and six stolen bases Saturday and cooled off the surging Cincinnati Reds with a 9-5 victory.

It was only the third defeat in the last 16 games for the Reds and it was the first time Milwaukee has beaten them this season in five games.

Walks given up by starting pitcher Ken Hunt figured prominently in the Braves' first three runs. In addition they had a field day against Hunt, reliever Howie Nunn and catcher Bob Schmidt in the stolen base department. Lee Maye had two stolen bases and Eddie Mathews, Charlie Lau, Hank Aaron and Frank Thomas one each.

Mathews had a home run for Milwaukee and Gordon Coleman got one for the Reds.

Don McMahon received credit for the victory after relieving starter Don Nottebart although Moe Drabowsky had to come on in the ninth to stifle a Cincinnati threat.

The Braves never were headed after getting three runs in the first on only one hit.

Hunt walked the bases full and Joe Adcock cleared them with a double off the scoreboard. The Reds got one of them back in their half on Don Blasingame's triple and Frank Robinson's single to center.

Mathews seventh home run of the season came in the second after Maye had singled and stolen second.

The Reds never were able to catch up although Gordon Coleman's fourth-inning home run cut the Milwaukee margin to a run at that time.

Dodgers Topple San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The power-packed Los Angeles Dodgers, current home run kings of the National League, moved to within a game of first place San Francisco Saturday by beating the Giants 4-3 for the second day in a row.

Three home runs and Roger Craig's five-hit pitching plunged the Giants' brilliant lefty, Mike McCormick, to his second defeat. He has won four.

Craig turned back the Giants for the eighth straight time since he lost to them at New York's Polo Grounds in 1955. Craig scattered three singles and a double and was touched for one homer as he recorded his third victory of the season against two losses.

McCormick was yanked for a pinchhitter in the fifth after he had given up seven of the 11 Dodger hits and all four runs. Three were on homers by Tommy Davis, Frank Howard and Jim Gilliam.

Orlando Cepeda closed the gap to 4-3 in the ninth with his 10th home run of the season, tying him with the Dodgers' Wally Moon for the league leadership.

Saturday's homers raised the Dodgers' season total to 51. After the first Giant error in 60 innings helped the Dodgers to a run in the first, Los Angeles unleashed its home run power.

Game attendance was 33,906.

A TIRED Doug Sanders chats with admirers after posting his second straight 68 to take a mid-point lead in the $20,000 Hot Springs Open Invitational golf tournament Friday. Sanders, who almost skipped this tourney for a vacation, said he has been going to a doctor for pains in his back and chest and wasn't sure he'd be able to finish the round, Sanders was tied with Mason Rudolph for first Friday, but despite his ailments, shot a three-under par 69 yesterday to take the lead. Sanders Leads At Hot Springs

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—Doug Sanders had some interference from a cocker spaniel Saturday, but posted a two-stroke lead in the semifinal round of the Hot Springs Open Golf Tournament.

The third-leading pro money-winner from Ojai, Calif., shot a 3-under-pvar 69 for a 54-hole total of 205, 11-under-par. In Sunday's 18-hole final round he shoots for his second tournament victory in eight days.

Sanders won the Colonial at Fort Worth, Tex., last Sunday. His putting was off here in this round although his drives and approach shots were perfect. He took 34 putts.

He lined up a 3-foot putt for a birdie on the sixth hole and just as he met the ball the cocker spaniel, who was wallowing in a nearby sand trap, gave a "yip." The putt rimmed and he took a par.

The same dog trotted between Jerry Steelsmith and the cup on the third hole as Steelsmith lined up a putt. The golfer waited for the dog, then sank the shot for a par.

Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, Ga and Steelsmith, of Glendale, Calif., followed Sanders with 207s. Aaron shot a 66—the best score of the round.

SERIES SWEEP

Indians Ease Past Yanks On Romano's Double, 4-3

CLEVELAND (AP) — John Romano drove in the winning run with a double in the eighth inning to give Cleveland a 4-3 victory over the New York Yankees Saturday and a sweep of the two-game series.

Romano's double came off loser Bill Stafford after Vic Power had singled. The Yankees threatened to tie it up in the ninth on Tony Kuebk's two-out triple. But relief ace Frank Funk got Hector Lopez to fly out to end the game.

The Indians, winning six of seven, moved into second place ahead of the faltering Yanks.

New York took a 1-0 lead in the third inning on Roger Maris' home run off starter Gary Bell. It was Maris' sixth homer of the year.

Cleveland grabbed a 3-1 lead in the fourth. After Jim Piersall had walked and Tito Francona had singled, Vic Power doubled, scoring Piersall. When Mickey Mantle bobbled the ball, Francona also scored. Power took third on a sacrifice fly. Woodie Held brought Power home with an infield single.

New York knotted the score at 3-3 with a pair of runs in the eighth and chased Bell. Kubek got an infield single and pinch hitter Jesse Gonder singled to center. Kubek scored from third on a fly ball by Maris. After Mantle walked and Yogi Berra singled to fill the bases, Funk (4-2) came on for Bell. Gonder then scored on a force out before Funk got Bob Cerv to foul out, ending the inning.

Stafford (0-2), who worked the final two frames in relief of starter Ralph Terry, took the loss.

NEVILLE HURDLER

Gray Ties Mark In Champ Meet

Neville's Courtland Gray, a hurdler who showed his heels to the best high school timber toppers in the state of Louisiana over the past track season, added two more trophies to his case Friday night when he won both the high and lows in the New Orleans Meet of Champions.

Gray, a senior thinclad on the Neville squad this season, skipped over the low hurdles in the fine time of 14.7 and won the highs in 19.5, good enough to tie the Meet of Champions record. The other co-holders are Jesuit's Jim Lockhart and Baton Rouge High's Billy Hardin. Lockhart set his mark in 1953 and Hardin got his in 1960.

Gray proved his ability at the start of the track season when he journeyed to Memphis, Tennessee with Northeast State College's cinder forces and won the high and low hurdles over some of the best prepsters in the South.

After the opening meet Gray racked up valuable points for the Tiger tracksters in the hurdles and entered into a hurdle war with Ruston's ace Allan Carpenter. Carpenter held the edge on the Neville star until the state AA meet in Natchitoches. Gray's hustle and desire paved the way for two victories in the state meet as he beat Carpenter and set two state records, 19.5 in the lows and 14.5 in the highs. He also ran on the Neville mile relay team turning in a 52 second flat quarter mile.

Gentile Socks Orioles Past Solons, 4-3

BALTIMORE (AP)—Jim Gentile socked his 12th home run of the season Saturday, a blast that cleared the wire fence in deep right center field, to give Baltimore its victory margin as the Orioles edged the Washington Senators, 4-3.

Gentile's blast came in the bottom of the eighth inning off relief pitcher Johnny Klippstein and drove in Brooks Robinson, who was on first by virtue of a walk.

The two runs combined with another pair of runs the Orioles racked up in the first inning, and were enough to offset a two-run homer by the Senators' Jim King during a Washington uprising in the ninth.

King's homer came after Chuck Hinton had singled to lead off. The Oriole starter, Hal (Skinny) Brown, retired the next two men, but then gave up a single to Pete Daley and a double to Coot Veal.

Baltimore's tireless relief ace, Hoyt Wilhelm, was called in to face pinch hitter R.C. Stevens. He forced Stevens into a game-ending ground out, to save Brown's third victory of the season against one loss.

Brown yielded nine hits, four of them in the final frame, as the Orioles climbed above the .500 mark for the season with their fifth victory without loss against Washington.

Until the finish, the game was a pitching duel between Brown and Senator starter Joe McClain, who went out for a pinch hitter in the eighth.

McClain took the loss, his third against four victories.

Jockey Says Preakness Was Toughest

BALTIMORE (AP) — Carry Back's three-quarter length victory in the Preakness Saturday was described by jockey Johnny Sellers as the 3-year-old colt's "toughest race."

"He didn't take to the track as readily as in the Kentucky Derby," said the nation's leading rider. "It was not until we got outside on firmer ground that he really took off. He was bothered by the deep track and the sand coming back in his face."

Sellers, who has ridden Mrs. Katherine Price's come-from-behind colt in his major victories, said he did not try to force Carry Back to do what he didn't want to do. He merely waited until he was ready to run.

"I talked to him on the backside, and I whipped him some at the half-mile pole to make him move. We were a little further back than we had planned," Sellers said.

"I hit him a little more than normal, but this horse doesn't like too much stick."

Sellers said they were about a length behind with a sixteenth of a mile to go, caught the front-running Globemaster with 70 yard left, but he didn't know he would win until the final few strides.

Carry Back was pinched back a little coming out of the starting gate, Sellers said, so he took him to he rail and saved ground.

The winning jockey had words of praise for Globemaster, saying he didn't expect Leonard P. Sasso's colt to do as well.

"I was watching Crozier," he said, "but when I got to the head of the stretch and saw Globemaster way out there was a lot of riding to do."

The victory was the seventh in 12 starts for Sellers and Carry Back since Sellers replaced Bill Hartack as the rider last October.

In addition to being the nation's leading jockey in number of winners, Sellers has accounted for more than $1 million in purses since the start of the year. This was his first appearance in a Preakness.

John Rotz, the rider of Globemaster, said he didn't believe his horse could have run any better, "but when you take Carry Back down to the wire, you know you've run a good race."

Braulio Baeza, aboard third-place Crozier, was disappointed in the performance.

"He didn't run at all," Baeza said. "He never tried. I don't know whether it was the track, but more likely it was his mood. When I tried to make him move, he just shook his head and did nothing."

Jack Price, trainer of Carry Back, said he thought the race was lost when they came out of the second and last turn, "and I didn't change my mind until he hit the wire."

Mrs. Price said she was more apprehensive than during the Derby stretch drive by her little brown colt.

"Why does he have to run such thrilling races?" she asked. "He's such a ham."

Michigan Wins Big 10 Track Title Easily

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Michigan's talented Wolverines, led by double winners Tom Robinson and Ergas Leps, Saturday swept to an overwhelming triumph in the 61st Big Ten track and field meet which produced two conference records.

Bahaman Robinson easily retained his 100 and 220 dash titles and Canadian Olympian Leps repeated as mile champion and captured the 880 to pace the Wolverines' 55 1-5-point performance.

Indiana was runner-up with 36 points and defending champion Illinois wound up third with 27 1-5. Iowa had 24½, Northwestern 24 1-5, Michigan State 16, Ohio State 15 7-10, Minnesota 15, Purdue 12 and Wisconsin 5 1-5.

The records were fashioned in the 220-yard low hurdles, around one curve, by Michigan's Dick Cephas, and in the 2-mile run by Purdue's George Harvey.

Cephas was clocked in :23.4, shattering the 28-year-old mark of :23.5 set by Ohio State's George Keller and tied by another Buckeye, Glenn Davis, in 1956.

Harvey, Purdue senior, finished with a tremendous kick to win the 2-mile in 9:02.6, bettering the former mark of 9:03.2 by Minnesota's Len Edelen in 1958.

The Wolverines won six individual events and scored points in 11 of the 15 events.

Three defending champions were unseated—Minnesota's Dave Odegard by Michigan's Ben McRae in the hurdles, Michigan's Ray Locke by Bill Brown of Illinois in the shotput, and Paul Foreman of Illinois by teammate Deryck Taylor in the broad jump.

Milwaukee Braves Roll Over Reds By 9-5 Score

CINCINNATI (AP) — The Milwaukee Braves combined some lusty hitting with five walks and six stolen bases Saturday and cooled off the surging Cincinnati Reds with a 9-5 victory.

It was only the third defeat in the last 16 games for the Reds and it was the first time Milwaukee has beaten them this season in five games.

Walks given up by starting pitcher Ken Hunt figured prominently in the Braves' first three runs. In addition they had a field day against Hunt, reliever Howie Nunn and catcher Bob Schmidt in the stolen base department. Lee Maye had two stolen bases and Eddie Mathews, Charlie Lau, Hank Aaron and Frank Thomas one each.

Mathews had a home run for Milwaukee and Gordon Coleman got one for the Reds.

Don McMahon received credit for the victory after relieving starter Don Nottebart, although Moe Drabowsky had to come on in the ninth to stifle a Cincinnati threat.

The Braves never were headed after getting three runs in the first on only one hit.

Hunt walked the bases full and Joe Adcock cleared them with a double off the scoreboard. The Reds got one of them back in their half on Don Blasingame's triple and Frank Robinson's single to center.

Mathews seventh home run of the season came in the second after Maye had singled and stolen second.

The Reds never were able to catch up although Gordon Coleman's fourth-inning home run cut the Milwaukee margin to a run at that time.

Dodgers Topple San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—The power-packed Los Angeles Dodgers, current home run kings of the National League, moved to within a game of first place San Francisco Saturday by beating the Giants 4-3 for the second day in a row.

Three home runs and Roger Craig's five-hit pitching plunged the Giants' brilliant lefty, Mike McCormick, to his second defeat. He has won four.

Craig turned back the Giants for the eighth straight tie since he lost to them at New York's Polo Grounds in 1955. Craig scattered three singles and a double and was touched for one homer as he recorded his third victory of the season against two losses.

McCormick was yanked for a pinchhitter in the fifth after he had given up seven of the 11 Dodger hits and all four runs. Three were on homers by Tommy Davis, Frank Howard and Jim Gilliam.

Orlando Cepeda closed the gap to 4-3 in the ninth with his 10th home run of the season, tying him with the Dodgers' Wally Moon for the league leadership.

Saturday's homers raised the Dodgers' season total to 54. After the first Giant error in 60 innings helped the Dodgers to a run in the first, Los Angeles unleashed its home run power.

Davis belted his fifth homer in the third. Howard opened the fourth with a rifle shot into the left field bleachers—his sixth. In the fifth, Gilliam lofted a lazy arched fly over the left field fence for his first homer, to make it 4-0.

Game attendance was 33,906.

Texan Turns-In 3rd Best Run In Speedway Annals

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Lloyd Ruby, a Texan who took seventh money last year in his first Indianapolis 500-mile auto race, Saturday cranked on the third-fastest qualifying run in Indianapolis Motor Speedway

The 33-year-old Houston driver wheeled the late Tony Bettenhausen's Autolite Special through the 10-mile trials at an average speed of 146.909 miles an hour.

Only faster trial runs ever made at the Speedway were Jim Hurtubise's 149.056 last year and Eddie Sach's pole-winning 147.481 a week ago.

With one more qualifying session left Sunday for the golden anniversary race May 30, the field was filled with a record average speed for the 33 cars tentatively in the line-up. They had an overall average of 146.265 miles an hour compared with last year's record 144.070.

Eight cars qualified Saturday, more than filling the field and shoving two of the 27 earlier, but slower, qualifiers out of the race.

Bumped were Norm Hall of Los Angeles, who had qualified the Concannon Flying Special at 141.861, and Bob Veith of Fort Bragg, Calif., who had qualified the Shaler Rislone special at 143.062.

To make the field in Sunday's session, a driver will have to beat the 143.672 made May 13 by Bob Cleberg, Tucson, Ariz.

Al Keller of Green Acres, Fla., veteran of five Memorial Day starts, had the day's second best qualifying time of 146.157.

Other qualifiers were rookie Don Davis, Phoenix, 145.349; former national champion Chuck Stevenson, Garden Grove, Calif., 145.191; rookie Roger McCluskey, Tucson, 145.068; Cliff Griffith, Indianapolis, 145.038; Dempsey Wilson, Lawndale, Calif., 144.202, and Paul Russo, Fortville, Indiana, 143.983.

Russo's original car was demolished in the test run that killed Bettenhausen May 12. Russo qualified in a Bryant Special originally assigned to Elmer George, son-in-law of Speedway owner Tony Hulman.

The Bettenhausen car in which Ruby made his fast run had been clocked unofficially at over 148 miles an hour, while Bettenhausen was practicing last week. It is owned by Lindsey Hopkins of Miami, Fla., who also has a car in the field driven by Wayne Weiler of Phoenix, Ariz.

POLIO is still around
Are you protected?

Polio is not a thing of the past! It will strike this summer. Are you and your loved ones protected?

Polio now strikes babies and their parents most frequently so it is particularly essential that these two groups receive full immunization.

Protection against Polio is one of the most important obligations a parent has to himself and his children. Call your personal physician or local health department for full information.

The time to provide safety for next summer is now. Get that protection you need as soon as you can and face next summer with peace of mind.

Don't take a chance—take your polio shots

ARLON ADAMS

Arlon Adams Takes Start Coach Post

START, La. (Special) — According to an announcement this week by J. B. Thompson, Jr., Superintendent of Richland Parish Schools, Arlon Adams has accepted the position of basketball and track coach at Start High School.

Adams leaves a similar post at Forest and comes to Start with the best record in the won-lost column in Northeast Louisiana and perhaps in the state. During the past three years at Forest his basketball team has compiled a 106 won and 9 lost record. This record was compiled against many Class A, AA, AAA teams. Forest competes in Class B. They lost out in the state championships this year to Ringgold by 7 points, with Ringgold winning the title. Forest has beaten several teams during the year that went on to playing the state championships in their class, namely, St. Matthews, Ft. Necessity, Athens, and Ringgold.

Adams graduated from Ogden High School. He attended Northeast La. State College, lettering in both basketball and track. He received his master's Degree from Ole Miss. He is married to the formesr Dorothy Thornton, of Sikes, and the father of one son.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams plan to move to Start immediately after school is out.

Dubach Nine, Elizabeth In State Wins

BATON ROUGE — Dubach's John Jeffcoat pitched two victories here Saturday and lifted the Hornets to the Class B state baseball title.

Jeffcoat, who finished the season with the smart mark of 18 wins and no defeats, beat St. Edmund of Eunice, 12-0, in the morning semifinals, then came back to pitch a 17-2 victory over the Washington Lions of St. Landry Parish for the title.

In Calss C, Elizabeth's Kenny Tilton also came through with two wins as the Bulldogs captured the C crown. Tilton hurled an 11-10 victory over Montgomery in the semis, and a 7-5 verdict over Mid-City Baptist of New Orleans for the state championship.

The victory by Dubach gave the Hornets their fourth state title in the last 11 years. Jeffcoat gave up only seven hits, a two-hitter against St. Ed's and a five-hitter against Washington. He wound up with 12 strikeouts for the day.

William Green's homer in the first game and Dickey Lewis' six hits in the 10 tries were the big bat marks for Dubach. The Dubach team registered 35 hits in their two games.

Tilton rested thirty minutes after defeating Montgomery, then came right back to spell defeat for the Baptists from New Orleans. He socked a two-run homer in the first inning that got the Bulldogs off to a 3-0 lead. Though hit heavily, he controlled the situation most of the way.

Timothy Cole got three hits to lead Elizabeth at the plate. Tilton had two, and Roy Prewitt also had two. Jimmy Wainright was the loser for Mid-City Baptist. He had previously pitched the New Orleans team to an 11-0 victory over Marion.

Bucs Blast Phil Nine By 4-2 Score

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three home runs off luckless Robin Roberts gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday night.

The Phillies almost won it in the ninth. With one out and the score 4-2, the Phillies loaded the bases on Clem Labine, who had relieved Joe Gibbon. Bobby Schantz relieved Labine and Ken Walters scored on Frank Herrera's fly out.

Then John Callison got the third walk of the inning, reloading the bases. ElRoy Face relieved Shantz and retired the side on a force out. The only hit of the inning was a single by Tony Gonzalez.

Gibbon, who gave up seven hits, picked up his third victory against two losses before he was relieved during Philadelphia two-run rally in the eighth. Roberts, for many years a 20-game winner, lasted through the eighth, and lost his sixth game. He has yet to win this season.

Bill Mazeroski, Don Hoak and Smoky Burgess hit solo homers as the Pirates built a 3-0 lead, then Roberto Clemente scored what proved to be the winning run in the eighth. Clemente reached base on a force out, moved around on Burgess' single and came home on a sacrifice fly.

The Phillies based their rally on only two hits. Bobby DelGreco, who had walked and gone to second on Bob Malkmus' single, scored on a single by Callison. Malkmus scored on a force out.

Tag Teamers Top Schedule At Roll Arena

Frankie Kovacs, after contributing to a victory in last week's Roll-Arena headline match, will attempt to do the same tomorrow night when he teams with well-known Marco Polo in a match against rough Gene Bowman and Tony Neopolitan.

Last week Kovacs, Rod Rivera and Jim Quinn defeated Bowman, Neopolitan and Prince Omar in the main event tag-team bout. Tonight's tag team match will be the main event, two falls to win, hour time limit.

Bowman and Neopolitan, a pair that always seek revenge after a loss, will be smarting from last week's loss and Kovacs will have to be at his best, and so will Polo, to notch a win Monday.

In the semifinal match Rod Rivera and Shiek Abdulah, who has made some good showings in Monroe in the past, will battle in an hour time limit, two falls to win match.

Kovacs and Gene Bowman will trade holds in the 15-minute opener, a warm up for their parts in the main event.

Texan Turns-In 3rd Best Run In Speedway Annals

By DALE BURGESS

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Lloyd Ruby, a Texan who took seventh money last year in his first Indianapolis 500-mile auto race, Saturday cranked on the third-fastest qualifying run in Indianapolis Motor Speedway

The 33-year-old Houston driver wheeled the late Tony Bettenhausen's Autolite Special through the 10-mile trials at an average speed of 146.909 miles an hour.

Only faster trial runs ever made at the Speedway were Jim Hurtubise's 149.056 last year and Eddie Sach's pole-winning 147.481 a week ago.

With one more qualifying session left Sunday for the golden anniversary race May 30, the field was filled with a record average speed for the 33 cars tentatively in the line-up. They had an overall average of 146.265 miles an hour compared with last year's record 144.070.

Eight cars qualified Saturday, more than filling the field and shoving two of the 27 earlier, but slower, qualifiers out of the race.

Bumped were Norm Hall of Los Angeles, who had qualified the Concannon Flying Special at 141.861, and Bob Veith of Fort Bragg, Calif., who had qualified the Shaler Rislone special at 143.062.

To make the field in Sunday's session, a driver will have to beat the 143.672 made May 13 by Bob Cleberg, Tucson, Ariz.

Al Keller of Green Acres, Fla., veteran of five Memorial Day starts, had the day's second best qualifying time of 146.157.

Other qualifiers were rookie Don Davis, Phoenix, 145.349; former national champion Chuck Stevenson, Garden Grove, Calif., 145.191; rookie Roger McCluskey, Tucson, 145.068; Cliff Griffith, Indianapolis, 145.038; Dempsey Wilson, Lawndale, Calif., 144.202, and Paul Russo, Fortville, Indiana, 143.983.

Russo's original car was demolished in the test run that killed Bettenhausen May 12. Russo qualified in a Bryant Special originally assigned to Elmer George, son-in-law of Speedway owner Tony Hulman.

The Bettenhausen car in which Ruby made his fast run had been clocked unofficially at over 148 miles an hour, while Bettenhausen was practicing last week. It is owned by Lindsey Hopkins of Miami, Fla., who also has a car in the field driven by Wayne Weiler of Phoenix, Ariz.

POLIO is still around
Are you protected?

Polio is not a thing of the past! It will strike this summer. Are you and your loved ones protected?

Polio now strikes babies and their parents most frequently so it is particularly essential that these two groups receive full immunization.

Protection against Polio is one of the most important obligations a parent has to himself and his children. Call your personal physician or local health department for full information.

The time to provide safety for next summer is now. Get that protection you need as soon as you can and face next summer with peace of mind.

ARLON ADAMS

Arlon Adams Takes Start Coach Post

START, La. (Special) — According to an announcement this week by J. B. Thompson, Jr., Superintendent of Richland Parish Schools, Arlon Adams has accepted the position of basketball and track coach at Start High School.

Adams leaves a similar post at Forest and comes to Start with the best record in the won-lost column in Northeast Louisiana and perhaps in the state. During the past three years at Forest his basketball team has compiled a 106 won and 9 lost record. This record was compiled against many Class A, AA, AAA teams. Forest competes in Class B. They lost out in the state championships this year to Ringgold by 7 points, with Ringgold winning the title. Forest has beaten several teams during the year that went on to playing the state championships in their class, namely, St. Matthews, Ft. Necessity, Athens, and Ringgold.

Adams graduated from Ogden High School. He attended Northeast La. State College, lettering in both basketball and track. He received his master's Degree from Ole Miss. He is married to the formesr Dorothy Thornton, of Sikes, and the father of one son.

Mr. and Mrs. Adams plan to move to Start immediately after school is out.

Dubach Nine, Elizabeth In State Wins

BATON ROUGE — Dubach's John Jeffcoat pitched two victories here Saturday and lifted the Hornets to the Class B state baseball title.

Jeffcoat, who finished the season with the smart mark of 18 wins and no defeats, beat St. Edmund of Eunice, 12-0, in the morning semifinals, then came back to pitch a 17-2 victory over the Washington Lions of St. Landry Parish for the title.

In Calss C, Elizabeth's Kenny Tilton also came through with two wins as the Bulldogs captured the C crown. Tilton hurled an 11-10 victory over Montgomery in the semis, and a 7-5 verdict over Mid-City Baptist of New Orleans for the state championship.

The victory by Dubach gave the Hornets their fourth state title in the last 11 years. Jeffcoat gave up only seven hits, a two-hitter against St. Ed's and a five-hitter against Washington. He wound up with 12 strikeouts for the day.

William Green's homer in the first game and Dickey Lewis' six hits in the 10 tries were the big bat marks for Dubach. The Dubach team registered 35 hits in their two games.

Tilton rested thirty minutes after defeating Montgomery, then came right back to spell defeat for the Baptists from New Orleans. He socked a two-run homer in the first inning that got the Bulldogs off to a 3-0 lead. Though hit heavily, he controlled the situation most of the way.

Timothy Cole got three hits to lead Elizabeth at the plate. Tilton had two, and Roy Prewitt also had two. Jimmy Wainright was the loser for Mid-City Baptist. He had previously pitched the New Orleans team to an 11-0 victory over Marion.

Bucs Blast Phil Nine By 4-2 Score

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Three home runs off luckless Robin Roberts gave the Pittsburgh Pirates a 4-3 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies Saturday night.

The Phillies almost won it in the ninth. With one out and the score 4-2, the Phillies loaded the bases on Clem Labine, who had relieved Joe Gibbon. Bobby Schantz relieved Labine and Ken Walters scored on Frank Herrera's fly out.

Then John Callison got the third walk of the inning, reloading the bases. ElRoy Face relieved Shantz and retired the side on a force out. The only hit of the inning was a single by Tony Gonzalez.

Gibbon, who gave up seven hits, picked up his third victory against two losses before he was relieved during Philadelphia two-run rally in the eighth. Roberts, for many years a 20-game winner, lasted through the eighth, and lost his sixth game. He has yet to win this season.

Bill Mazeroski, Don Hoak and Smoky Burgess hit solo homers as the Pirates built a 3-0 lead, then Roberto Clemente scored what proved to be the winning run in the eighth. Clemente reached base on a force out, moved around on Burgess' single and came home on a sacrifice fly.

The Phillies based their rally on only two hits. Bobby DelGreco, who had walked and gone to second on Bob Malkmus' single, scored on a single by Callison. Malkmus scored on a force out.

Tag Teamers Top Schedule At Roll Arena

Frankie Kovacs, after contributing to a victory in last week's Roll-Arena headline match, will attempt to do the same tomorrow night when he teams with well-known Marco Polo in a match against rough Gene Bowman and Tony Neopolitan.

Last week Kovacs, Rod Rivera and Jim Quinn defeated Bowman, Neopolitan and Prince Omar in the main event tag-team bout. Tonight's tag team match will be the main event, two falls to win, hour time limit.

Bowman and Neopolitan, a pair that always seek revenge after a loss, will be smarting from last week's loss and Kovacs will have to be at his best, and so will Polo, to notch a win Monday.

In the semifinal match Rod Rivera and Shiek Abdulah, who has made some good showings in Monroe in the past, will battle in an hour time limit, two falls to win match.

Kovacs and Gene Bowman will trade holds in the 15-minute opener, a warm up for their parts in the main event.

REPATRIATE REPORTS

Thousands Still In Cuba Prisons

EDITOR'S NOTE: In the aftermath of the unsuccessful invasion of Cuba, thousands are still rotting in grim, filthy prisons. Robert Berrellez, Associated Press correspondent in Havana, was among those caught in the nets of Castro's G2 and thrown into crowded cells where nature took its course in illness, terror, cold and death. Berrellez flew back to this country Friday night with the first planeload of repatriated Americans. Here is his report on what he left behind him.

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Early the morning of Saturday, April 15, the young scion of one of Cuba's wealthiest families drove east from Havana en route to a weekend at the beach resort of Varadero.

He was unaware that miles behind him in the Cuban capital the military airport and vicinity was rocking with explosions caused by a dawn air attack by invader planes.

Seemingly from nowhere in the highway behind him materialized a sleek, tan-colored car clearly marked "G2" on the sides and back. The car bore down on him swiftly and forced him to the roadside.

While one officer covered him with a gun, the other searched the youth's car. After a while the searcher emerged with two packs of American cigarettes which he showed to the other officer. They nodded silently and the youth was returned to Havana—and prison.

At about the same time in Havana, a man took his dog for a stroll. At the neighborhood coffee shop he stopped to chat to the owner. This morning as in others past, and to amuse the owner, the man asked his dog, "What do you think of Fidel?" this time, a man detached himself from the counter, introduced himself as a G2 agent and took him away.

This was the beginning of what could be called the largest roundup of human beings in Western Hemisphere history. Their stories were among hundreds related to this reporter who shared 25 days of imprisonment with them—without formal charge.

The mass detentions, to continue for over a week, were to result in 10 known deaths, scores of injuries, two shootings and four miscarriages.

Doctors were pulled away from operating rooms for incarceration. A well-known Havana lawyer, wracked with the flu in prison, died of pneumonia despite repeated protests to the prison commandant. The official death certificate handed to the family listed "heart attack" as the cause of death.

In Camaguey, capital of the nation's chief cattle growing province, armed militiamen moved into a church. They disrupted Mass, took the chalice from the altar and hurled the consecrated host to the floor.

Passman Urges Research Funds For Laboratory

WASHINGTON (Special)—Rep. Otto Passman has urged the Senate Appropriations Committe to provide funds for a new, $630,000 soil and water research at Baton Rouge.

The laboratory would study all phases of soil engineering and and agronomy in the Mississippi River Valley and the coastal areas of Louisiana and Texas.

In testimony newly released by an agriculture appropriations subcommittee headed by Rep. Jamie Whitten (D) Miss., Passman said research would be centered in the laboratory near the Louisiana State University with three off-station work centers in the cotton section of north Louisiana, in the Red River Valley, in the rice and sugar cane section.

Passman said construction of the laboratory would cost about $630,000 and equipment and personnel would require $310,000 the irst year. The annual cost thereafter would be $410,010.

This has been the Week of Seniors, socially speaking. Parties for graduates have filled the calendar: teas conversational hours, outdoor parties, boatrides. A real whirl.

On Monday, JEANNE SLAUGHTER and JACK YOUNGBLOOD were guests of honor for an all - day swimming party at the McCormick camp on Lake Providence. About twenty - five seniors gathered early Monday morning and proceeded together to the camp. At noon, a picnic lunch of hot dogs and cupcakes was served. Hostesses for the party were MRS. EDGAR McCORMICK, MRS. CURT DUGGINS, and MRS. E. C. SLAUGHTER.

All Neville senior girls were invited to a conversational hour honoring CAROLE COLE on Tuesday morning. BETTY GOYNE and JUDY TURPIN were hostesses for the party, which was held at the Turpin home. Spring flowers were used in the living room, and hydrangeas on the dining room table, with a paper doll of a girl graduate. Figures of graduates and diplomas centered the trays of goodies which were passed, and tiny college pennants were on toothpicks in individual cakes. About sixty - five girls attended.

Also on Tuesday, ELLEN YANCEY, CHICHE LILES, and Louise KLAM invited seniors to a patio party at the Yancey residence honoring BUNNY CANNON. Petunias and ivy were massed under the glass - topped patio table, where guests roasted tiny weiners on the hibachi. Bottled soft drinks were served from a pushcart filled with ice and decorated with caladium leaves. There were fifty guests.

JAN ADCOCK, LINDA BIRD, and JIM GUTHRIE were honored when the CONWAY CROSSLANDS entertained Tuesday between the hours of four and seven. Boating and swimming were the order of the evening. Picnic supper of barbecue, baked beans, and cake was served to about forty seniors.

A charming "family party" was held Wednesday afternoon honoring LYNN SMITH, LEA THOMPSON, and LINDA LEE WOODS. These three Neville seniors are daughters of ladies who were school - mates a few years back, and hostesses for the party were old friends of their mothers, ELOISE ANSPACH, JANE ROWAN, BETTY HARRIS, and STELLA McSTRAWICK.

White Easter lilies in a footed white container decorated the entrance hall of the Anspach home on Bon Aire drive, where Eloise greeted arriving guests. The honorees, all wearing pink carnation corsages, received with their mothers in the living room. Magnolias were the flowers here, and a large arrangement of [illegible] sweetpeas was placed in the den.

In the dining room, with its white wicker furniture, Queen Anne's lace and gardenias provided the perfect touch in the centerpiece. JANE SHERROUSE and FRANCES GUTHRIE served pink punch. Tea girls were CAROLYN ANSPACH and CAROLYN THOMPSON. All Neville senior girls were invited to attend.

On Thursday morning, the JAY WILSONS and the BURT SPERRYS entertained honoring COURTLAND GRAY and JAN ADCOCK. Swimming, shuffleboard and badminton filled the morning, with lunch served at noon at poolside and on the patio. On the menu were spaghetti casserole, watermelon salad, soft drinks, and bottled ice cream sundaes for dessert. Fifty young people attended.

Clever invitations lettered on maps were mailed to seniors, heralding last night's party honoring LEA THOMPSON. The maps showed the route to the plantation home of the HOLLIS VENABLES, JR., near Start, where the party was held. Co-hosts were the HAROLD MOCKS, JR., and the C. E. McKENZIES, JR. Barbecue supper was served to about twenty-two guests.

One of Neville's seniors is off the day after graduation for a trip to Europe. LYNN MARX and her grandmother, HILDA ZAVELO, leave here this coming Wednesday morning and sail from New York May 26 on the Statendam. They will visit London, Holland, West Germany, Switzerland, Italy, the French Riviera, and return to New York July 5.

Most unusual party attire of the week was seen at BEV ERNST's Thursday morning. She and BICKY PORTER called a group of intimates at eight o'clock and invited them for "come as you are" breakfast at nine-thirty. There were dusters, shorts, pedal pushers — and some heads of hair in curlers.

Centering the buffet table was a fresh pineapple half filled with fruit and bedded in ice ... On the menu were fruit cup, fresh pineapple and strawberries; eggs scrambled with mushrooms; sausage and bacon; biscuits and home made cinnamon cake; and coffee. There were fifteen guests.

It was a gay, gay party Sunday afternoon at the DARRELL BRISBINS. For Mother's Day, Rosemary invited five couples and children of assorted sizes for homemade ice cream and cake on the patio. The fifteen children ranged in age from five weeks to sixteen years. Present were the RANDOLPH BROWNS, JIM WILLIAMS, BOB CLAYS, and TOMMY HOLMES.

And speaking of the Holmes, they had house guests this week. Ann's mother, MRS. W. F. MILBURN of Atlanta, and her sister, MRS. W. E. BRUNSBY of Marietta, Ga., were here, left Thursday. Wednesday afternoon, Ann invited eight guests to meet the visitors. She served her delightful buttermilk cake, with bottled soft drinks bedded in ice and gardenias.

In honor of her mother, MRS. JAMES NELSON of Rhodessa, VIRGINIA WARNER invited two extra tables and turned her bridge club into a bridge luncheon. She served a salad plate, with spiced chocolate cake for dessert. BETTY B. JACKSON won high score, and MARY ALICE LOFLIN, travelling prize.

On Tuesday, CHARLOTTIE DENT named MRS. NELSON honor guest at a small home luncheon. Gardenias, blue gladoli, and grapes formed the centerpiece. Five guests enjoyed the tri - salad plate, with frozen strawberry cake for dessert.

Tuesday evening, the STAN BAGWELLS entertained with an informal patio supper. Individual tables for eight were covered with checked tablecloths and centered with hurricane lamps and gardenias. Pat served barbecue ribs, grits au gratin, French bread, salad, and cake.

"County Fair" will be the theme of Bayou DeSiard country club's swimming pool opening, scheduled for this coming Saturday night, beginning at six. GEORGIE TOUCHSTONE is chairman of the party, which is planned for all ages. There are to be popcorn and cotton candy for the children, a style show of informal attire modeled by club young people, and a trampoline and diving exhibition.

Today's poem is by our own May Smith White, entitled "Old Scenes":

I used to think the well was far away,
It seemed so distant from the kitchen door,
But that was when the time from May to May
Was endless as the road that hemmed the shore.
I thought I knew each inch of this hill and
And what grew here and what grew there, but no;
The scene is like a dream in which I stand
With nothing where I left it long ago.
Yet I shall come again, and yet again
In search of that which memories release,
The moss upon the roof, the slanting rain,
And something from the past that patterns peace.
Old scenes may shrink as years slip in between,
But here among the hills I am serene.

Girl Scout News

Congratulations to the nine girls of Troop 44 who attained Curved Bar rank, the highest in Intermediate Scouting, at the court of awards last week. Mrs. Louis A. Breard, Jr., troop leader, presented the pins to Bonnie Baldo, Linda Breard, Ann Brinson, Susan Ellington, Gretchen Haas, Salley Hover, Loretta Jones, Louise Starsney and Virginia Starsney.

Curved Bar rank requires about a year of work after the First Class Rank is reached. The girl specializes further in her chosen field, gives service and does requirements. The girls of Troop 44, veterans of much day and troop camping, earned Curved Bar in the Out - of - Doors field.

As for First Class Scouts, there was a stage full! Receiving this high rank were girls from Troops 8, 32, 33, 34, 60, most of them in their third year of Intermediate Scouting. It was a memorable occasion for all the girls, but especially for Susan DeMasterson, who was celebrating her 13th birthday on the day she became a First Class Scout.

Leaders also presented Second Class Rank and Proficiency badges in many fields to Intermediate Scouts who had earned them through troop activity and individual effort. Emily Seegers, Troop 7, who last week "flew up" from Brownie Scouting, represented the Brownies and told of looking forward to the Intermediate program.

Presiding over the Court - of - Awards, graciously introducing troops and leaders, were Senior Scouts of Troop 1. Mrs. H. A. Edwards and Mrs. William Gannaway presented Five Point pins to the sixteen girls of the troop, who then concluded the program by singing the "World Song."

Kitty Vaughan, Maureen Halpin, Teresa Langley, Linda Mantrozos, Paula Choitz, Judy Johnson, Stephanie Davis, of Troops 33 and 60 participated in the flag ceremony which opened the meeting. Attractive displays were set up by Troops 15, 26, and 35.

First year Intermediates of Troop 46 missed the Court-of-awards because they were spending the night at Pine Wood, accompanied by Mrs. Paul Banks and Mrs. N. L. Huckabee. Those participating were Lynn Banks, Candace Ann Cain, Jan Claridge, Linda Dixon, Linda Greene, True Guerriero, Emma Humble, Eveline Jones, Mary Kokinos, Linda Law, Nancy Leigh, Betty Jean Lovelady, Diane Michel, Susan Willey, Niki Williams, Zell Williams.

This troop completed Second Class rank during the year, under the leadership of Mrs. C. W. Cain, Mrs. Herbert Mayo, and Mrs. Banks.

Fly - up ceremonies, camping, end - of - school affairs are now underway. Friday of this week is the last day to register for swimming classes.

Girl Scout News

Congratulations to the nine girls of Troop 44 who attained Curved Bar rank, the highest in Intermediate Scouting, at the court of awards last week. Mrs. Louis A. Breard, Jr., troop leader, presented the pins to Bonnie Baldo, Linda Breard, Ann Brinson, Susan Ellington, Gretchen Haas, Salley Hover, Loretta Jones, Louise Starsney and Virginia Starsney.

Curved Bar rank requires about a year of work after the First Class Rank is reached. The girl specializes further in her chosen field, gives service and does requirements. The girls of Troop 44, veterans of much day and troop camping, earned Curved Bar in the Out-of-Doors field.

As for First Class Scouts, there was a stage full! Receiving this high rank were girls from Troops 8, 32, 33, 34, 60, most of them in their third year of Intermediate Scouting. It was a memorable occasion for all the girls, but especially for Susan DeMasterson, who was celebrating her 13th birthday on the day she became a First Class Scout.

Leaders also presented Second Class Rank and Proficiency badges in many fields to Intermediate Scouts who had earned them through troop activity and individual effort. Emily Seegers, Troop 7, who last week "flew up" from Brownie Scouting, represented the Brownies and told of looking forward to the Intermediate program.

Presiding over the Court-of-Awards, graciously introducing troops and leaders, were Senior Scouts of Troop 1. Mrs. H. A. Edwards and Mrs. William Gannaway presented Five Point pins to the sixteen girls of the troop, who then concluded the program by singing the "World Song."

Kitty Vaughan, Maureen Halpin, Teresa Langley, Linda Mantrozos, Paula Choitz, Judy Johnson, Stephanie Davis, of Troops 33 and 60 participated in the flag ceremony which opened the meeting. Attractive displays were set up by Troops 15, 26, and 35.

First year Intermediates of Troop 46 missed the Court-of-awards because they were spending the night at Pine Wood, accompanied by Mrs. Paul Banks and Mrs. N. L. Huckabee. Those participating were Lynn Banks, Candace Ann Cain, Jan Claridge, Linda Dixon, Linda Greene, True Guerriero, Emma Humble, Eveline Jones, Mary Kokinos, Linda Law, Nancy Leigh, Betty Jean Lovelady, Diane Michel, Susan Willey, Niki Williams, Zell Williams.

This troop completed Second Class rank during the year, under the leadership of Mrs. C. W. Cain, Mrs. Herbert Mayo, and Mrs. Banks.

Fly-up ceremonies, camping, end-of-school affairs are now underway. Friday of this week is the last day to register for swimming [illegible]

Panel Reviews Child Welfare

"Are We Rushing Children Into the Social Whirl?," was topic for the Sherrouse Parent - Teacher Association Study - Discussion group when it met Wednesday morning, at Sherrouse school.

A panel composed of three parents, Mrs. J. P. Greene, Mrs. W. S. Gannaway and Mrs. Ralph George, reviewed the opinions of experts in the field of child welfare and development. The opinions offered insight into the reasons for acceleration of children's social life by parents and the possible results.

It was pointed out that readiness is important in girl - boy relationships, and forcing them to assume a social role prematurely seemed to the experts to be useless, unwise and probably harmful.

New Look Is Of Subtle Ease

Watch for a profound change in women's clothing fashions as the "New Look" is subtle enough to be accepted without any hesitation.

The sum of lithe slenderness, mobile cut, easy shaping, elongated bodice, bared throat, bared arms, and a "small" but decorative head with individualized hair styling with forward hats, will comprise the "No. 1 Silhouette" in fashions.

Slash Fat

To prevent steaks, chops and ham slices from cupping in the broiler, slash the outside fat at one-inch intervals.

'Cimarron' Was Vast Undertaking

Hollywood's filming of Edna Ferber's epic story, "Cimarron," now showing at the Jim Theatre has brought to vivid recollection one of the most incredible events of American history. This was the first great land rush opening a wild Indian country, now known as Oklahoma, to thousands of landhungry settlers.

The event, re-enacted with authenticity in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer motion picture, with Glenn Ford and Maria Schell heading an all-star cast, was a spectacular episode unprecedented in the annals of the land settlement anywhere in the world.

CULMINATING

Culminating years of legislation, 11,000 quarter sections of 160 acres each were thrown open to homesteaders in an area known as the Unassigned Lands in the heart of what was the original Oklahoma, a word meaning "red people" in Choctaw Indian language.

Settlers came to the designated starting line in covered wagons, buggies, delivery carts and fancy surreys. Some rode race horses which they had brought from afar to enhance their chances. Others were on cow ponies, mules, even bicycles. Many were on foot.

More than a few sneaked across the starting line at night ahead of the starting gun to reach choice lands sooner. Thus was inspired Oklahomas nickname as the "Sooner" State.

The land rush itself was followed by an unbelievable growth leading to organization of the area as the Oklahoma Territory eleven months later and to statehood in 1907. Wherever the settlers congregated, tent villages sprouted overnight on the barren prairie. Quickly these mushroomed into wild frontier towns.

NOT ENDED

Nor did the flamboyant nature of the era end there. Discovery of oil brought wealth and power beyond the settlers boldest dreams. Wooden towns suddenly were transformed into brick cities and just as quickly into modern metropolises.

Miss Ferber dramatically utilized the entire era, covering a span of 40 years, as the background for her love story of Yancey and Sabra Cravet. So does MGM in its new motion picture, with Glenn Ford playing the adventurous Yancey and Swiss star Maria Schell as his city-raised bride who braves the new wilderness with him.

ACTUAL SCENE from "Mein Kampf," of Hitler reviewing his troops before the invasion of Poland and the remainder of Europe. The story of Hitler and Eichmann opens today at the Paramount Theatre.

'Mein Kampf' Opens Today At Paramount

"Mein Kampf" opens today at the Paramount Theatre. Today and tomorrow and for generations to come, that picture should be seen, studied and discussed; it is timely and important, and it is a masterpiece of movie making.

"Mein Kampf" is the terrifying story of the rise and ruin of Hitler's Reich, and of that time of blood and tears that he and his followers introduced to Europe and the world. A Columbia picture, "Mein Kampf," as written and edited by Erwin Leiser, attempts to explain both what happened and why it happened. In greater measure than has ever been done before on the screen, Mr. Leiser succeeds.

SUCCEEDS

He succeeds because he has brilliantly fitted to his basic approach both films and still photos never before shown publicly, pictures kept in Goebbels' secret archives because they were considered too horrifying even for the acquiescent Germans themselves, pictures from the Soviet Union, from Poland, Great Britain and the United States. Coupled with these frightful images of what happened is a brilliantly-written commentary explaining why it happened. And, fitted into both the screen drama and the moving sound track are the speeches — excerpts from the public appearances of Hitler, Goering, Goebbels, Hess and others responsible for the murderous holocaust of "Mein Kampf."

TRACES HISTORY

Leiser traces his history of the Hitler regime back through the first World War and its revolutionary consequences, in both Germany and the Soviet Union, and back even further to Hitler's childhood and the events which shaped his youth. The manner in which Hitler climbed to power is depicted, and from that moment on, the years of increasing horror and hate. And, within the broad canvas of world history, Leiser still finds it possible to concentrate on individuals: not alone the exultant Nazis in their early years, but also on their victims, the men and women and children starved and beaten and killed, the soldiers and guerillas who fought back.

As a motion picture and as history, "Mein Kampf" will never be forgotten.

Bolger Turns Meance For First Time

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Dancer comedian Ray Bolger turns meanie for the first time in his long career playing "Barnaby" the villain who goes skulking around trying to steal a young lady's inheritence.

"Everybody says you should act yourself if you want to get anywhere in this business," said Ray when talking about the heavy part for "Babes in Toyland."

Then, with a self indicting chuckle, he added, "This is the first time I've ever had an opportunity to play myself."

Bolger looked like the slick, mustachoed stereotype of an old time gigolo as he lunched in the Walt Disney studio commissary wearing "Barnaby's" makeup. Ray's sideburns resembled curly bangs on the forehead of a teenaged girl.

But, all that is "Barnaby" an irascible sort of a fellow who slithers, almost snakelike, around the picture's fairyland set.

Ray has danced across many screens and stages, but this is the first time he's played a villain.

"You can dance villainously by being suave," he said, explaining how a hoofer plays the bad guy. "It's a lot of fun playing a villain. You can really let out the stops from a dramatic standpoint.

"There are so many physical movements you can make, slinking around. And, he's a caricature."

Ray was a nervous scarecrow years ago in "Wizard of Oz" and millions of movie fans, young and old, felt a kind of friendship for him in the role.

Does Ray think he'll scare the youngsters in this later generation with the portrayal of "Barnaby?"

"I think people will laugh at the character," he said. "I don't think this part will frighten them like the witch in 'Wizard of Oz.' How can you frighten the kids, with the stuff that's on TV now?

Sinatra Viewed As Philantropist

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Frank Sinatra, Hollywood's most unpredictable philanthropist, has done it again.

When Marymount College outgrew its Sunset Boulevard campus, the girls college moved to a new campus—at great expense—near suburban Palos Verdes Estates.

Out of the blue came a check for $100,000 from Sinatra. Sinatra's daughter, now Mrs. Tommy Sands, never went to the school and the nuns never dreamed that the thin singer knew the school existed.

CONDITION

Only condition with the check was a no publicity clause. It was adhered to for months but a non-religious source at the school—no official word yet from Sinatra—told me about it.

It all fits into a strange charitable pattern of Sinatra's, so complex that even his closest friends can't figure him.

One close aide reveals that Sinatra, who could use some good publicity, doesn't want his good deeds publicized.

"He's afraid someone will find out he's soft-hearted," the aide says and adds: "Once Frank read in the paper about a sailor en route home to his family on leave who got rolled of all his pay in Oakland. I had to hop on a plane, fly to Oakland, trace that sailor and put $500 in his hand—and not tell him where it came from."

Once actor Lee J. Cobb, during a financial slump in his career, got seriously ill in a southern town where he knew no one. Soon the best specialists visited him, flowers came to his hospital room daily, plus a daily long distance call from Sinatra.

Sinatra picked up all the medical bills—and then some.

"It was the greatest kindness I ever received in my life," Cobb recalls, "from a man I barely knew at the time."

'Cimarron' Was Vast Undertaking

Hollywood's filming of Edna Ferber's epic story, "Cimarron," now showing at the Jim Theatre has brought to vivid recollection one of the most incredible events of American history. This was the first great land rush opening a wild Indian country, now known as Oklahoma, to thousands of landhungry settlers.

The event, re-enacted with authenticity in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer motion picture, with Glenn Ford and Maria Schell heading an all-star cast, was a spectacular episode unprecedented in the annals of the land settlement anywhere in the world.

CULMINATING

Culminating years of legislation, 11,000 quarter sections of 160 acres each were thrown open to homesteaders in an area known as the Unassigned Lands in the heart of what was the original Oklahoma, a word meaning "red people" in Choctaw Indian language.

Settlers came to the designated starting line in covered wagons, buggies, delivery carts and fancy surreys. Some rode race horses which they had brought from afar to enhance their chances. Others were on cow ponies, mules, even bicycles. Many were on foot.

More than a few sneaked across the starting line at night ahead of the starting gun to reach choice lands sooner. Thus was inspired Oklahomas nickname as the "Sooner" State.

The land rush itself was followed by an unbelievable growth leading to organization of the area as the Oklahoma Territory eleven months later and to statehood in 1907. Wherever the settlers congregated, tent villages sprouted overnight on the barren prairie. Quickly these mushroomed into wild frontier towns.

NOT ENDED

Nor did the flamboyant nature of the era end there. Discovery of oil brought wealth and power beyond the settlers boldest dreams. Wooden towns suddenly were transformed into brick cities and just as quickly into modern metropolises.

Miss Ferber dramatically utilized the entire era, covering a span of 40 years, as the background for her love story of Yancey and Sabra Cravet. Special Camp Schedule For Churches Set

Dr. Bentley Sloane, executive secretary of the Board of Education of The Methodist Church, has announced the 1961 summer schedule of camps and conferences for Methodists in the Louisiana area.

Assisting in the planning have been Dr. Ben Oliphint of Monroe, conference director of camping, and Miss Shiela Nuttall of Shreveport, conference director of children's work.

There are 35 camps planned which will involve some 3,000 campers and 450 staff members throughout the state. Camp sites are located at Caney Lake near Minden, Camp Chemin - A - Haut near Monroe, Camp Brewer near Alexandria, and Camp Istrouma near Greenwell Springs.

NATURAL SETTING

Methodist summer camps provide a natural setting for the experiences of awe, wonder, worship, beauty ,understanding and Christian living. The small cabin groups, living together in a climate of goodwill and friendship, make maximum use of the camp sites.

Camps are limited in enrollment, and an early maximum enrollment is expected. Those who wish to participate are urged to secure registration forms from their pastors and register as soon as possible.

LOCATION

Camp Chemin-A-Haut is the location for the Monroe District camps.

A Junior Camp for boys and girls is scheduled for June 26 - 30, with Rev. Forest Blount, pastor of the St. Mark Methodist Church in Monroe, as the director.

The Junior High Camp date is June 19-24, and the director is Rev. William V. Sirman, pastor of the Delhi Methodist Church.

A Tri-District Senior High Institute for the Shreveport, Ruston, and Monroe Districts will be held June 5-10, at Caney Lake Camp near Minden. Rev. Harold McClung, pastor of the Barksdale Methodist Church in Bossier City, is the director.

Former Monroe Pastor Assumes Post In Virginia

Rev. Carnie Roy Burchman, formerly of Monroe, recently assumed the pastorate of the Lakeside Christian Church in Richmond, Virginia. He resigned the pastorate of St. Johns Christian Church in Monroe on July 25, 1960.

Rev. Burcham was president of the Monroe Ministerial Association from January 1, 1960 through January 1, 1961. He was a member of the Board of Directors of the YMCA-YWCA, of Louisiana State University and since 1954 has served as a member of the governor's committee on institutional chaplains for the state.

During his 15 years of ministery in Louisiana Christian churches he has served in Shreveport, Baton Rouge, New Orleans, Crowley, and Monroe. He is a native of Virginia and received his professional training in Lynchburg College, Lynchburg, Virginia, and Vanderbilt University Graduate School in Nashville, Tenn.

Rev. Burchman's wife and three children will join him in Richmond in June. At present they are making their home at 205 K street.

Priest Observes Silver Jubilee Of Ordination

Today the church is observing the Feast of Pentecost.

Church Moves To New Building

The Rev. N. T. Spence, pastor, said regular services would be held at the new location.

Church Holds Observance Of Holiday

At sundown last evening Congregation B'Nai Israel of Monroe, ushered in the Festival of Shavuos or Weeks.

This holiday marks the anniversary of the giving of the Law to the Israelites before Mount Sinai.

As part of the observance of this festival the Ten Commandments are always read from the Torah Scroll in Hebrew. This is also the holiday at which time those youngsters who have completed the course of study in the Temples' Religious School are confirmed in their faith.

IN CLASS

This year's Confirmation Class includes: Mark Glazer, Jill Marx and Lynn Masur of Monroe, Phillip Marrus of Jonesboro, and Robert Schendle of Bastrop.

Observance of Shavuos began with a Worship Service at Temple B'Nai Israel Saturday evening at 8:00. At this service the confirmands were blessed by Rabbi Martin I. Silverman, spiritual leader of the congregation. The confirmation exercises themselves will be held at the Temple this afternoon at 4:00.

Immediately following the services there will be a reception for the families and friends of the confirmands in the Herman Masur Hall of the Temple, given by the parents of the youngsters: Mr. and Mrs. Meyer Glazer, Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Marrus, Mr. and Mrs. I. S. Marx, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Masur Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Joe Schendle.

Special Camp Schedule For Churches Set

Dr. Bentley Sloane, executive secretary of the Board of Education of The Methodist Church, has announced the 1961 summer schedule of camps and conferences for Methodists in the Louisiana area.

Assisting in the planning have been Dr. Ben Oliphint of Monroe, conference director of camping, and Miss Shiela Nuttall of Shreveport, conference director of children's work.

There are 35 camps planned which will involve some 3,000 campers and 450 staff members throughout the state. Camp sites are located at Caney Lake near Minden, Camp Chemin - A - Haut near Monroe, Camp Brewer near Alexandria, and Camp Istrouma near Greenwell Springs.

NATURAL SETTING

Methodist summer camps provide a natural setting for the experiences of awe, wonder, worship, beauty ,understanding and Christian living. The small cabin groups, living together in a climate of goodwill and friendship, make maximum use of the camp sites.

Camps are limited in enrollment, and an early maximum enrollment is expected. Those who wish to participate are urged to secure registration forms from their pastors and register as soon as possible.

LOCATION

Camp Chemin-A-Haut is the location for the Monroe District camps.

A Junior Camp for boys and girls is scheduled for June 26 - 30, with Rev. Forest Blount, pastor of the St. Mark Methodist Church in Monroe, as the director.

The Junior High Camp date is June 19-24, and the director is Rev. William V. Sirman, pastor of the Delhi Methodist Church.

A Tri-District Senior High Institute for the Shreveport, Ruston, and Monroe Districts will be held June 5-10, at Caney Lake Camp near Minden. Rev. Harold McClung, pastor of the Barksdale Methodist Church in Bossier City, is the director.

Former Monroe Pastor Assumes Post In Virginia

Rev. Carnie Roy Burchman, formerly of Monroe, recently assumed the pastorate of the Lakeside Christian Church in Richmond, Virginia. He resigned the pastorate of St. Johns Christian Church in Monroe on July 25, 1960.

Rev. Burcham was president of the Monroe Ministerial Association from January 1, 1960 through January 1, 1961. He was a member of the Board of Directors of the YMCA-YWCA, of Louisiana State University and since 1954 has served as a member of the governor's committee on institutional chaplains for the state.

During his 15 years of ministery in Louisiana Christian churches he has served in Shreveport, Baton Rouge, New Orleans, Crowley, and Monroe. He is a native of Virginia and received his professional training in Lynchburg College, Lynchburg, Virginia, and Vanderbilt University Graduate School in Nashville, Tenn.

Rev. Burchman's wife and three children will join him in Richmond in June. At present they are making their home at 206 K street.

Large Poppy Is Beautiful

By MILDRED SWIFT

So many garden clubs in the fifth district have brought in gorgeous poppies, the kind we call the opium. You remember seed of this flower were taken off the market several years ago, so it is necessary to save your own seed from year to year. It is a beautiful specimen, very large and shaggy, in colors of red, pink or white.

GARDEN JOBS

Marigolds and zinnias are popular for summer blooming annuals. Both are equally good for cutting. Zinnias seed often germinate in three or four days in warm, damp weather. When there's little blooming in the garden in summer we depend on these two annuals for cut flowers.

If you put out chrysanthemums, keep tops pinched back through June to make plants bushier.

Watch pot plants. If the roots are pot bound it's time to transplant.

Daylilies are blooming and this is a good time to select varieties.

When you cut your Easter lilies, pinch out the anthers (end of stamen) because they deposit pollen that causes the flower to deteriorate faster.

If you want a carpet of color, plant some portulaca (moss rose) seed. The plants will rese and come back year after year. The foliage is small and dainty. The plant grows only two or three inches high. Portulaca needs no watering during dry spells and makes a lovely ground cover. The flowers are yellow, red, blue, purple, often on the same plant. This plant dies in the winter.

PRUNE

Prune confederate jasmine after it blooms. Shear the plant, cutting off all long tendrils and stems close to the main vine. You'll notice the prettiest plants are those that have been kept under control by pruning. In some gardens a pattern is worked out with wire and the plant trained on that. That requires even more pruning and is more formal.

If rain is splashing dirt from your planter onto your house, spread a thin layer of coarse gravel over the top of the soil in the box.

When sprigging St. Augustine, wait on the fertilizing until the plants take root and start to grow. You'll burn the sprig before it gets established, if you feed at sprigging times.

Now, if you're putting out squares of sod you can sprinkle some 8-8-8 or nitrate of soda under each square and wet down well. This is different because the grass is rooted in the soil when you plant.

May is the month the Japanese iris are in bloom. They like lots of water at blooming season. They are gorgeous with their large, flat saucer - like blossoms and vivid colors. Divide and reset right after blooming. These plants also like a soil rich in compost and lots of moisture. They grow well on the edge of a pool. This iris has a sort of fleshy root instead of a rhizome. The foliage is long and slender and an asset to the garden.

Coleus is a pretty plant to take you through the summer. It does best in semi - shade and you can carry out most any color scheme with this plant. There are shades of red to light pink, green, green and white, and brown. Just visit the nurseries and see the gorgeous colors. When frost comes, break off some of the foliage, put in water in the house. It grows and brightens the home during winter months. Then in the spring you have plants again for the yard.

PRETTY PLANTING

Well, for five years I've been begging somebody to use the stripped junipers in their landscape plan. They've been used most attractively at the Twin City Shopping Center, right out at the front. You can see they used old plants that have become gnarled and have interesting color. They're quite modern in design. Also, there's an outstanding planting of a stripped juniper in the Clifford Strauss garden on Deborah Drive.

Note in the planting at the Twin City Shopping Center, the use of charcoal and marble chips with limestone. This is unpressed charcoal and will never disintegrate. When using the stone or gravel such as that is used on Louisville it is necessary to use 90 - pound heavy gauge felt underneath to keep the grass from coming through. A hole is cut in this to set the plants.

Note also at the Twin City planting the use of monkey grass as a ground cover. At the base of the steel pots festuca grass is used. This looks like a pin cushion. Santalina, a drouth loving plant, is also featured there. It's gray affords a color contrast.

The use of the dwarf and large yuccas here is very modern. In fact the entire planting is modern in design and very easy to keep.

SUMMER STYLES

A recent fashion magazine sums up the shapes we'll be wearing this summer. First is called the "skimmer" because it skims along the figure lightly, then spreads out at the hem. It may flare from the hips - or its skirt may be pleated. Sometimes this skirt even rushes out toward the hem in a burst of flounces. Some of the waistlines fall quite low on the torso.

A dress called the "shift" falls directly from the shoulder in a line. It can be unbelted, or loosely sashed - or tied and bloused.

The "princess" sidles in at the waist, then curves out again. Many of these are made extra wide of skirt by a pair of deep pleats.

The fourth new shape is the dress that spills over the waistline in a flutter of blousing, often with a skirt that's flared on the bias. Skirts for this kind of dress can be pleated instad of flared, small pleats, deep pleats, soft pleats, almost any kind.

The "fashion makers" say that any of these can add excitement to the four basic shapes: hair combed around a ribbon, a hair bow; a hairband of dazzly Roman stripes.

Women who like to wear shirtwaist dresses will have a field day when they see the new collections. The shirtwaist, a perennial American fashion favorite, is spotlighted in the new clothes. There are many sheer cottons and synthetics that need practically no wash day care. They have fine workmanship of perfectly matched stripes and plaids. French cuffs, dyed - to - match lace, and interesting buttons.

Many of the new model shirtwaist dresses feature comfortable step - in styling with skirts full or sheath, with sleeves cuffed, full or sun - bare. The sun bright pastels frequently are lavishly trimmed with lace or embordered appliques.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Hibiscus Gem From Tropics

By MARY JARDINE

Hibiscus, the magnificent flower of the tropics is one of the most widely grown, and the most often painted by artists.

The blooms run the gamut of exotic shadings. The range of colors primarily based on the spectrum units of orange, red and yellow includes pinkish whites, snow whites, various shades of pink, flaming red to dark scarlet, salmon, orange yellow, vari-colored and variagated.

Red and pink are the most common, and with the exception of a very few, are odorless. Back in the 1880's there were only a dozen varieties growing in Florida. Today there are more than 5,000 varieties officially registered and new ones appear each year.

VARIETIES

Varieties that do well in this area include, Coral Beauty, a coral pink; Lamberti, a deep dark red, Jigora, double orange; John Paul Jones a double red, Mary Morgan-Pink, and King Tonga, a single pink. Some are stronger growers than others, some like full sun, and some want part shade.

Your nursery man can advise you of each plant's preference. The season of brilliant hibiscus bounty begins in May and doesn't end until after cold weather has set in.

In this area the cold will kill the plants, so they must be used as summer annuals or be taken up in large containers and stored in a frost-free garage or utility room, if you don't have a green house.

The cost is so moderate, however, it is worth while having several, even if you cannot carry them over until another spring. There are also several varieties of hardy hibiscus available at nurseries and everyone is familiar with our native red hibiscus (coccineus). The flowers often eight inches across, are of a beautiful shade of red. The leaves too are distinctive, three to five-lobed, deeply cleft, the lobes deeply toothed. It grows to a height of eight feet.

The cotton of commerce belongs to the hibiscus family. It is reported that H. Rosa Sinensis, which grows to 30 feet, is used in China for making shoe black and hair dye.

of eucalyptus, so desirable for line material in flower arrangements.

In the arrangement section the first design was created by Mrs. W. D. Byrd Sr. A white rounded container set on a gold stand was selected by Mrs. Byrd for her vertical design. The pattern was set with foliage of native iris, with buds and blooms of Easter lilies skillfully placed, each facing a slightly different direction, forming the vertical line. This delightful arrangement would be suitable for a small entrance hall table, or book case, and very suitable for a church design.

SELECTED

Mrs. John Pahal selected the graceful Hogarth curve (lazy S line) for her design. The container was a large black urn placed on a black scroll base. The line was created with scotch broom, filler material was yellow snap dragon with masses of blug hydrangea in the foreground. Containing the line over the rim of the container was a cluster of bright blue baubles following the scotch broom to complete the line. The design was filled in at the back with purple statice. This was a most interesting color scheme, suitable for a large chest or living room table.

Mrs. Arville Cox designed an airy arrangement in a symetrical pattern. A small black vase was placed to the left on a pair of rectangular black bases. A very airy line was constructed with eucalyptus foliage and embellished with a miniature pink carnations. In the focal area were deeper toned pink dianthus. This was eminently suitable for a desk or a small side table.

A bamboo container set on a round gold base was selected by Mrs. George B. Franklin, Jr., for her vertical arrangement. The line was formed with placements of aspidistra leaves. The line was emphasized with warm, glowing colors of yellow and orange calendulas. Arum leaves were brought down the front of the container, strengthening the vertical line, making a lovely arrangement for a book case, or a narrow wall space.

House Hunt Checking List Is Provided

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Househunting?

Here's a handy checklist to help determine whether or not a house has a good floor plan and room layout.

A house that passes these basic tests, according to A. M. Watkins, author of "How To Judge A House," is likely to be of top design in other crucial areas, too.

—Is the family entrance, usually through the kitchen, properly located? It should be near the garage and driveway for speedy and easy grocery unloading and convenient in-and-out travel for the family at all times.

—Is the main entrance well planned? Guests enter here. It should be near the driveway and street, and it should have a foyer and coat closet—not open directly into living space.

GOOD CIRCULATION

—Is there good room-to-room circulation—the travel routes within the house? Can you go from any room to any other room, except dining room, without passing through a third room? Is there access from any entrance to any room without crossing a third room? The living room in particular should be free of cross-traffic.

—Is there a good indoor-outdoor relationship? Is it easy to reach the patio, terrace or outdoor play area from the house?

—Is the kitchen centrally located? From the kitchen a woman should have control over the entire house; be near the front door, be able to watch children playing outside, and be near dining and living rooms. The kitchen "should be a command post, not a foxhole," says Watkins.

In his guide, which gives tips on such things as getting sound construction and avoiding major causes of expensive upkeep, and provides a 120-point comprehensive check list for judging a house, Watkins stresses the importance of the kitchen.

GLOOMY

A kitchen may be loaded with new appliances and equipment, he notes, but it still can be highly uncomfortable or gloomy because of the wrong exposure.

Ideal exposure for kitchen and dining area generally is on the southeast side of a house. This will give you bright morning sunshine for breakfast all year around, coupled with a minimum of hot, late afternoon and early evening sunshine when you don't want it.

A south-facing kitchen gets less morning sun, especially in summer, but more afternoon sun. A kitchen facing north gets practically no morning sun except for a little in summer, and is exposed to cold winds in winter.

A kitchen located on the West or Southwest is worst of all. It gets the most sun heat in late afternoon which can make it insufferably hot in summer.

Sen. Blakley Sells Stock In Airways

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — Interim U.S. Sen. William Blakley and the Braniff Foundation have sold their interest in Braniff International Airways to four top executives of Texas Instruments for $13.2 million, it was disclosed Friday.

The [illegible] shares involved were held by what was known as the Blakley-Braniff Foundation. Blakley is running for a full term as U.S. senator, but politics was said not to be involved.

BIG PRODUCER

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (AP) — Ever wonder how much milk a cow produces?

The Holstein-Friesian Association of America has announced a production record by a 5-year-old Holstein in this western Pennsylvania area. The Holstein, owned by McChesney Brothers, produced 18,074 pounds of milk and 720 pounds of butter fat in 321 days. It was milked twice daily.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Floral Gems In The Shade

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Three of the smaller irises are real gems for shady places. If you want something choice for your partly shaded terrace or for woodsy semi - shaded walks through the wild part of the garden, you will not be able to find anything more delightful or easier to cultivate than the roof iris of the Orient and two of our native Southern members of the Iris Family.

The Oriental roof iris, so-called because the Japanese weave it into the thatch of their houses where it blooms as well as on the ground, is one of those excellent plants which gets shoved into limbo by the gaudier big new varieties of its kind.

It can be found thriving and making bigger and bigger patches in the gardens planted 30 years ago when it was something of a novelty. The fact that it has gone on growing like a weed under neglect proves that it is not hard to cultivate. The white form is still one of the finest white flowers in existence.

CLOSELY AKIN

Our little blue violent Iris cristata that grows wild in southern woods is very closely akin to the roof iris. Both of these belong to the crested irises which have no beard. Flowers of the roof iris are four or five inches across, but our tiny wild kind has flowers only three or four inches across.

The profusion of blooms of both of these shade loving species is amazing. Sometimes the blossoms will almost touch all the way across the patch. In the woods this year, your columist has been admiring. Indeed, I am still under the spell of great carpets of these blue gems 10 and 12 feet across. The odor of the tiny blossoms is something unique, and one of the most sought after plants in the world is the white form of iris cristata.

ANOTHER GEM

Our little wild spring iris, Iris verna, has the strong odor of violets. This is another gem of a plant. It comes in darker shades of violet than iris cristata and has a distinctive orange patch on its small flowers. It does not bloom as profusely, but it will stand up to more drought in your wild garden. The white form of this one is so rare as to be almost unobtainable.

All three of the irises mentioned above are exceptions to the rule that most irises need sun. Our threesome likes about half shade — they will not flower in dark shade — and they want a woodsy soil with decayed leaf mold and some bone meal in it.

Feed the patches of these plants each year by scattering some bone meal and a sprinkling of leaf mold over them. If you do not remove the leaves from over them, you may just sprinkle them with bone meal.

Catalogs of the perennial nurseries have the roof iris, and our Southern wild flower and plant dealers, mostly in the mountains, have the two native irises. These two irises are native to the lower parts of the country, too, however.

Repot Plants Before Shift Out-Of-Doors

By NEIL G. ODENWALD

LSU Horticulturist Specialist

After keeping foliage plants indoors for many months where conditions for growth might not be too favorable, it is a wise practice to move them outside during warm weather.

Repot the plants before moving them out - of - doors. They will suffer far less shock from transplanting now than in the fall when they are moved from the outside to the inside.

Use a good potting mixture — one part good garden loam soil, one part peat moss and one-half part sand. Select a pot size which will give ample room for natural root spread. Root-bound plants in small containers will not grow satisfactorily. The plants will become weak and very unattractive.

DRAINAGE

In the bottom of the container use broken crockery or gravel for drainage. Soils through which water does not move freely become stale and the roots of the plants will rot.

Place plants in areas well protected from direct sunlight and dry summer winds. Most house plants are tender and will show signs of burning if placed in direct exposures to sunlight and winds.

Large Poppy Is Beautiful

By MILDRED SWIFT

So many garden clubs in the fifth district have brought in gorgeous poppies, the kind we call the opium. You remember seed of this flower were taken off the market several years ago, so it is necessary to save your own seed from year to year. It is a beautiful specimen, very large and shaggy, in colors of red, pink or white.

GARDEN JOBS

Marigolds and zinnias are popular for summer blooming annuals. Both are equally good for cutting. Zinnias seed often germinate in three or four days in warm, damp weather. When there's little blooming in the garden in summer we depend on these two annuals for cut flowers.

If you put out chrysanthemums, keep tops pinched back through June to make plants bushier.

Watch pot plants. If the roots are pot bound it's time to transplant.

Daylilies are blooming and this is a good time to select varieties.

When you cut your Easter lilies, pinch out the anthers (end of stamen) because they deposit pollen that causes the flower to deteriorate faster.

If you want a carpet of color, plant some portulaca (moss rose) seed. The plants will reseed a come back year after year. The foliage is small and dainty. The plant grows only two or three inches high. Portulaca needs no watering during dry spells and makes a lovely ground cover. The flowers are yellow, red, blue, purple, often on the same plant. This plant dies in the winter.

PRUNE

Prune confederate jasmine after it blooms. Shear the plant, cutting off all long tendrils and stems close to the main vine. You'll notice the prettiest plants are those that have been kept under control by pruning. In some gardens a pattern is worked out with wire and the plant trained on that. That requires even more pruning and is more formal.

If rain is splashing dirt from your planter onto your house, spread a thin layer of coarse gravel over the top of the soil in the box.

When sprigging St. Augustine, wait on the fertilizing until the plants take root and start to grow. You'll burn the sprig before it gets established, if you feed at sprigging times.

Now, if you're putting out squares of sod you can sprinkle some 8-8-8 or nitrate of soda under each square and wet down well. This is different because the grass is rooted in the soil when you plant.

May is the month the Japanese iris are in bloom. They like lots of water at blooming season. They are gorgeous with their large, flat saucer - like blossoms and vivid colors. Divide and reset right after blooming. These plants also like a soil rich in compost and lots of moisture. They grow well on the edge of a pool. This iris has a sort of fleshy root instead of a rhizome. The foliage is long and slender and an asset to the garden.

Coleus is a pretty plant to take you through the summer. It does best in semi - shade and you can carry out most any color scheme with this plant. There are shades of red to light pink, green, green and white, and brown. Just visit the nurseries and see the gorgeous colors. When frost comes, break off some of the foliage, put in water in the house. It grows and brightens the home during winter months. Then in the spring you have plants again for the yard.

PRETTY PLANTING

Well, for five years I've been begging somebody to use the stripped junipers in their landscape plan. They've been used most attractively at the Twin City Shopping Center, right out at the front. You can see they used old plants that have become gnarled and have interesting color. They're quite modern in design. Also, there's an outstanding planting of a stripped juniper in the Clifford Strauss garden on Deborah Drive.

Note in the planting at the Twin City Shopping Center, the use of charcoal and marble chips with limestone. This is unpressed charcoal and will never disintegrate. When using the stone or gravel such as that is used on Louisville it is necessary to use 90 - pound heavy gauge felt underneath to keep the grass from coming through. A hole is cut in this to set the plants.

Note also at the Twin City planting the use of monkey grass as a ground cover. At the base of the steel pots festuca grass is used. This looks like a pin cushion. Santalina, a drouth loving plant, is also featured there. It's gray affords a color contrast.

The use of the dwarf and large yuccas here is very modern. In fact the entire planting is modern in design and very easy to keep.

SUMMER STYLES

A recent fashion magazine sums up the shapes we'll be wearing this summer. First is called the "skimmer" because it skims along the figure lightly, then spreads out at the hem. It may flare from the hips - or its skirt may be pleated. Sometimes this skirt even rushes out toward the hem in a burst of flounces. Some of the waistlines fall quite low on the torso.

A dress called the "shift" falls directly from the shoulder in a line. It can be unbelted, or loosely sashed - or tied and bloused.

The "princess" sidles in at the waist, then curves out again. Many of these are made extra wide of skirt by a pair of deep pleats.

The fourth new shape is the dress that spills over the waistline in a flutter of blousing, often with a skirt that's flared on the bias. Skirts for this kind of dress can be pleated instad of flared, small pleats, deep pleats, soft pleats, almost any kind.

The "fashion makers" say that any of these can add excitement to the four basic shapes: hair combed around a ribbon, a hair bow; a hairband of dazzly Roman stripes.

Women who like to wear shirtwaist dresses will have a field day when they see the new collections. The shirtwaist, a perennial American fashion favorite, is spotlighted in the new clothes. There are many sheer cottons and synthetics that need practically no wash day care. They have fine workmanship of perfectly matched stripes and plaids, French cuffs, dyed - to - match lace, and interesting buttons.

Many of the new model shirtwaist dresses feature comfortable step - in styling with skirts full or sheath, with sleeves cuffed, full or sun - bare. The sun bright pastels frequently are lavishly trimmed with lace or emboridered appliques.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

By MARY JARDINE

Hibiscus, the magnificent flower of the tropics is one of the most widely grown, and the most often painted by artists.

The blooms run the gamut of exotic shadings. The range of colors primarily based on the spectrum units of orange, red and yellow includes pinkish whites, snow whites, various shades of pink, flaming red to dark scarlet, salmon, orange yellow, varicolored and variagated.

Red and pink are the most common, and with the exception of a very few, are odorless. Back in the 1880's there were only a dozen varieties growing in Florida. Today there are more than 5,000 varieties officially registered and new ones appear each year.

VARIETIES

Varieties that do well in this area include, Coral Beauty, a coral pink; Lamberti, a deep dark red, Jigora, double orange; John Paul Jones a double red, Mary Morgan-Pink, and King Tonga, a single pink. Some are stronger growers than others, some like full sun, and some want part shade.

Your nursery man can advise you of each plant's preference. The season of brilliant hibiscus bounty begins in May and doesn't end until after cold weather has set in.

In this area the cold will kill the plants, so they must be used as summer annuals or be taken up in large containers and stored in a frost-free garage or utility room, if you don't have a green house.

The cost is so moderate, however, it is worth while having several, even if you cannot carry them over until another spring. There are also several varieties of hardy hibiscus available at nurseries and everyone is familiar with our native red hibiscus (coccineus). The flowers often eight inches across, are of a beautiful shade of red. The leaves too are distinctive, three to five-lobed, deeply cleft, the lobes deeply toothed. It grows to a height of eight feet.

The cotton of commerce belongs to the hibiscus family. It is reported that H. Rosa Sinensis, which grows to 30 feet, is used in China for making shoe black and hair dye.

RAYVILLE CLUB

Roses, at the peak of their perfection were on exhibit in the horticulture section of the Flower Show presented by Rayville Garden Club. Mrs. Pat H. Earle exhibited the lovely pink Queen Elizabeth, a grandiflora, which is a good grower and prolific bloomer for our area. Mrs. Earle also exhibited Chrysler Imperial, a fine red hybrid tea which also grows well for us here.

Mrs. George T. Cannon exhibited the beautiful deep red Mirandy, also a hybrid tea. Mrs. Roy L. Binion exhibited a spray of eucalyptus, so desirable for line material in flower arrangements.

In the arrangement section the first design was created by Mrs. W. D. Byrd Sr. A white rounded container set on a gold stand was selected by Mrs. Byrd for her vertical design. The pattern was set with foliage of native iris, with buds and blooms of Easter lilies skillfully placed, each facing a slightly different direction, forming the vertical line. This delightful arrangement would be suitable for a small entrance hall table, or book case, and very suitable for a church design.

SELECTED

Mrs. John Pahal selected the graceful Hogarth curve (lazy S line) for her design. The container was a large black urn placed on a black scroll base. The line was created with scotch broom, filler material was yellow snapdragon with masses of blug hydrangea in the foreground. Containuing the line over the rim of the container was a cluster of bright blue baubles following the scotch broom to complete the line. The design was filled in at the back with purple statice. This was a most interesting color scheme, suitable for a large chest or living room table.

Mrs. Arville Cox designed an airy arrangement in a symetrical pattern. A small black vase was placed to the left on a pair of rectangular black bases. A very airy line was constructed with eucalyptus foliage and embellished with a miniature pink carnations. In the focal area were deeper toned pink dianthus. This was eminently suitable for a desk or a small side table.

A bamboo container set on a round gold base was selected by Mrs. George B. Franklin, Jr., for her vertical arrangement. The line was formed with placements of aspidistra leaves. The line was emphasized with warm, glowing colors of yellow and orange calendulas. Arum leaves were brought down the front of the container, strengthening the vertical line, making a lovely arrangement for a book case, or a narrow wall space.

Garden Society Holds Workshop At Meeting Here

The West Monroe Garden Society held its monthly meeting last week at the home of Mrs. Raymond Potter on Oak Drive. Mrs. Potter and Mrs. James Kiper served as hostesses and after refreshments, the group participated in an outdoor workshop on the patio.

Attractive horizontal arrangements were created under the guidance of the society's instructor, Mrs. John P. Lewis. Members present included Mrs. Ralph W. Einhorn, Mrs. Jerome H. Johnson, Mrs. James P. Kiper, Mrs. Jack Noble, Mrs. Raymond D. Potter, and Mrs. A. W. Rachal Jr.

The society's next meeting will be held on June 21st, 9:30 a.m., in the First National Bank building. Members are to bring materials for another workshop session.

House Hunt Checking List Is Provided

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — Househunting?

Here's a handy checklist to help determine whether or not a house has a good floor plan and room layout.

A house that passes these basic tests, according to A. M. Watkins, author of "How To Judge A House," is likely to be of top design in other crucial areas, too.

—Is the family entrance, usually through the kitchen, properly located? It should be near the garage and driveway for speedy and easy grocery unloading and convenient in-and-out travel for the family at all times.

—Is the main entrance well planned? Guests enter here. It should be near the driveway and street, and it should have a foyer and coat closet—not open directly into living space.

GOOD CIRCULATION

—Is there good room-to-room circulation—the travel routes within the house? Can you go from any room to any other room, except dining room, without passing through a third room? Is there access from any entrance to any room without crossing a third room? The living room in particular should be free of cross-traffic.

—Is there a good indoor-outdoor relationship? Is it easy to reach the patio, terrace or outdoor play area from the house?

—Is the kitchen centrally located? From the kitchen a woman should have control over the entire house; be near the front door, be able to watch children playing outside, and be near dining and living rooms. The kitchen "should be a command post, not a foxhole," says Watkins.

In his guide, which gives tips on such things as getting sound construction and avoiding major causes of expensive upkeep, and provides a 120-point comprehensive check list for judging a house, Watkins stresses the importance of the kitchen.

GLOOMY

A kitchen may be loaded with new appliances and equipment, he notes, but it still can be highly uncomfortable or gloomy because of the wrong exposure.

Ideal exposure for kitchen and dining area generally is on the southeast side of a house. This will give you bright morning sunshine for breakfast all year around, coupled with a minimum of hot, late afternoon and early evening sunshine when you don't want it.

A south-facing kitchen gets less morning sun, especially in summer, but more afternoon sun. A kitchen facing north gets practically no morning sun except for a little in summer, and is exposed to cold winds in winter.

A kitchen located on the West or Southwest is worst of all. It gets the most sun heat in late afternoon which can make it insufferably hot in summer.

Sen. Blakley Sells Stock In Airways

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI) — Interim U.S. Sen. William Blakley and the Braniff Foundation have sold their interest in Braniff International Airways to four top executives of Texas Instruments for $13.2 million, it was disclosed Friday.

The 1,006,000 shares involved were held by what was known as the Blakley-Braniff Foundation. Blakley is running for a full term as U.S. senator, but politics was said not to be involved.

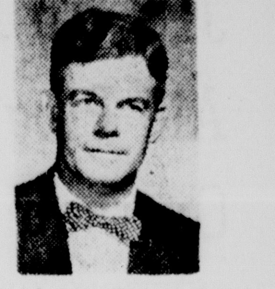
BIG PRODUCER

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (AP) — Ever wonder how much milk a cow produces?

The Holstein-Friesian Association of America has announced a production record by a 5-year-old Holstein in this western Pennsylvania area. The Holstein, owned by McChesney Brothers, produced 18,073 pounds of milk and 750 pounds of butter fat in 324 days. It was milked twice daily.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Floral Gems In The Shade



By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Three of the smaller irises are real gems for shady places. If you want something choice for your partly shaded terrace or for woodsy semi - shaded walks through the wild part of the garden, you will not be able to find anything more delightful or easier to cultivate than the roof iris of the Orient and two of our native Southern members of the Iris Family.

The Oriental roof iris, so-called because the Japanese weave it into the thatch of their houses where it blooms as well as on the ground, is one of those excellent plants which gets shoved into limbo by the gaudier big new varieties of its kind.

It can be found thriving and making bigger and bigger patches in the gardens planted 30 years ago when it was something of a novelty. The fact that it has gone on growing like a weed under neglect proves that it is not hard to cultivate. The white form is still one of the finest white flowers in existence.

CLOSELY AKIN

Our little blue violent Iris cristata that grows wild in southern woods is very closely akin to the roof iris. Both of these belong to the crested irises which have no beard. Flowers of the roof iris are four or five inches across, but our tiny wild kind has flowers only three or four inches across.

The profusion of blooms of both of these shade loving species is amazing. Sometimes the blossoms will almost touch all the way across the patch. In the woods this year, your columist has been admiring. Indeed, I am still under the spell of great carpets of these blue gems 10 and 12 feet across. The odor of the tiny blossoms is something unique, and one of the most sought after plants in the world is the white form of iris cristata.

ANOTHER GEM

Our little wild spring iris, Iris verna, has the strong odor of violets. This is another gem of a plant. It comes in darker shades of violet than iris cristata and has a distinctive orange patch on its small flowers. It does not bloom as profusely, but it will stand up to more drought in your wild garden. The white form of this one is so rare as to be almost unobtainable.

All three of the irises mentioned above are exceptions to the rule that most irises need sun. Our threesome likes about half shade — they will not flower in dark shade — and they want a woodsy soil with decayed leaf mold and some bone meal in it.

Feed the patches of these plants each year by scattering some bone meal and a sprinkling of leaf mold over them. If you do not remove the leaves from over them, you may just sprinkle them with bone meal.

Catalogs of the perennial nurseries have the roof iris, and our Southern wild flower and plant dealers, mostly in the mountains, have the two native irises. These two irises are native to the lower parts of the country, too, however.

Repot Plants Before Shift Out-Of-Doors

By NEIL G. ODENWALD
LSU Horticulturist Specialist

After keeping foliage plants indoors for many months where conditions for growth might not be too favorable, it is a wise practice to move them outside during warm weather.

Repot the plants before moving them out - of - doors. They will suffer far less shock from transplanting now than in the fall when they are moved from the outside to the inside.

Use a good potting mixture — one part good garden loam soil, one part peat moss and one-half part sand. Select a pot size which will give ample room for natural root spread. Root-bound plants in small containers will not grow satisfactorily. The plants will become weak and very unattractive.

DRAINAGE

In the bottom of the container use broken crockery or gravel for drainage. Soils through which water does not move freely become stale and the roots of the plants will rot.

Place plants in areas well protected from direct sunlight and dry summer winds. Most house plants are tender and will show signs of burning if placed in direct exposures to sunlight and winds.

JFK To Ask Aid Program Overhauling

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy will submit to Congress soon a drastically overhauled mutual assistance program aimed at giving single-package economic aid to countries which pledge social and fiscal reforms.

Disclosing this Saturday, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., said in an interview Kennedy plans to set up a new three-phase development assistance agency to deal with food, capital investment and human resource assistance.

The new agency would be headed by a director, with the rank of undersecretary of state. Presumably Henry R. Labouisse, who now directs the International Cooperation Administration would step into this job.

Humphrey said the new approach "is designed to eliminate the duplication and waste that have marked our assistance programs in the past. It is also designed to quit giving money to nations where the ruling hierarchy steals it. We are going to quit supporting corruption."

Under the forthcoming Kennedy proposal, Humphrey said each country would have a single economic aid program and a program director who would work with, but not under, the American ambassador.

Humphrey, the assistant Senate majority leader, has been working closely with executive officials in drafting the program. He said he believes that because it is aimed primarily at getting aid directly to the people it will receive a sympathetic hearing in Congress increasingly critical of programs as they have been administered in the past.

Humphrey said he had insisted that the program require certain commitments from the recipient countries. This reverses the previous policy of avoiding any U. S. intrusion into internal affairs of these countries.

"I am sure that Congress is going to insist on making our aid conditional on the pledge of the recipients that they will take steps to make social and fiscal reforms and see to it that the assistance gets down to the people themselves," Humphrey said.

As it now stands, he said the program will not be limited to allied countries but will make aid available to neutrals "and even to some countries that are insulting to us at times.

"The criterion is going to be; Is the aid going to be used in a way that helps the people?"

As the program has been drafted, the new agency would take over operation of the Development Loan Fund, all of the functions of the ICA, the food-for-peace project and the disposal of agricultural surpluses abroad.

Cash sales of surplus commodities to other nations would be left under the Department of Agriculture. The Export-Import Bank would operate independently of the new agency, but would be expected to coordinate its policies with it.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y. (AP)—A scale model of a proposed $800,000 municipal parking ramp garage was placed in the city hall lobby, with streets adjoining the tentative site included in the display. Cash sales of surplus commodities to other nations would be left under the Department of Agriculture. The Export-Import Bank would operate independently of the new agency, but would be expected to coordinate its policies with it.

MODEL MISTAKE

JAMESTOWN, N. Y. (AP)—A scale model of a proposed $800,000 municipal parking ramp garage was placed in the city hall lobby, with streets adjoining the tentative site included in the display. An alert citizen advised city officials that miniature cars shown entering the facility were driving the wrong way on a one-way street.

Jaycees Win Eight State Award Spots

The Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce won eight state awards for projects and activities during the past year, according to local President Jimmy Terry. The chapter also won fifth place in the "Parade of Cities" and was the only chapter in its division (over 50,000 population) to place.

Records and recognition chairman Craig Campbell said the local Jaycees won two first place awards, five second place awards, and one third place in the statewide competition.

The chapter won first place in the youth and sports category, and first place in public affairs. The local Jaycees have been active in youth and sports work for several years and sponsor annually from 10 to 15 such projects. The range of activity extends from Junior golf to junior champ (stometimes called Junior Olympics) and to the Jaycee youth camp on the Ouachita River, which operated last summer for 6 full weeks.

Sports include All Twin-City football, All Twin-city baseball, outstanding athlete, open tennis, softball, bowling and others.

"Many of our members devote an unselfish amount of their time to the youth of our community," according to Terry. "Because of their efforts, the local chapter is usually a state Junior Chamber leader in the field of youth and sports."

In the field of public affairs, the local Jaycees won a second place national award last year and this year won a first place state award. Added to the public affairs portfolio this year was a project called the "good government committees." These committees attended meetings of the City Council, the Police Jury and the School Board.

They also brought to the attention of the membership such things as local bond issues, bills coming up in Congress and the state legislature and sometimes had recommendations for action to be taken by the general membership. The group also invited state legislators and others to speak at general membership meetings to keep the members better informed.

The Monroe Jaycees won second place awards for religious and Christmas activities (which included the Christmas shopping tour for needy children), internal affairs, inter - club relations, ways and means and for project of the Year, which was the good government committees. The chapter received one third place award for its health and safety work.

"A great deal of credit for this year's awards goes to Craig Campbell, who in his first year as records and recognition chairman did a very creditable job," Terry stated. "He was ably assisted by Pete Dowd, John Birdsong, Jr., Ken Wagley, Jim Moore and several others."

Individual honors went to Peter Dowd, who became the fifth man in the more than 20 year history of the Louisiana Junior Chamber of Commerce to receive a lifetime membership, and to Ken Wagley, who won third place runner-up as the outstanding first year Jaycee in Louisiana.

Graduate Program Set For Summer Semester

The graduate program at Northeast Louisiana State College will be put into operation at the beginning of the summer session with registration June 5, Dr. Clint Hanna, dean of instruction, announced yesterday. The session will end August 10.

The college's plan for study leading to a master's degree for professional school personnel was approved by the State Board of Education at its meeting Friday in Baton Rouge.

Application forms for admission to the graduate program will be available Monday. The forms and schedules of classes may be obtained from the registrar's office.

NEED TRANSCRIPTS

In addition to admission forms, persons wishing to enrell for graduate work must furnish complete, official transcripts of credit from all colleges attended, Hanna said.

Degrees offered under the new program will be the master of arts in education, the master of science in education, the master of education, and the master of music education.

The master of arts in education will be granted in English, social science, and speech; the master of science in education in biology, business, chemistry, health and physical education, mathematics, and physics; the master of education in biology, business, chemistry, education, English, health and physical education, mathematics, physics, social science, and speech; and the master of music education in music.

Northeast officials expressed appreciation to the legislature and to the State Board of Education for making the Northeast State graduate program possible. Special recognition was given to Col. George T. Madison and Joe D. Waggoner Jr., members of the board from the Fifth Congressional District and the Third Public Service District, respectively, and the three Monroe legislators, Senator Jamar Adcock and Reps. Lawrence Gibbs and Mike John Jr.

Inquiries concerning study at the college should be directed to the dean of instruction of Dr. Lake C. Oxford, registrar.

U.S. Charged With 'Selling Out' Africa

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (UPI)—Federal Premier Sir Roy Welensky said Saturday Americans were duped, defeated and despised throughout Africa.

In a bitter speech charging Britain and the United States were selling out Africa to Communism, Welensky also made an apparent reference to U.S. Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs, G. Mennen Williams. The reference was critical.

Welensky, a former railway engineer who rose to become a British knight and prime minister of the Central African Federation, recently announced his staunch opposition to British plans for a Rhodesian constitution giving greater voting and legislative rights to the colony's Africans.

Welensky's speech, to a banquet of mining and metallurgical officials, was rated one of the most bitter anti - Western declarations ever made by an African head of state—black or white.

The Rhodesian prime minister did not mention Williams by name. But the reference appeared clear when he castigated "people who wander round this continent, shaking the hands of everyone they meet and inducing them to pose for pictures with their arms around their shoulders." Africans were not taken in by this sort of thing, he said.

Williams, on his recent African tour, drew angry reaction from Salisbury when he was quoted as he believed "Africa is for the Africans."

"I am dismayed that such experienced and sophisticated countries can be so consistently wrong in their choice of people and ideologies to back."

Time and again, he said, Britain and the United States "are duped and defeated. But time and again they come up for more and persist in their error and ill judgment."

David Nelson Weds Actress

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor David Nelson married actress-model June Blair Saturday with his brother Ricky as best man.

The couple met when Miss Blair, 20, portrayed David's girl friend in an episode of the weekly television show that also stars the boys' parents, Ozzie and Harriet Nelson. David is 24.

About 120 guests attended the ceremony in Forest Lawn Memorial Park's Church of the Hills at suburban Burbank. Dr. S. A. Candow, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Master, West Los Angeles, officiated.

Navy Secretary Says Merchant Fleet Obsolette

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Secretary of the Navy John B. Connally Saturday night painted a gloomy picture of the nation's merchant marine.

"Our merchant fleet is rapidly approaching block obsolescence," Connally told a National Maritime Day banquet. "That is, 77 per cent of our deep sea dry cargo ships were built nearly 20 years ago, during World War II.

"The subsidized replacement program is not proceeding fast enough to prevent this obsolescence. There is no plan at all for replacement of over-aged vessel on order for the non-subsizieed segment of the merchant fleet."

In contrast, Connally said the Soviet merchant fleet "is young, vigorous and growing rapidly."

He said that on Jan. 1, 1960, the Soviet merchant fleet had 19.5 per cent more capacity than a year earlier. Last Jan. 1, he said, more than 180 ships were under construction for the Soviet merchant fleets.

Decker Warns Soviet Union On Aggression

BERLIN (UPI) — U. S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. George H. Decker marked Armed Forces Day Saturday with a blunt warning to the Soviet Union that America's reply to aggression would be "swift and effective."

Decker delivered the warning in the divided city of Berlin after reviewing a parade of 3,000 U.S. troops at Templehof Airfield—scene of the Berlin Airlift.

He also revealed that the United States was shipping new diesel - powered M60 tanks to Europe to replace M48 Patton tanks and said he considered the M60, armed with British-designed 100mm cannon, superior to Russia's T54 tanks.

But Decker pledged the United States would never strike the first blow in a war or commit aggression. He warned, however, "American response to aggression would be measured, swift and effective."

State Boards On Education Plan Study

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The two boards which govern higher education in Louisiana laid plans Saturday to create a joint group to co-ordinate work of interest to both.

John Doles, chairman of the Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors, and Robert Curry, president of the State Board of Education, were authorized to name five members each to a joint study committee.

A joint meeting of the boards directed that the group issue a report and recommend ways and means the two bodies can co-ordinate their efforts in higher education and set up a permanent body to carry out such work.

John Hickman of Lake Charles, member of the LSU board, offered the resolution approved as members of the two boards to find some way to quell criticism that their mutual work is unco-ordinated.

Curry will name a temporary chairman to serve until the 10-member joint committee is selected and holds its first meeting.

In other action, the group named a committee to study uniform course numbering, at least in colleges, and the possibility of setting up uniform rules of academic probation and suspension, and attendance requirements in colleges and universities.

The boards decided against a proposal to hold off on all course and program changes until their co-ordination plans are worked out.

Both boards will hold another joint meeting in September.

Sen. Sylvan Friedman, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Higher Education, earlier called for co-ordination between the boards.

Friedman complained about duplication in graduate school efforts and waste in the higher education system. He said that Louisiana has seven dairy schools scattered over the state being operated at extremely high cost.

LSU president Troy H. Middleton said the cost of operating the dairy schools over the state, each with a small number of students, ran almost as much as the $4,200 per year per student it costs to educate physicians.

The joint boards earlier agreed on uniform testing for new students to be set up at all colleges and universities.

Large Airliner Leaves Runway As Brakes Fail

MIAMI (UPI)—A Pan American DC-8 jet carrying a crew of eight and 78 passengers veered off the runway at Miami International Airport Saturday when the brakes failed. None of the 86 persons aboard were injured.

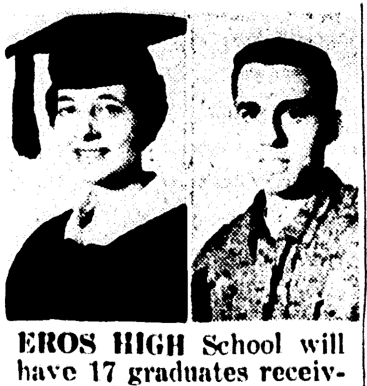
Passengers were removed from the airliner near the middle of the 10,500 foot runway by limousines.

The plane, flight 406 from Nassau, Bahamas, was due at the airport at 1:10 p. m. but was delayed for more than an hour after the airliner's captain, C. William Karraker of New York, radioed that he had trouble in the hydraulic system.

Emergency equipment was standing by when the DC-8 set down.

The jet rolled for about 1,000 feet before veering off the right side of the runway onto the grass and into a sandy area where it came to a halt.

Airline officials said the plane wasn't damaged, but has to be towed from the soft sand.



EROS HIGH School will have 17 graduates receiving diplomas at exercises set for 8 p.m. May 25, with Gloria Dean McElduff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim McElduff, as valedictorian, and Alton Spillers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Spillers, salutatorian.

Seven Youths Booked After Friday Fight

A gang fight at Forsythe Park Friday night was broken up by Monroe police and seven youths booked for fighting and disturbing the peace.

Sources said yesterday that the fight had its beginnings in an argument at a favorite gathering place of the local teenagers and moved to the park where it erupted into a gang fight.

However, Chief of Police James C. Kelly Jr., after questioning the entire group that was brought in, booked only seven of them.

They were Billy Wayne Dorner, 17 of 1411 Trenton St., West Monroe, booked for fighting, disturbing the peace and public drunkenness; Everett Gale Wheelis, 17 of 1106 Cypress St., West Monroe, disturbing the peace and fighting; Sperry Allen Brown, 17 of 1701 N. Sixth St., disturbing the peace and fighting; James Michael, 17 of 2020 Paragoud Blvd., fighting and disturbing the peace; Robert Charles Payne, 17 of 3706 Lafayet St., fighting and disturbing the peace; Ralph Earl Roberts, 17 of Sterlington Rd., fighting and disturbing the peace; and James Carter Love Jr., 18 of 2313 Sauville St., fighting and disturbing the peace.

All seven were released under $100 bonds.

2 Airmen Die In Plane Crash

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Two airmen were killed Saturday when their T-33 jet trainer crashed on a runway at Maxwell AFB here, marring a gigantic Armed Forces Day celebration.

Identification of the victims was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Thousands of persons witnessing Air Force fly-overs and other exhibits at Maxwell, rated the second busiest military airport in the nation, witnessed the flaming crash.

State Faces Prospect Of Debt Climb

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—During the coming fiscal year, Louisiana will chop $27.9 million from its existing $319.6 million bond debt.

But, the Shreveport Times said Saturday, the state is faced with the prospect of adding an additional $180 million the next few years.

Figures compiled in the state division of administration show Louisiana at end of the present fiscal year June 30 will owe $241.6 million in principal and $78 million in interest on bonds issued the last 20 years or more.

Gov. Jimmie Davis' administration put through a $60 million capital outlay bond program in the 1960 legislature, and now, one year later, his administration is putting through the legislature another $60 million issue, this time for highways.

"Unless the interest rates improve considerably," the Shreveport Times said, "the interest involved on the two bond programs "will add about half again as much as the principal."

The $60 million highway bond issue is ready to move through both houses in the legislature, backed with enough support to assure passage. Then it would be submitted to the people in November, 1962.

"Bonded indebtedness by the highway department is the greatest among the various bonding units of the state," the newspaper said. "The highway department owes some $167.7 million in principal and interest, and will pay $12.7 million during the next fiscal year...."

And next in line is the state building authority, which still owes $56.4 million in principal and interest.

Jaycees Win Eight State Award Spots

The Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce won eight state awards for projects and activities during the past year, according to local President Jimmy Terry. The chapter also won fifth place in the "Parade of Cities" and was the only chapter in its division (over 50,000 population) to place.

Records and recognition chairman Craig Campbell said the local Jaycees won two first place awards, five second place awards, and one third place in the statewide competition.

The chapter won first place in the youth and sports category, and first place in public affairs. The local Jaycees have been active in youth and sports work for several years and sponsor annually from 10 to 15 such projects. The range of activity extends from Junior golf to junior champ (stometimes called Junior Olympics) and to the Jaycee youth camp on the Ouachita River, which operated last summer for 6 full weeks.

Sports include All Twin-City football, All Twin-city baseball, outstanding athlete, open tennis, softball, bowling and others.

"Many of our members devote an unselfish amount of their time to the youth of our community," according to Terry. "Because of their efforts, the local chapter is usually a state Junior Chamber leader in the field of youth and sports."

In the field of public affairs, the local Jaycees won a second place national award last year and this year won a first place state award. Added to the public affairs portfolio this year was a project called the "good government committees." These committees attended meetings of the City Council, the Police Jury and the School Board.

They also brought to the attention of the membership such things as local bond issues, bills coming up in Congress and the state legislature and sometimes had recommendations for action to be taken by the general membership. The group also invited state legislators and others to speak at general membership meetings to keep the members better informed.

The Monroe Jaycees won second place awards for religious and Christmas activities (which included the Christmas shopping tour for needy children), internal affairs, inter - club relations, ways and means and for project of the Year, which was the good government committees. The chapter received one third place award for its health and safety work.

"A great deal of credit for this year's awards goes to Craig Campbell, who in his first year as records and recognition chairman did a very creditable job," Terry stated. "He was ably assisted by Pete Dowd, John Birdsong, Jr., Ken Wagley, Jim Moore and several others."

Individual honors went to Peter Dowd, who became the fifth man in the more than 20 year history of the Louisiana Junior Chamber of Commerce to receive a lifetime membership, and to Ken Wagley, who won third place runner-up as the outstanding first year Jaycee in Louisiana.

Graduate Program Set For Summer Semester

The graduate program at Northeast Louisiana State College will be put into operation at the beginning of the summer session with registration June 5, Dr. Clint Hanna, dean of instruction, announced yesterday. The session will end August 10.

The college's plan for study leading to a master's degree for professional school personnel was approved by the State Board of Education at its meeting Friday in Baton Rouge.

Application forms for admission to the graduate program will be available Monday. The forms and schedules of classes may be obtained from the registrar's office.

NEED TRANSCRIPTS

In addition to admission forms, persons wishing to enroll for graduate work must furnish complete, official transcripts of credit from all colleges attended, Hanna said.

Degrees offered under the new program will be the master of arts in education, the master of science in education, the master of education, and the master of music education.

The master of arts in education will be granted in English, social science, and speech; the master of science in education in biology, business, chemistry, health and physical education, mathematics, and physics; the master of education in biology, business, chemistry, education, English, health and physical education, mathematics, physics, social science, and speech; and the master of music education in music.

Northeast officials expressed appreciation to the legislature and to the State Board of Education for making the Northeast State graduate program possible. Special recognition was given to Col. George T. Madison and Joe D. Waggoner Jr., members of the board from the Fifth Congressional District and the Third Public Service District, respectively, and the three Monroe legislators, Senator Jamar Adcock and Reps. Lawrence Gibbs and Mike John Jr.

A student may be admitted to the graduate program under one of three classifications — regular graduate student, probational graduate student, or conditional graduate student.

Inquiries concerning study at the college should be directed to the dean of instruction of Dr. Lake C. Oxford, registrar.

U.S. Charged With 'Selling Out' Africa

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia (UPI)—Federal Premier Sir Roy Welensky said Saturday Americans were duped, defeated and despised throughout Africa.

In a bitter speech charging Britain and the United States were selling out Africa to Communism, Welensky also made an apparent reference to U.S. Assistant Secretary of State for African Affairs, G. Mennen Williams. The reference was critical.

Welensky, a former railway engineer who rose to become a British knight and prime minister of the Central African Federation, recently announced his staunch opposition to British plans for a Rhodesian constitution giving greater voting and legislative rights to the colony's Africans.

Welensky's speech, to a banquet of mining and metallurgical officials, was rated one of the most bitter anti - Western declarations ever made by an African head of state—black or white.

The Rhodesian prime minister did not mention Williams by name. But the reference appeared clear when he castigated "people who wander round this continent, shaking the hands of everyone they meet and inducing them to pose for pictures with their arms around their shoulders." Africans were not taken in by this sort of thing, he said.

Williams, on his recent African tour, drew angry reaction from Salisbury when he was quoted as he believed "Africa is for the Africans."

"I am dismayed that such experienced and sophisticated countries can be so consistently wrong in their choice of people and ideologies to back."

Time and again, he said, Britain and the United States "are duped and defeated. But time and again they come up for more and persist in their error and ill judgment."

David Nelson Weds Actress

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Actor David Nelson married actress-model June Blair Saturday with his brother Ricky as best man.

The couple met when Miss Blair, 20, portrayed David's girl friend in an episode of the weekly television show that also stars the boys' parents, Ozzie and Harriet Nelson. David is 24.

About 120 guests attended the ceremony in Forest Lawn Memorial Park's Church of the Hills at suburban Burbank. Dr. S. A. Candow, pastor of the Lutheran Church of the Master, West Los Angeles, officiated.

Navy Secretary Says Merchant Fleet Obsolette

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Secretary of the Navy John B. Connally Saturday night painted a gloomy picture of the nation's merchant marine.

"Our merchant fleet is rapidly approaching block obsolescence," Connally told a National Maritime Day banquet. "That is, 77 per cent of our deep sea dry cargo ships were built nearly 20 years ago, during World War II.

"The subsidized replacement program is not proceeding fast enough to prevent this obsolescence. There is no plan at all for replacement of over-aged vessel on order for the non-subsizieed segment of the merchant fleet."

In contrast, Connally said the Soviet merchant fleet "is young, vigorous and growing rapidly."

He said that on Jan. 1, 1960, the Soviet merchant fleet had 19.5 per cent more capacity than a year earlier. Last Jan. 1, he said, more than 180 ships were under construction for the Soviet merchant fleets.

Decker Warns Soviet Union On Aggression

BERLIN (UPI) — U. S. Army Chief of Staff Gen. George H. Decker marked Armed Forces Day Saturday with a blunt warning to the Soviet Union that America's reply to aggression would be "swift and effective."

Decker delivered the warning in the divided city of Berlin after reviewing a parade of 3,000 U.S. troops at Templehof Airfield—scene of the Berlin Airlift.

He also revealed that the United States was shipping new diesel - powered M60 tanks to Europe to replace M48 Patton tanks and said he considered the M60, armed with British-designed 100mm cannon, superior to Russia's T54 tanks.

But Decker pledged the United States would never strike the first blow in a war or commit aggression. He warned, however, "American response to aggression would be measured, swift and effective."

State Boards On Education Plan Study

BATON ROUGE (AP) — The two boards which govern higher education in Louisiana laid plans Saturday to create a joint group to co-ordinate work of interest to both.

John Doles, chairman of the Louisiana State University Board of Supervisors, and Robert Curry, president of the State Board of Education, were authorized to name five members each to a joint study committee.

A joint meeting of the boards directed that the group issue a report and recommend ways and means the two bodies can co-ordinate their efforts in higher education and set up a permanent body to carry out such work.

John Hickman of Lake Charles, member of the LSU board, offered the resolution approved as members of the two boards to find some way to quell criticism that their mutual work is unco-ordinated.

Curry will name a temporary chairman to serve until the 10-member joint committee is selected and holds its first meeting.

In other action, the group named a committee to study uniform course numbering, at least in colleges, and the possibility of setting up uniform rules of academic probation and suspension, and attendance requirements in colleges and universities.

The boards decided against a proposal to hold off on all course and program changes until their co-ordination plans are worked out.

Both boards will hold another joint meeting in September.

Sen. Sylvan Friedman, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Higher Education, earlier called for co-ordination between the boards.

Friedman complained about duplication in graduate school efforts and waste in the higher education system. He said that Louisiana has seven dairy schools scattered over the state being operated at extremely high cost.

LSU president Troy H. Middleton said the cost of operating the dairy schools over the state, each with a small number of students, ran almost as much as the $4,200 per year per student it costs to educate physicians.

The joint boards earlier agreed on uniform testing for new students to be set up at all colleges and universities.

Large Airliner Leaves Runway As Brakes Fail

MIAMI (UPI)—A Pan American DC-8 jet carrying a crew of eight and 78 passengers veered off the runway at Miami International Airport Saturday when the brakes failed. None of the 86 persons aboard were injured.

Passengers were removed from the airliner near the middle of the 10,500 foot runway by limousines.

The plane, flight 406 from Nassau, Bahamas, was due at the airport at 1:10 p. m. but was delayed for more than an hour after the airliner's captain, C. William Karraker of New York, radioed that he had trouble in the hydraulic system.

Emergency equipment was standing by when the DC-8 set down.

The jet rolled for about 1,000 feet before veering off the right side of the runway onto the grass and into a sandy area where it came to a halt.

Airline officials said the plane wasn't damaged, but has to be towed from the soft sand.

EROS HIGH School will have 17 graduates receiving diplomas at exercises set for 8 p.m. May 25, with Gloria Dean McElduff, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim McElduff, as valedictorian, and Alton Spillers, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Spillers, salutatorian.

Seven Youths Booked After Friday Fight

A gang fight at Forsythe Park Friday night was broken up by Monroe police and seven youths booked for fighting and disturbing the peace.

Sources said yesterday that the fight had its beginnings in an argument at a favorite gathering place of the local teenagers and moved to the park where it erupted into a gang fight.

However, Chief of Police James C. Kelly Jr., after questioning the entire group that was brought in, booked only seven of them.

They were Billy Wayne Dorner, 17 of 1411 Trenton St., West Monroe, booked for fighting, disturbing the peace and public drunkenness; Everett Gale Wheelis, 17 of 1106 Cypress St., West Monroe, disturbing the peace and fighting; Sperry Allen Brown, 17 of 1701 N. Sixth St., disturbing the peace and fighting; James Michael, 17 of 2020 Paragoud Blvd., fighting and disturbing the peace; Robert Charles Payne, 17 of 3706 Lafayet St., fighting and disturbing the peace; Ralph Earl Roberts, 17 of Sterlington Rd., fighting and disturbing the peace; and James Carter Love Jr., 18 of 2313 Sauville St., fighting and disturbing the peace.

All seven were released under $100 bonds.

2 Airmen Die In Plane Crash

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—Two airmen were killed Saturday when their T-33 jet trainer crashed on a runway at Maxwell AFB here, marring a gigantic Armed Forces Day celebration.

Identification of the victims was withheld pending notification of next of kin.

Thousands of persons witnessing Air Force fly-overs and other exhibits at Maxwell, rated the second busiest military airport in the nation, witnessed the flaming crash.

State Faces Prospect Of Debt Climb

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—During the coming fiscal year, Louisiana will chop $27.9 million from its existing $319.6 million bond debt.

But, the Shreveport Times said Saturday, the state is faced with the prospect of adding an additional $180 million the next few years.

Figures compiled in the state division of administration show Louisiana at end of the present fiscal year June 30 will owe $241.6 million in principal and $78 million in interest on bonds issued the last 20 years or more.

Gov. Jimmie Davis' administration put through a $60 million capital outlay bond program in the 1960 legislature, and now, one year later, his administration is putting through the legislature another $60 million issue, this time for highways.

"Unless the interest rates improve considerably," the Shreveport Times said, the interest involved on the two bond programs "will add about half again as much as the principal."

The $60 million highway bond issue is ready to move through both houses in the legislature, backed with enough support to assure passage. Then it would be submitted to the people in November, 1962.

"Bonded indebtedness by the highway department is the greatest among the various bonding units of the state," the newspaper said. "The highway department owes some $167.7 million in principal and interest, and will pay $12.7 million during the next fiscal year...."

And next in line is the state building authority, which still owes $56.4 million in principal and interest.

AH -- I'VE GOT EIGHT DOLLARS LEFT OVER --- I'LL JUST HIDE IT AWAY FOR A RAINY DAY
NAW -- THERE'S NO USE HIDING IT IN THE HOUSE -- SOMEONE ALWAYS FINDS IT
THERE'S JUST ONE PLACE TO HIDE MONEY -- DEEP IN THE GROUND LIKE PIRATES DID IN THE OLDEN DAYS
OH, DAISY, YOU DARLING! EIGHT DOLLARS -- JUST WHAT I NEED FOR A NEW HAT
IT'S A DREAM -- I'LL TAKE IT
DAISY, HOW DISAPPOINTING! ARE YOU TRYING TO TELL ME YOU DON'T LIKE MY NEW HAT?
WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH DAISY?
SHE'S GROWLING AT MY NEW HAT BECAUSE SHE DOESN'T LIKE IT
LET'S SEE THE HAT
MY HAT -- IT'S GONE! THERE'S NOTHING HERE BUT THE EMPTY BOX

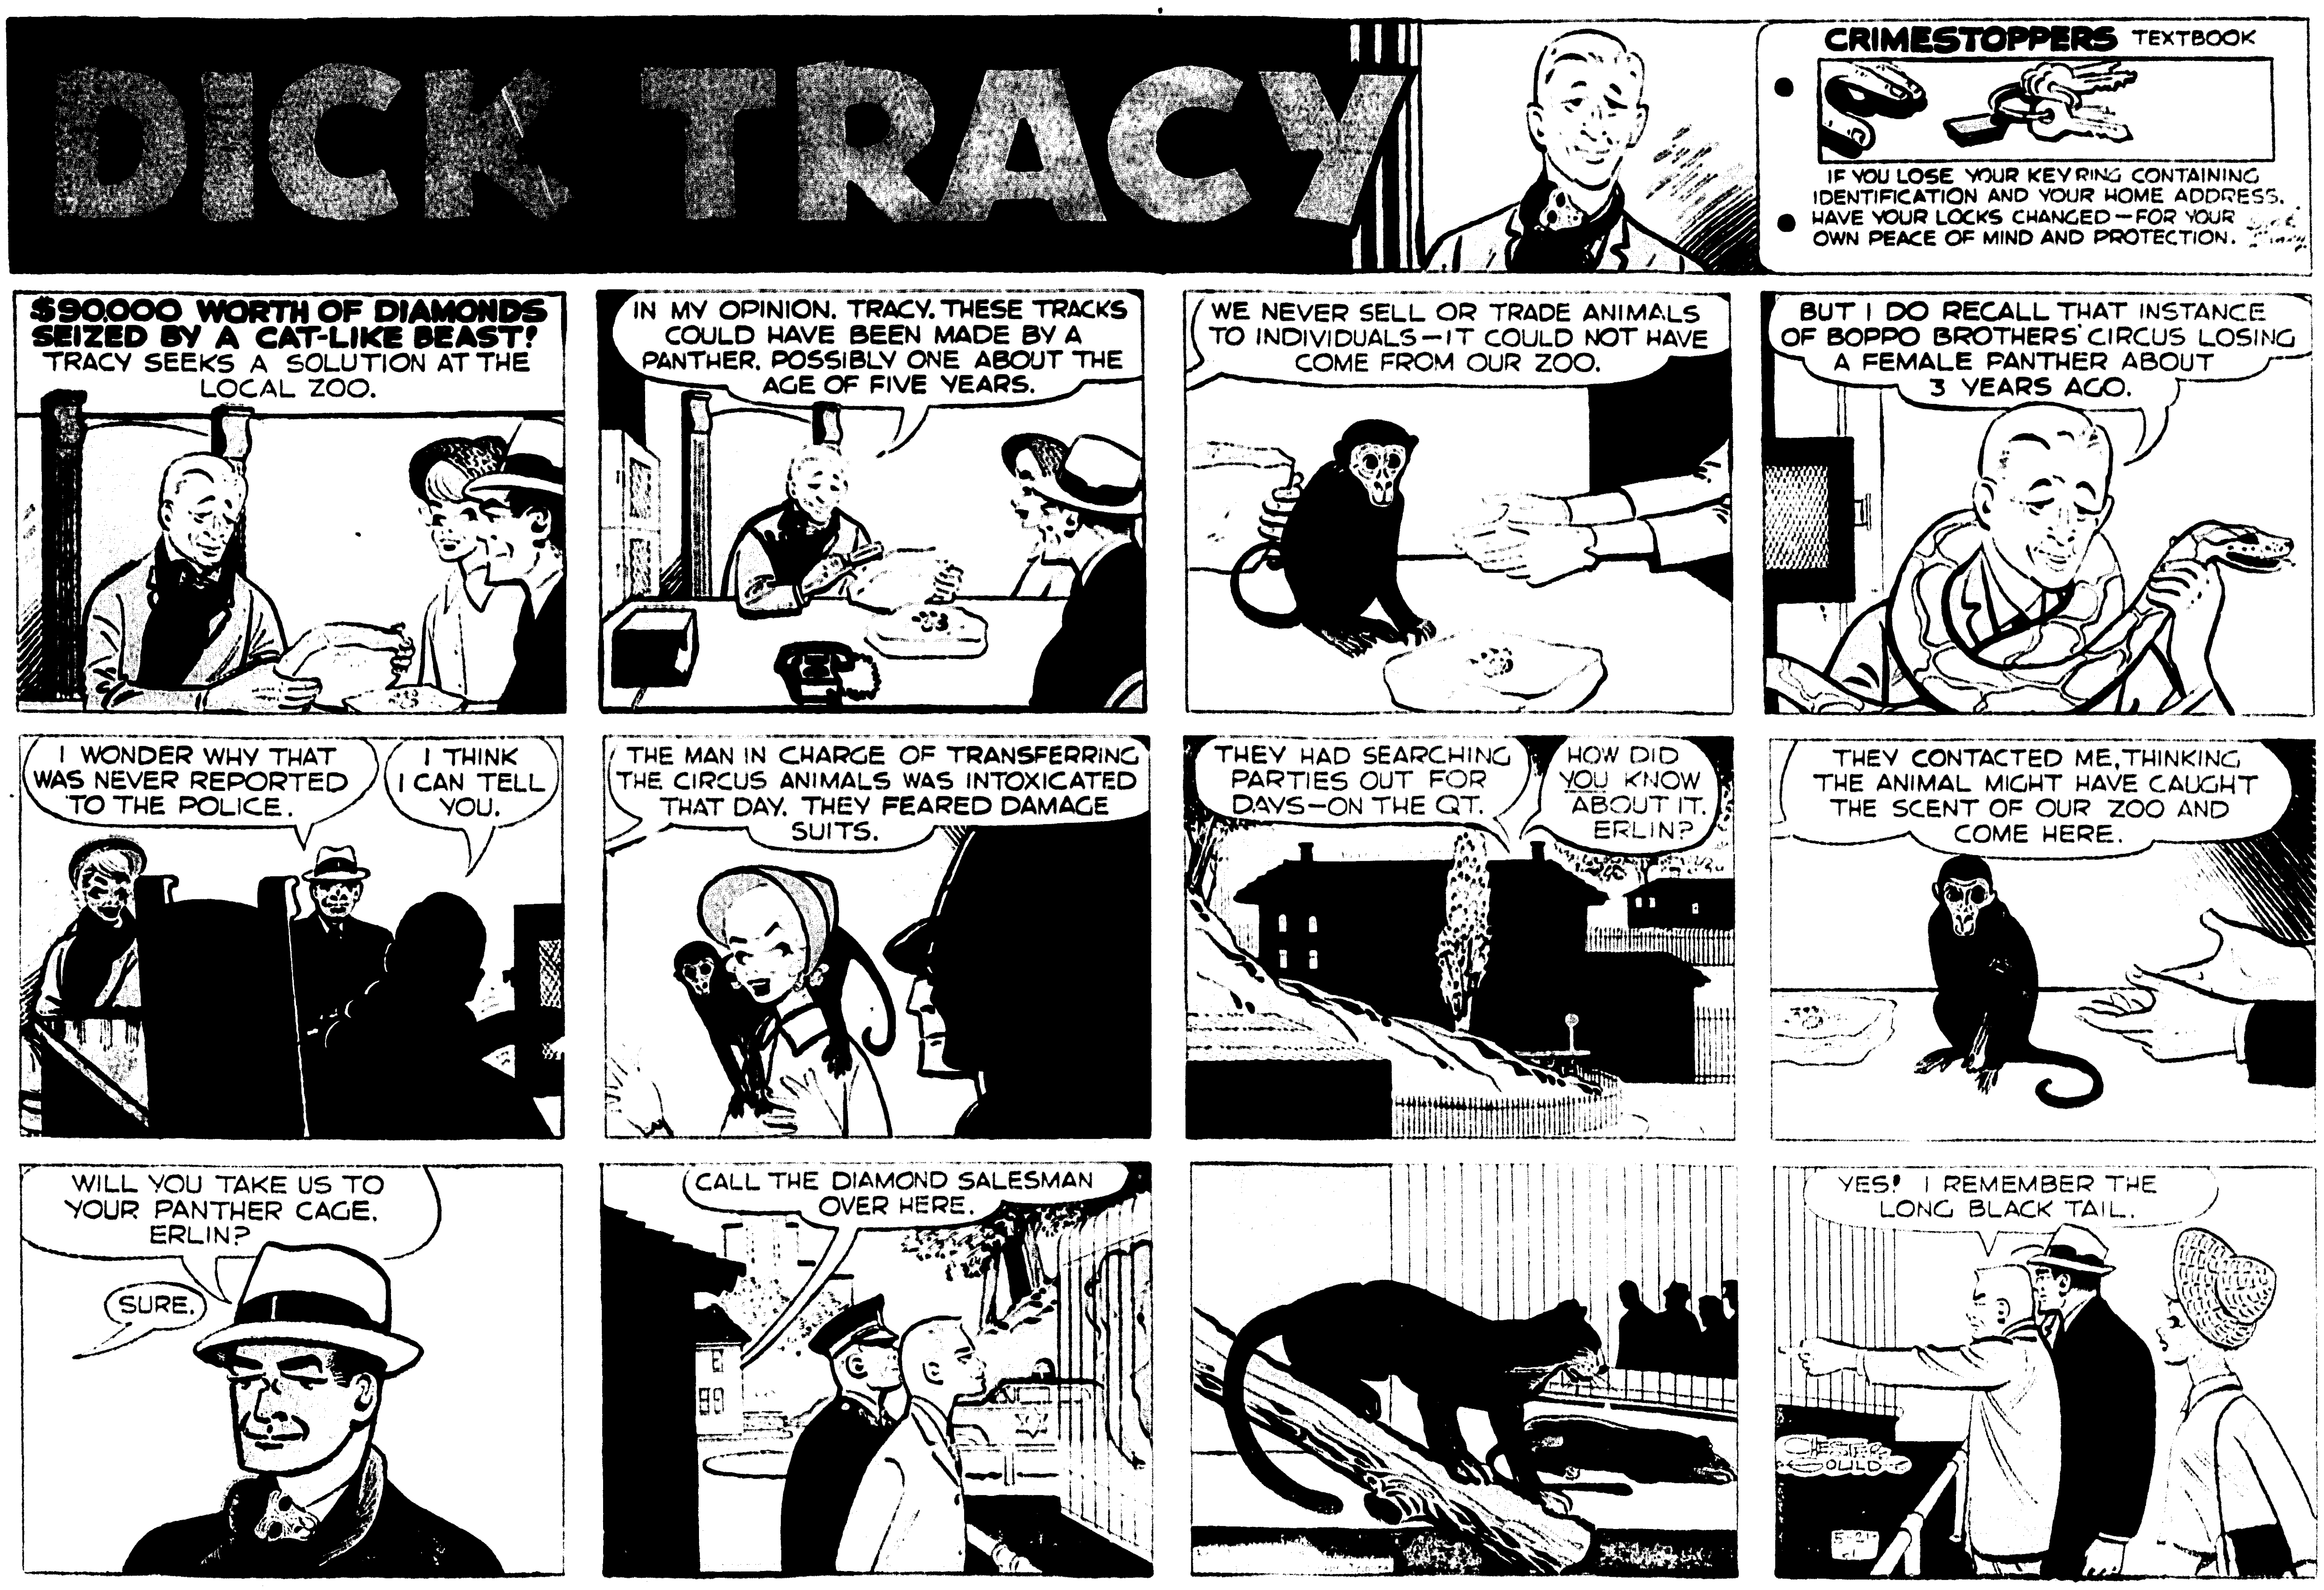
MY NEW HAT!
MY EIGHT DOLLARS!



DICK TRACY
CRIMESTOPPERS TEXTBOOK
IF YOU LOSE YOUR KEYRING CONTAINING IDENTIFICATION AND YOUR HOME ADDRESS. HAVE YOUR LOCKS CHANGED—FOR YOUR OWN PEACE OF MIND AND PROTECTION.
$90,000 WORTH OF DIAMONDS SEIZED BY A CAT-LIKE BEAST! TRACY SEEKS A SOLUTION AT THE LOCAL ZOO.
IN MY OPINION, TRACY, THESE TRACKS COULD HAVE BEEN MADE BY A PANTHER, POSSIBLY ONE ABOUT THE AGE OF FIVE YEARS.
WE NEVER SELL OR TRADE ANIMALS TO INDIVIDUALS—IT COULD NOT HAVE COME FROM OUR ZOO.
BUT I DO RECALL THAT INSTANCE OF BOPPO BROTHERS' CIRCUS LOSING A FEMALE PANTHER ABOUT 3 YEARS AGO.
I WONDER WHY THAT WAS NEVER REPORTED TO THE POLICE.
I THINK I CAN TELL YOU.
THE MAN IN CHARGE OF TRANSFERRING THE CIRCUS ANIMALS WAS INTOXICATED THAT DAY. THEY FEARED DAMAGE SUITS.
THEY HAD SEARCHING PARTIES OUT FOR DAYS—ON THE Q.T.
HOW DID YOU KNOW ABOUT IT, ERLIN?
THEY CONTACTED ME, THINKING THE ANIMAL MIGHT HAVE CAUGHT THE SCENT OF OUR ZOO AND COME HERE.
WILL YOU TAKE US TO YOUR PANTHER CAGE, ERLIN?
SURE.
CALL THE DIAMOND SALESMAN OVER HERE.
YES! I REMEMBER THE LONG BLACK TAIL.

CANYON, YOU HAVE ALWAYS OPPOSED MY RETURN TO MY RIGHTFUL THRONE...
AND NOW YOU HAVE DONE SOMETHING TERRIBLE TO HOGAN, THE MAN I LOVE...
I LOVE HIM BECAUSE HE HAS ALWAYS BEEN DEVOTED TO ME! HE IS THE ENEMY OF THE RED ARMY WHICH DROVE ME OUT...
I DON'T QUESTION HOGAN'S SINCERITY...
BUT HE HAS SUCH AN ANTI-RED FIXATION HE DIDN'T KNOW YOU WERE BEING TAKEN IN BY WHOEVER PAID FOR YOUR TRIP...
RUSSIA IS USING YOU — TO KEEP THE RED CHINESE OFF BALANCE
HOGAN WARNED ME THAT YOU WOULD TRY ANY MEANS TO STOP US...
SUCH AS TELLING YOU THE TRUTH?
SUDDENLY THERE IS A CLATTER OF MACHINE-GUN FIRE FROM THE END OF THE VALLEY...
THE RED CHINESE HAVE INFILTRATED OUR OUTER LINE — AND BLOCKED OUR ESCAPE PASS OVER THE MOUNTAIN...
THANKS TO YOU, HOGAN IS NOT HERE TO TAKE OVER...
BUT MY PEOPLE WILL HOLD AT TWO PLACES FOR ME
YOU MAY TRUST THEM, BABY. BUT I DON'T

THE OVERHAULING OF SHIRLEY BLENKIE'S SINGING ABILITIES IS IN FULL SWING...
STOP LOOKING SO GLUM! JOHNNY SAYS THAT DOC PHILMORE IS WORKING ON GETTING MORE WARMTH AND INTIMACY INTO SHIRLEY'S SINGING...
... AND WELL HE MIGHT...
... RIGHT NOW HER VOICE HAS AS MUCH WARMTH AND INTIMACY AS A TRUCK GOING OVER A LOOSE MANHOLE COVER... MERE FLESH CAN STAND SO MUCH!
NOW DON'T BE LIKE THAT. WE CAN STAND IT FOR JOHNNY'S SAKE!
FINALLY! WE'VE BEEN WAITING FOR YOU! SHIRLEY'S LEARNED A NEW SONG THAT'LL KILL YOU!
WHAT DID I TELL YOU?
UH... PETE WAS JUST TELLING ME HOW AMAZING SHIRLEY'S PROGRESS IS!
MEANWHILE...
... JUST THOUGHT I'D POP IN TO SEE HOW THE CLIENT I SENT YOU IS DOING!
HEY, FELLA! ARE YOU GETTING EVEN WITH ME FOR SOMETHING?
IS SHE THAT BAD? HOW COME JOHNNY Q THINKS SHE IS SO GREAT?
WHO KNOWS? I'LL SAY THIS FOR MISS SHIRLEY BLENKIE THOUGH — SHE ISN'T AFRAID TO WORK!
FUNNY THING ABOUT THAT— I'VE SEEN DOZENS OF GIRLS WITH REAL TALENT FALL BY THE WAYSIDE BECAUSE THEY WERE LAZY...
YEAH, I KNOW...
... I'VE PERSONALLY TOLD AS MANY TO GO HOME AND RAISE FAMILIES. AND SUDDENLY — WHAM! ... THEY MAKE IT BIG! SHOWS YOU HOW SMART I AM!
WHO'S SMART? BUT YOU WONDER...
WHAT MAKES THE DIFFERENCE? TENACITY? DETERMINATION? AGGRESSIVENESS?.. TAKE SHIRLEY, SHE ATTACKS A SONG WITH A LINE DRIVE, KICK IN THE HEAD DELIVERY THAT...
SNAP!
HEY! MAYBE ... JUST MAYBE...

THE OVERHAULING OF SHIRLEY BLENKIE'S SINGING ABILITIES IS IN FULL SWING...
STOP LOOKING SO GLUM! JOHNNY SAYS THAT DOC PHILMORE IS WORKING ON GETTING MORE WARMTH AND INTIMACY INTO SHIRLEY'S SINGING...
... AND WELL HE MIGHT...
... RIGHT NOW HER VOICE HAS AS MUCH WARMTH AND INTIMACY AS A TRUCK GOING OVER A LOOSE MANHOLE COVER... MERE FLESH CAN STAND SO MUCH!
NOW DON'T BE LIKE THAT. WE CAN STAND IT FOR JOHNNY'S SAKE!
FINALLY! WE'VE BEEN WAITING FOR YOU! SHIRLEY'S LEARNED A NEW SONG THAT'LL KILL YOU!
WHAT DID I TELL YOU?
UH... PETE WAS JUST TELLING ME HOW AMAZING SHIRLEY'S PROGRESS IS!
MEANWHILE...
... JUST THOUGHT I'D POP IN TO SEE HOW THE CLIENT I SENT YOU IS DOING!
HEY, FELLA! ARE YOU GETTING EVEN WITH ME FOR SOMETHING?
IS SHE THAT BAD? HOW COME JOHNNY Q THINKS SHE'S SO GREAT?
YEAH, I KNOW...
...I'VE PERSONALLY TOLD AS MANY TO GO HOME AND RAISE FAMILIES, AND SUDDENLY —— WHAM! ...THEY MAKE IT BIG! SHOWS YOU HOW SMART I AM!
SNAP!
HEY! MAYBE ... JUST MAYBE...
